Oil cutback may have impact elsewhere

1995 date for fusion power use

WASHINGTON (AP) — Recent research developments give the United States an excellent chance of harnessing the H-bomb fusion reaction — and producing commercial nuclear power from it by 1995, at least five years earlier than projected.

This was disclosed Wednesday by Dr. Robert L. Hirsch, chief of the Atomic Energy Commission's controlled thermonuclear research program, in a report to the AEC's White House-appointed general advisory committee.

Harnessing the reaction that gives the hydrogen bomb its bang would mean that virtually limitless and pollution-free electricity could be produced from the hydrogen in the waters of the world's oceans.

But Hirsch told the top-level scientific group the nation would have to invest up to $10 billion by 1995 to achieve the goal he said now appears achievable.

Hirsch told the committee, "we expect that fusion could be commercial around the year 1995," instead of sometime "after the year 2000" as projected only a year ago.

The proclaimed cutback in Arab oil production should have little immediate effect on U.S. supplies, an American energy expert says. But Western Europe and Japan, the Arabs' biggest customers, are expected to put pressure on the United States before long to reduce its support of Israel.

Arab oil ministers at a meeting in Kuwait Wednesday announced they would cut production at least 5 per cent a month until Israel gives up all territory it seized in the 1967 war and restores the rights of the Palestinian refugees.

Because the United States gets only about 6 per cent of the oil it uses from the Arab countries, the Arabs strategy was to squeeze the Europeans and Japanese in the hope that they in turn would put the screws on Washington. Israel's chief source of arms.

A 5 per cent cut in U. S. imports from the Arab countries would reduce the total supply in the United States only three-tenths of one per cent, the U.S. expert said in Washington. But he estimated the action would reduce Western Europe's supplies by 3 per cent and Japan's by 2 per cent.

The Nixon Administration is counting on imports of refined heating oil from Europe to meet the shortage expected this winter, and a reduced supply of crude to Europe would make refined products harder to get.

Since production is being cut back rather than exports, the effects of the decision may not be felt for several weeks. And the volume of production will decline very slowly if the reductions continue, since each month's cut will be 5 per cent of the previous month's production. But oil experts in Beirut predicted a major world oil crisis if the cuts continued for as long as four months.

One London oil analyst called the cutback "an extremely astute scheme. It will make everyone suffer a little and put considerable pressure on Western countries to force Israel to come to an agreement with the Arabs."

Japan, dependent on the Middle East for 80.7 per cent of its petroleum imports, hoped its neutral policy in the Arab-Israeli conflict might exempt it from the cutback. But the Japanese Ministry of International Trade and Industry acknowledged today that the Arab producers may hit it, too, in hopes that Tokyo will put pressure on the United States.

A question both in Japan and in Europe was whether Iran would follow the lead of its Arab neighbors. Iran, not an Arab nation, is the second largest Middle East producer.

One American petroleum industry observer noted that a reduction in Arab output would have serious effects on such major international oil companies such as Texaco, Exxon, Mobil, Royal Dutch Shell, Gulf and Standard Oil of California.

An Exxon spokesman, for example, said that half his company's crude oil last year came from the Middle East.

The decision to cut oil production as a tactic against U.S. support of Israel was taken at a meeting of the 10 members of the Organization of Arab Petroleum Exporting Countries, or OAPEC.

After a seven-hour session, the coun-

Big tank battle could settle all

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cairo newspapers reported today the biggest tank battle of the war was still raging in the Sinai Desert as Israelis and Syrians probed one another's defenses in tank and artillery skirmishes on the Golan Heights front.

Unconfirmed reports circulated in Washington and other world capitals that Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin was heading a Soviet mission now in Cairo. The New York Times reported in a dispatch quoting diplomats in the Egyptian capital that Moscow has begun high-level efforts to bring about a settlement of the Middle East war.

The 13-day-old Middle East war also came home to Beirut with offshore explosions that cut an undersea cable linking Lebanon and Europe. Military sources said the five blasts were the work of Israeli frogmen.

Israel claimed it destroyed 90 to 100 Egyptian tanks in the crucial Sinai battle Wednesday along the Suez Canal. Egypt said the Israelis "suffered heavy losses in tanks and armored cars."

"In the next day or so, we should be able to tell if this is the decisive battle," said an American official in Washington.

"It looks as if it will come to a head soon," said Maj. Gen. Haim Herzog, former Israeli army intelligence chief and now top war commentator for the Israeli state radio.

The Israeli drive into Syria remained bogged down about 21 miles from Damascus and the Syrians claimed they knocked out seven Israeli tanks just after dawn "when our forces repelled an enemy attack on one of our forward positions."

The Middle East war also entered finance with an announcement by Arab oil countries in Kuwait on Wednesday that they will cut their production by 5 per cent a month and increase the cut by 5 per cent a month as long as Israel holds onto Arab lands seized in the 1967 Arab-Israeli war.

Their hope is that their West European and Japanese customers — who will feel the squeeze first and hardest — will pressure the United States into ending its shipments of war supplies to Israel.

There was intense diplomatic activity in Washington, the United Nations and other capitals aimed at ending the fighting. But no sign of progress was apparent.

Israel said its forces fought all day Wednesday in Sinai to "contain Egyptian counterattacks." Maj. Gen. Haim Herzog, the state radio's military commentator, said it was the biggest armored clash in Israeli military history. Chief of Staff David Elazar declared, "We are now calling the tune." But he added: "This is not Israel's major offensive."

The Egyptian command said fighting was continuing Wednesday night in the central sector of the Sinai front, but neither side reported any change in the battle lines two and a half to 10 miles east of the Suez Canal.

It was the second day on which the Israelis had claimed destruction of a large Arab tank force. On Tuesday they reported knocking out 105 Syrian and Iraqi tanks, while Syria that day claimed its forces destroyed 80 Israeli tanks.

Elazar said Israeli forces were "initiating the attacks on both sides" of the canal. An Israeli spokesman said the commando task force that crossed the canal Tuesday was still in Egypt, continuing to sabotage missiles and artillery. But an Egyptian general said the force had been destroyed.

Israel said its force bombed military installations near Port Said, the Egyptian city at the northern end of the canal, and antiaircraft missile batteries. It said 10 Egyptian planes were shot down. Egypt claimed that its air force shot down four Israeli planes in one dogfight while ground fire downed 12 Israeli planes and five helicopters. It admitted the loss of one plane.

Diplomats searching for way to end war

WASHINGTON (AP) — The diplomatic search for an end to the Arab-Israeli war has narrowed with the United States and the Soviet Union engaged in extensive discussions over specific ideas.

These are said to center on linking a cease-fire to an overall settlement of the 25-year-old Middle East dispute.

However, while the talks have progressed from a general examination of options, U.S. officials do not believe Washington and Moscow are ready to make a proposal public.

The change in the situation was acknowledged Wednesday by State Department spokesman Robert J. McGoskey.

Although any agreement made through these talks will be sent to the United Nations Security Council for ratification, the negotiations are being conducted primarily by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Anatoly F. Dobrynin, Soviet ambassador to the United States.

While working for an end to the fighting, the United States is facing increased pressure from the Arab nations to pull back from its support of Israel.

The Organization of Arab Petroleum Exporting Countries announced in Kuwait Wednesday they will cut production at least 5 per cent a month until Israel pulls back from territory taken in the 1967 war and restores the rights of Palestinian refugees.

State Department officials were unclear Tuesday night about what the action meant, when it would take place and exactly what was being demanded.

The announcement from Kuwait did not specifically mention the United States, but Arab diplomats indicated the oil action was aimed at forcing the United States to pressure Israel into a compromise.

The official American position as outlined by Kissinger last week is that the Nixon administration will not relent in its support of Israel in the face of a threat and will take the consequences.

Reiterating this position, Kissinger said in a speech Wednesday night, "It must be clear that while the United States is trying to make our nation safe from war, we will not give up at the price of making the rest of the world safe for war."

He told the Association of the U.S. Army that the Middle East crisis was a test of the possibilities of diplomacy and of the real meaning of deterrence.

Just before the oil production cutback was announced, President Nixon and Kissinger had a series of meetings with the foreign ministers of four Arab states — Saudi Arabia, Algeria, Kuwait and Morocco.

Spokesmen said the talks covered the Middle East situation generally and did not dwell particularly on oil.

Gunmen storm building in Lebanon, seize 60

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Gunmen stormed a building housing several American and foreign banks today, seized up to 60 hostages, and threatened to kill them after a two-hour gun battle in the heart of Beirut's financial district, police said.

The hostages, including foreigners, were trapped in the six story building, which houses the Bank of America, Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co. of New York, the Chemical Bank of New York, the Deutschebank of West Germany and the Lebanese Banque de l'Industrie et du Travail.

None of the hostages were identified.

The gunmen called themselves members of the "Lebanese Socialist Revolutionary Movement" and gave authorities a 6 p.m. local deadline — noon EDT — to meet three demands:

—The release of all Palestinian guerrillas imprisoned in Lebanon.

—A $10 million ransom from one or more of the besieged banks "to support the guerrilla movement and the Arab war effort against Israel."

—An airliner to fly them to Algeria or South Yemen.

A note thrown out of one of the bank's windows said, "We shall kill all the hostages if our demands are not met by this deadline."

A second note said, "We have wired the bank with enough explosives to blow it up completely, killing all the hostages as well as us. We shall set off the explosives at 1800 local time unless our demands are met."

The building was surrounded by police and Lebanese army troops.

The gunmen set a 6 p.m. local deadline for their demands to be met. This would be noon EDT.

"We shall kill all the hostages if our demands are not met by this deadline," they said in a note pushed out of a window of the bank building, which was encircled by police and Lebanese army troops.

Police said five gunmen raided the bank and one was wounded and captured during a subsequent battle with automatic weapons and grenades. Three policemen and five passing civilians also were wounded in the two-hour gun battle that sent pedestrians diving for cover in the heart of Beirut's business district.

Police said the gunmen had released customers and women employees of the bank, but were holding between 20 and 25 Lebanese male bank employees. Informants said the European manager of the bank, tentatively identified as Christiaan Hollander, a Dutchman, escaped from the gunmen during the shootout.

The gunmen were negotiating with Lebanese Interior Minister Bahij Takiuddin through Algerian Ambassador Mohammed Yazid and a Palestinian guerrilla leader identified as Tewfik Salafid.

The two intermediaries quoted the gunmen as saying it was "not a bank robbery but an operation against American interests, with the twin purpose of securing the release of our comrades in Lebanese jails."

The captured gunman was identified as Amir Faroukh, 24, a Lebanese national.

An official police statement said "some bank employees also were wounded when the gunmen hurled a grenade inside the bank. The police forces still are encircling the gunmen who are holding some of the bank employees inside the building."

The bank siege began at 11:45 a.m., or 4:45 a.m. CDT.

The Palestinian news agency Wafa issued a statement saying no Palestinian guerrillas were involved in the incident. It said the leadership of the Palestinian Liberation Organization offered the Lebanese government "any help needed to cope with the situation."

There was no immediate information available on the "Lebanese Socialist Revolutionary Movement," the group the gunmen claimed to belong to.

Friday and cautioned that the rockets could easily be mistaken for UFOs.

Air Force officials said the rockets would release glowing clouds of red, green, blue and yellow gasses.

A spokesman said the colors in the sky will be visible as far south as Miami, as far west as Corpus Christi, Tex., as far north as Memphis, Tenn., and along the Eastern seaboard to Charleston, S.C.

The rockets will be launched at two-hour intervals beginning at 6:30 p.m. EDT today and continuing through Friday night.

Despite official explanations, residents in Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia and South Carolina continued to inundate local sheriff's offices with reports of UFOs.

More than 1,000 cars jammed Interstate 10 near the border of Alabama and Mississippi Wednesday night when a Mobile, Ala., television station reported that it would attempt to film UFOs. The station said an unidentified woman psychic said UFOs would be in the area 16 miles west of Mobile. None was sighted.

The Alabama State Patrol said it had reports of UFOs at Dothan, Troy, Birmingham, Gadsden and Tuscaloosa.

In Mississippi, objects were sighted over Jackson and Yazoo City. In Georgia, objects were reported spotted over Atlanta, Athens, Rome and Macon. Greenville, S.C., authorities were swamped with calls from individuals who said they saw an unexplained object in the sky.

Sheriff Fred Diamond of Jackson County, Miss., called for a federal investigation of the recent UFO sightings. He said "people down here are entitled to know what is going on. People are beginning to panic."

At Franklin, Ky., a mysterious flying object reported by many people turned out to be strictly terrestrial in origin.

After it landed in Berl Starks back yard, Starks and city Patrolman Wayne Durham investigated. It was a balloon made from a blue plastic laundry bag, with candles suspended beneath to heat the air in the bag and provide lift.

Nixon backed on tapes

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon had his first favorable decision today in his legal battle to withhold the White House tapes from the Senate Watergate committee and the special Watergate prosecutor.

U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica threw out Wednesday the Senate committee's request for a civil judgment affirming its right to demand the tapes from the President.

In his ruling, Sirica said the committee had failed to obtain authorization for suing the President. He said he was not making any judgment on the legal merits of the committee's case.

A committee spokesman said the decision probably would be appealed.

But Nixon still faces the formidable challenge of special prosecutor Archibald Cox's effort to obtain nine presidential tapes for the federal grand jury investigation of the Watergate break-in and cover-up.

In that case, Sirica ordered the President to give him the nine tapes Cox had subpoenaed. The judge said that only if he listened to the tapes could he determine if the President had a valid claim for keeping them secret.

Last Friday, the U.S. Court of Appeals upheld Sirica's ruling.

The President has until Friday to take his appeal to the Supreme Court, a move he is regarded as virtually certain to make.

The committee subpoenaed five tapes last July 23, the same day Cox subpoenaed nine. Three days later the President notified both parties that he would not comply with their subpoenas.

The President has contended that because the three branches of government are coequal and independent under the Constitution, neither a congressional committee nor a judge could force him to obey an order.

Cox had argued that in the case of evidence of criminal activity, no man, not even a president, has a right to withhold it from a grand jury.

Both Sirica and the appeals court supported that position.

But in opposing the committee's suit, Nixon lawyers attacked the panel's authority to bring such an action in federal court. Sirica agreed.

"No jurisdictional statute known to the court, including the four which plaintiffs name, warrants an assumption of jurisdiction, and the court is therefore left with no alternative here but to dismiss the action," Sirica wrote.

He added that Congress could have authorized the suit, but didn't.

UFOs just lot of hot air

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Weather research balloons have prompted a new rash of reports of unidentified flying objects throughout the South and UFO-bugged authorities are bracing for more reports.

At least two offices of the National Weather Service reported separate launchings of weather balloons Wednesday.

A huge balloon, 150 feet in diameter, was launched at Palestine, Tex., and authorities say it drifted over Mississippi at a constant 50,000-foot altitude. The weather service at Montgomery, Ala., also reported launching a balloon to an altitude of about 85,000 feet.

Many of the sightings occurred after the sun had gone down but a spokesman at the National Weather Service in Macon, Ga., explained the sun's light would reflect off the balloon long after dusk because of the high altitude of the object.

Meanwhile, officials at Eglin Air Force Base in Florida have announced high atmospheric rocket tests today and

Cuban killed

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Cuban security forces rushed the French Embassy in Havana Wednesday and killed an armed Cuban holding the Belgian and French ambassadors and another Frenchman hostage, the Cuban Foreign Ministry announced.

The armed man, who had kidnaped the Belgian diplomat from his embassy, had demanded safe passage out of Cuba.

A communique from the foreign ministry was telephoned to Mexico City by Prensa Latina, the Cuban government news agency. It described the kidnaper as a "counter-revolutionary," meaning a foe of the Castro regime.

The communique said the man was wounded when the security men broke into the embassy and "died later at the Cardiovascular Hospital where he was being operated on."

"There were no other casualties," the communique said.

The Cuban gunman took Belgian Ambassador Jean Somershausen, French Ambassador Pierre Anthoinoz and a French Embassy employe hostage Tuesday in an attempt to escape from Cuba.

Court reform plans passed by Assembly

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — A judicial reform program to consolidate Wisconsin's county and circuit courts was approved Wednesday by the Assembly 81-16 and was sent to the Senate.

It also would create an appellate court system to screen cases headed for the State Supreme Court.

The legislature would create the appellate districts, and the Supreme Court justices would appoint the appellate judges.

The program would mean changes in the state Constitution, requiring approval of two legislative sessions and a referendum.

The Assembly turned back many amendments, including one whose opponents insisted it would wipe out municipal courts.

County courts and the Circuit Court network would be merged into a system of courts of general jurisdiction. Because of the constitutional amending timetable, the plan could not appear on a referendum ballot before 1975.

The bill retains existing provisions for election of judges, with the governor appointing judges to fill vacancies.

Rep. Harout Sanasarian, D-Milwaukee, wanted to table the bill saying it does not contain enough reform. His motion was rejected 81-14.

"This measure does not change the courts. It just combines them," Sanasarian said.

The Democratic majority leader, Rep. Anthony Earl of Wausau, and the GOP minority leader, Rep. John Shabaz of New Berlin, called the bill a good compromise.

Legislator salary rollback attempt is blocked again

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — For the second time in two days, Senate opponents of a rollback in legislators' salaries Wednesday beat down attempts for speedy action on the politically-hot issue.

Warren jabs Lucey on 3 issues

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Republican Atty. Gen. Robert W. Warren continued Wednesday his party's commentary on Democratic Gov. Patrick Lucey's reform legislation.

Warren, a possible 1974 candidate for governor, cited Lucey on three issues: a change in the state school-aid formula, budget-cutting prison reform, and a fully cabinet-form of state executive government.

The attorney general called the governor's "power equalization" school aids formula "another name for a state property tax."

His remarks were in a speech for the Veterinary Medical Association of Northeastern Wisconsin.

Warren declared the school aids formula, now part of the state budget, would take money from school districts in which individual income is low and give it to districts with low property valuation and high income.

He said Lucey's plan for a cabinet-form of government would bring a patronage system back to Wisconsin, "a system which could breed widespread distrust of state government."

Most state agencies are already under executive supervision, and Lucey recommends the remaining few be brought into the system.

As for prison reform, a study commission has recommended some prisons be replaced with community rehabilitation centers, but there are no details on how the centers would be financed, Warren complained.

Another firm is convicted of bribery

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — A third chemical corporation, Chemco Co. Inc., Mason City, Iowa, has been convicted of bribing a Wisconsin public employe, Atty. Gen. Robert Warren has announced today.

Warren said the firm pleaded guilty to the felony charge in Washburn County Circuit Court, Shell Lake, and was fined the maximum penalty of $1,000.

The charge against Chemco accused the firm of giving a $130 check to Clayton Jungerberg, Washburn County courthouse building engineer, in order to influence his purchase of chemicals, Warren said.

The action resulted from a John Doe investigation into business transactions between chemical companies and public employes throughout Wisconsin.

Circuit Court Judge William E. Crane of Oshkosh is conducting the proceeding.

In addition to the three corporations convicted, Warren said, three chemical company salesmen also have been convicted of giving bribes. He said 12 public employes have been convicted either of receiving bribes or perjury.

Fines and costs against the defendants now total $58,630 on 67 felony count convictions and other court actions, Warren said.

65-acre town island annexation proposed

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — A legislative conference committee proposed Tuesday that cities and villages be allowed to annex town islands of 65 acres or less.

The six-man committee is charged with drawing up a compromise on Assembly and Senate versions of a suburban annexation bill.

Both houses passed bills which would allow municipalities to annex city-surrounded islands of less than 100 residents.

The Senate version limited annexations to parcels of less than 50 acres. The Assembly bill set no limit on acreage.

The compromise proposes a two-thirds vote of the governing body of a city or village for annexation to take place.

The municipality would have to annex all qualified territory unless there is a mutual agreement with the affected towns to exclude some.

Revised no-fault promised

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Yet another no-fault automobile insurance bill will cruise into the legislature next week, State Rep. Dennis Conta, D-Milwaukee, said Wednesday.

Conta said his Joint Finance Committee is coming up with a revised no-fault proposal in an attempt to answer some of the criticisms of existing bills before the legislature.

Conta was responding to charges by fellow Democrat Edward Nager of Madison who accused him of stalling on the issue.

Nager said unless the Assembly considers no-fault auto insurance immediately, it cannot be enacted into law until next year.

Conta said he was not trying to kill the bill but needed time to draft an alternative.

He did not say how it would differ from Nager's proposal.

Bill extends limits on malpractice suits

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — A bill to ease the statute of limitations on filing surgical malpractice suits against physicians and dentists was approved 83-13 Wednesday by the state Assembly.

Statutes currently limit filing of a damage suit to within three years of an operation. The bill sent to the Senate would accommodate suits filed within three years of the discovery of malpractice.

Decriminalize public drunkenness, bill asks

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Sen. Robert Kasten, R-Brown Deer, authored a bill Wednesday to decriminalize alcoholism and public drunkenness.

"In addition to changing the state's legal attitude toward problem drinkers, this measure removes an inappropriate burden from Wisconsin's courts," Kasten said.

Criminal sanctions should remain against acts committed under the influence of alcohol and against drunken driving, he said.

"We will still protect the public against offenses committed by intoxicated people," Kasten said.

"Our goal with this bill is to help those whose drinking endangers themselves and their loved ones," he said.

The bill would require the Department of Health and Social Services to set up a program for treatment of alcoholics.

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Conservative members of the State Senate, led by Sen. Jack Steinhilber, R-Oshkosh, failed to halt the passage of a bill that will allow minors with drug problems to get medical treatment without parental consent.

The liberal measure passed the Senate on a voice vote despite the protests of eight senators who argued that it would help to destroy the family structure.

The measure now goes to the Assembly where passage is almost certain.

The bill was introduced by the Senate Committee on Health, Education and Welfare at the request of the Health Planning and Policy Task Force. It was supported by 24 of the 32 senators on the final roll call vote that carried it to the voice vote for passage.

Steinhilber also failed to attach two amendments to the bill which he said would make it possible for the parents to be notified of the treatment without first giving consent.

The first amendment proposed that parents be notified after the treatment had been offered. The second amendment stated that parents be made responsible for any medical costs, thereby making it necessary for physicians to notify them. Both amendments died.

Sen. Ronald Parys, D-Milwaukee, supported the bill by saying that he would want his own children to seek medical aid if they were afraid of telling him about a drug problem.

Steinhilber also expressed a concern that the costs of medical treatment would eventually go to the state since welfare would have to pick up what the patient cannot pay.

But Sen. William Bablitch, D-Stevens Point, rebutted that some physicians are willing to treat drug abusers at no cost.

Supervisors will reimburse county for wives' bills

Six Outagamie County supervisors who billed the county for their wives' portions of motel bills while they were attending a county board convention have said they will reimburse the county.

The six were among County Board members who attended the annual convention of the Wisconsin County Boards Association in Eau Claire last month.

The total cost for the supervisors' wives' lodging amounted to about $70 for the three nights. In all but one case, the rooms were identical to those used by supervisors who were alone; with two in the room, however, the price rose from $13.50 per night to $17. One of the six stayed in a $20 per night room.

All six supervisors when contacted by The Post-Crescent said they were not aware of the additional room expense and would refund the money to the county.

The supervisors who took their wives were Russell DeLaHunt, George Schroeder, Eugene Retzlaff, Daniel Williams, Fred Rehfeldt and Francis Coonen Sr.

More powers for patrol approved by Assembly

MADISON, Wis. (AP) —The Assembly voted 79-18 Wednesday to expand the arrest powers of state highway patrolmen.

Sent to the Senate was a bill to allow a patrolman to make a criminal arrest when "he believes on reasonable grounds" a warrant has been issued.

The bill would allow arrests of persons caught in criminal acts, or of persons apprehended within 24 hours of an act.

The measure is a result of efforts by the State Highway Patrol to provide its personnel with greater authority than is specified under existing statutes.

The state patrolman's duties are restricted generally to traffic and assisting local officials when asked.

The patrol's request has been opposed by some local law enforcement representatives who call it the birth of a state police force that could override the influence of local police.

Supporters of the measure said it is foolish to have a patrolman at the scene of a crime and unable to make an effective arrest.

"If we do not back this bill, we are short-changing the people of Wisconsin," Rep. Jon Wilcox, a Wautoma Republican, said.

Assemblymen also approved a bill to let persons convicted of crimes obtain licenses for jobs unrelated to the nature of the crime.

The measure passed 60-37, but the Assembly declined to give it the two-thirds vote necessary to have it forwarded immediately to the Senate.

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — The lady from Cazenovia was indignant, foot stamping indignant, in the appraisal of some of her colleagues in the Wisconsin state assembly.

The issue before the house was a Republican motion to withdraw from committee for floor action a bill to rescind a substantial part of the salary increase for legislators that was enacted into law as a part of the state budget bill earlier this year and has caused more commotion in state politics than most other questions of the year at the capitol.

Rep. Joanne Duren, second term representative of a sprawling and thinly settled western Wisconsin district, angrily condemned the Wisconsin press as she complained about what she said was the effort of Republicans to embarrass the Democrats who had written the pay increase into the budget bill and provided the votes to make it law.

"Why do they insist on publicizing the 58 per cent increase in the legislative salary", she demanded?

"Why don't they present the dollar difference? And why don't they publicize the fact that many other salaries have been increased by a far higher percentage?"

Miss Duren formerly earned her livelihood as proprietor of a secretarial service, and she came prepared for the assembly dispute. She passed out copies of percentage calculations of higher salaries for other political figures in the capitol that have been generally ignored in the harsh publicity about the legislative "pay grab", as some bitter critics have described it.

The next governor will get pay of $44,289 a year, instead of $25,000, which is a 77 per cent boost, she related. The lieutenant governor will get $21,165, for a whopping raise of 282 per cent. The state treasurer and the secretary of state and the attorney general will also get higher raises, at 64 per cent for the first and second, and 82 per cent for the third, than will legislators, she continued angrily.

"Why don't they print that?"

Legislative salaries will advance from $9,900, the present level, to $15,680 starting in 1975.

The Republican motion to bring up a legislative pay schedule at a more modest level failed, as it has failed before, and as it will inevitably fail again after it is made again.

But Miss Duren had made her point. When the legislature voted approval of higher legislative pay, after the next elections, it provided higher salaries for almost every other state officer and employe, and some of them will benefit more generously.

Steinhilber vote holds up farmland tax referendum

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — Sen. Jack Steinhilber, R-Oshkosh, cast the deciding vote to prevent a final floor vote on a measure that would bring the controversial issue of lower tax assessments on farmland to a state referendum at the next general election.

Steinhilber voted against a motion to bring the resolution to an early vote after telling the Senate that it would only reduce some farm taxes while increasing others.

The resolution has already passed the Assembly twice and the Senate once and is a near certainty to receive Senate approval again. The state statutes require that a resolution pass both houses twice before it be put to referendum.

If the resolution does pass the Senate and is supported in a state referendum, it would mean that agricultural and undeveloped land could be assessed at a lower tax rate than other property, thereby altering the tax uniformity provision of the Wisconsin Constitution.

Steinhilber argued that such a practice would only benefit those farmers who have land closer to the urban areas where the assessments are higher.

"This is really a question of lousy assessing," Steinhilber said. "If we lower the taxes from some farmers, we will only be shifting it to the backs of others. This would be the beginning of the wedge to destroy the tax uniformity provision and would be a serious mistake."

The Oshkosh Republican added that such a referendum would only initiate a fight between the rural and urban factions around the state.

Steinhilber's vote prevented supporters of the bill from mustering the necessary two-thirds margin to get the issue to a final vote. But the Senate, is almost certain to pass the measure during the current four-week session.

Supporting Steinhilber in opposition to the bill was Sen. Reuben LaFave, R-Oconto, but for an entirely different reason. LaFave backed a move by Sen. Fred Risser, D-Madison, to remove a portion of the resolution that gives the same potential tax breaks to owners of undeveloped land.

LaFave argued that lower tax assessments for undeveloped land would only help land speculators who will hold on to property at a low tax rate and then sell it when the value begins to increase.

"This isn't a land break," LaFave said, "it's a land bank for speculators. I'm all in favor of helping the farmers but this would only be a boom for speculators."

Senate rules prevent the measure from being acted on again for two days.

BYCAPPY DICK

The giant four-leaf clover shown in Figure 1 is a fun project especially for boys and girls who collect postage stamps as a hobby. The clover serves as a background for the back to back, exposing the green surfaces.

Equip the clover with a strong stem cut from poster board and glued in place. It is a good idea to strengthen the stem by cutting an identical piece (Figure 2) and gluing the two stems together as you did the clover.

From your collection of stamps, select the ones you wish to display on the clover and attach them to each side by means of the usual stamp hinges which are pieces of gummed paper made especially for mounting stamps in albums.

"Plant" the stem of the clover in a flower pot filled with pebbles and sand. Before doing this, you could decorate the pot with enamel paints as in Figure 1.

Mothers! If you need new ideas to entertain your children's scout meetings and birthday parties, you'll find 45 of them in Cappy Dick's "Birthday Party Stunts" booklet. To get a copy, send 50 cents in coin and a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Cappy Dick Booklets, P. O. Box 42877, Evergreen Park, Ill. 60642.

Tomorrow, how to make a coin bank from a change purse!

Help for consumers

Creative thinking explored

Home economics and consumer education educators from 10 northeastern Wisconsin communities gathered Saturday at Fox Valley Technical Institute for a consumer education workshop presented by a field home economist from the J.C. Penney Co. headquarters in New York City. Cynthia Murakami, keynote of the program entitled, "What's in an Issue?"

Murakami contends that in this age when man can walk upon the surface of the moon and a football game can be brought into the home with a flick of a switch that people may still be wearing horse blinders. She believes old habits are like these blinders which can act as obstacles which prevent a person from seeing beyond immediate realm of vision. With the complex problems and issues facing the consumers today, there is a need for new and meaningful approaches for everyday living and decision-making.

"In effect, we must kick old habits of conventional thinking which may have served as blinders and seek ways of more creative thinking to meet the challenge of making our world a better place," she says.

The educational program, which has been a tradition in the Fox Valley area for several years, was designed this time to generate this type of thinking. The educators were involved in a new creative problem-solving technique which they can use in teaching consumer issues.

They were encouraged to extend their vision and explore other points of view in relation to their own on rising food prices — the issue chosen to illustrate a creative problem-solving method.

Part of the program was a preview of new teaching materials prepared by the educational and consumer relations department of the company. Included were Forum magazine on "Creative Decision Making," insights into consumerism which focuses on "Women and Retail Credit," and a teaching unit on ethnicity entitled, "Ethnic Heritage: a Living Mosaic."

The company programs and materials are provided to educators as a public service. The northeast Wisconsin event was one of 80 being held in metropolitan areas across the U.S. this school year. Reached will be some 30,000 home economics and consumer education educators from all levels of school, college and universities education and Girl Scout professional staff.

P-C breakfast deadline Monday

Reservation deadline for the Post-Crescent women's department's ninth annual breakfast slated at 9:30 a.m. Oct. 25 at the Conway Motor Inn has been extended until noon Monday by request. However, nominations for the annual Woman of the Year Award must be in the women's department by 9 a.m. Monday.

The event offers club presidents and news chairmen an opportunity to talk with members of the newspaper about the handling of news items for their organizations. To be distributed will be informative manuals written and illustrated by staff members.

There is no charge and there are no invitations mailed, but clubwomen from the newspapers circulation area are invited to participate. Counties included are Outagamie, Winnebago, Waupaca, Chilton and Fond du Lac.

Each group is invited to nominate a member of its club for the Woman of the Year Award. A panel of three judges will make the selection Monday afternoon with the announcement to be made at the breakfast.

The nominations should be submitted in outline or essay form and consist of not more than 300 words which simply describe the specific contributions of the nominee to the individual club and as a result, to the cultural, educational, social and/or physical health of the community.

Emphasis should be placed on the immediate past year's activities. However, previous important contributions should be mentioned if they are relevant to the activities of the current year.

All nominees will be introduced at the breakfast.

Public card party

Monte Alverno Guild will sponsor a card party at 2 p.m. and again at 7 p.m. Sunday at St. Joseph cafeteria.

Hospital tour awaits Kaukauna first graders

KAUKAUNA — All first graders in Kaukauna's public and parochial schools will be given a glimpse on the inner workings of a hospital. Through the efforts of Kaukauna Community Hospital and the staff headed by Mrs. Dudley Dalton, it is hoped that the trauma of a child's first hospital experience will be eliminated.

After being welcomed by Mrs. Dalton, students will learn that hospital personnel are friends. Each child will be given a hospital bracelet and groups of seven or eight will tour the X-ray department, emergency room, laboratory and obstetrics department.

A demonstration on cast making will be given in the emergency room. According to Mrs. Harry McAndrews, auxiliary project chairwoman, it is hoped that the program will become an annual event.

Professor urges women to take initiative in concern

By ALICE K. HUCK

After commending Business and Professional Women's Clubs (BPW) for their 50-year start on women libbers in the fields of social, economic and political concern for women, Fannie Hicklin called for the added zip that will take the initiative for "the second mile."

Dr. Hicklin, a professor at the University of Wisconsin-Whitewater, addressed a joint meeting of Appleton BPW and the Fox Valley Chapter of the National Secretaries Association at a meeting Tuesday evening at the Embassy Motor Lodge.

Going beyond the BPW theme for the year of Economic, Social and Political Concern (ESP), Dr. Hicklin discussed "Extra Social Perception."

The theatre and speech communication expert recognized the role BPW has played in trying to change the picture of women to something more than that of someone responsible for budgets, banking and buying for the home. She said that BPW has done much to strike down the stereotype portrait of women as cheap, non-unionized menials who never strike, and whose main task has been to cook, scrub, wipe away tears and provide instant aspirin for hangovers.

Whether housewife or business-woman, Hicklin said, she has work to do and attitudes to change. Some of her suggestions included responsibility for full citizenship such as voting regularly, running for office, circulating petitions and sponsoring public forums.

She said groups such as BPW must continue their activities beyond the esoteric boundaries of business and through their scholarships to train women to be full persons.

Women have long had a true image of warmth, compassion, and understanding Hicklin admitted. We must not lose these qualities, Hicklin said. We must use them. "If we don't become, as a nation, more people-oriented, we will have more Watergate, more wars, more scarcities, and more malfunctioning machinery."

With the light touch, Hicklin the dramatist, went into a lengthy, fictional, frustrating battle of a woman with a billing computer, which, incidentally, the computer won.

The professor, who was named distinguished teacher of the year at the University of Wisconsin-Whitewater in 1970, the first woman to be so named, reminded the women that there is a great reaching out for the personal touch. She urged that the time we save with the many machines in business and at home be used "by extending ourselves socially."

"Send up your antennas to pick up the loneliness and despair of the people around you." Use your talents as foster parents, foster children to the elderly, as aides in institutions. Know, rather than judge unknowingly the welfare recipients, the ethnic minorities, she pleaded.

Dr. Hicklin added, "I wouldn't be standing before you tonight if John Quincy Adams had not had social awareness. He defended a group of slaves who had caused trouble aboard a ship. The descendants of these slaves formed the American Missionary Association, and that association founded the school where a little girl started in kindergarten and came out as a woman with a college degree. Dr. Hicklin went out from Talladega College to receive her M.A. from the University of Michigan and her Ph.D. from the University of Wisconsin.

Cakes are just for laughs

Mother and I have always had a generation gap.

It widened considerably when she went to the "Y" to take a course in cake decorating and I was at home trying to get mine out of the lousy pan.

While she was sitting around planting jelly beans in the icing and turning a sheet cake into a corral (complete with guitars and John Wayne), I was propping mine up with stale bread and doubling the icing to make it look taller.

"I don't understand," she said one day, "why you have that large crack right in the top of your cake."

"Because I planned it," I said irritably.

"For what?"

"I am going to put Evel Knievel on a motorcycle on one side of the crack and a Grand Canyon sign on the other."

"You may not be the best cook in the world," she said, "but you are certainly the most ingenious."

You are wrong, Mother!

Beside Dolores Montgomery of Mar Vista, Calif., I look like Julia Child.

In 1958, Dolores made a pizza. Something went wrong and it glazed itself. Dolores used part of it as an ash tray. When she graduated to cakes, people began to make mock of Dolores and laugh. "That's when I decided to give them something to laugh about."

Today Dolores is a sought-after cake baker. Her famous balloon cake is what it sounds like . . . a balloon covered with icing. When someone inserts a knife in it, it explodes and flies off the plate.

Her marble cake has real marbles in it, her coffee cake is a cake pan filled with coffee grounds and iced and her sheet cake is . . . what else? A sheet with a message in icing.

For her friends' anniversary, Dolores made them a 25-tier cupcake in which she strung 25 cupcakes on a curtain rod with a sparkler on top. According to the account in the Santa Monica Evening Outlook, she didn't remember until too late that the curtain rod was too long for her car and she had to carry the cake down the street.

Why does she do it? "You know, people aren't very nice to people these days. I just like to do some little thing to make someone laugh a bit. That's my reward."

I hope mother shares her philosophy. I am having her over this afternoon for sponge cake. Got the recipe from Dolores.

Templonic dance Saturday

First dance of the season is planned Saturday by the Templonic Dance Club. Dancing is scheduled from 9 p.m. through 1 a.m. at the Masonic Temple with refreshments to be served at 11 p.m.

Theme of the party is "School Days."

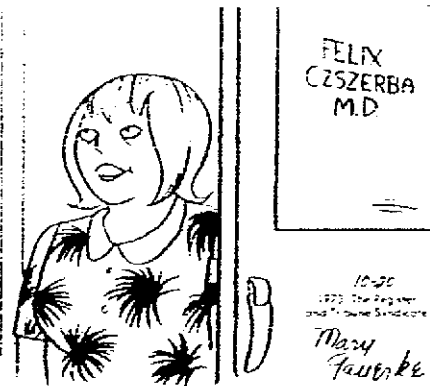

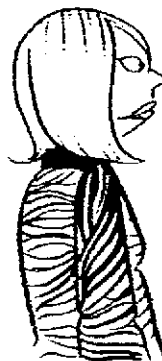

Concern for women

Before a talk on Extra Social Perception, Fannie Hicklin, Ph.D., seated, talks to Mrs. Helen Nolan, Appleton BPW president, left, while Mrs. James Kranzusch, president of Fox Valley Chapter of National Secretaries Association, and Mrs. Betty McGowan, first vice president, BPW, listen.

Ann Landers

A medication change needed

Dear Ann Landers: A few months ago you printed a letter from "Big Q" regarding her husband's loss of sexual ability due to the medication he was taking for high blood pressure.

She might as well face the fact that he will be on medication as long as he lives. His sex life is over. High blood pressure can be kept under control, but only so long as a person stays on the medication. I know because I've been waiting for five years for my husband to "liven up" and it hasn't happened.

So here I am at 48, climbing the walls and trying to behave myself. When I confided in the doctor, he said, "You should be glad he's still alive." Of course I am, but I'm—Not Dead Yet.

Dear N.D.Y.: It ill behooves me to tell your doctor how to practice medicine, but perhaps he doesn't know that a change in medication might eliminate the problem you describe. That doctor may be keeping your husband's blood pressure under control, but he hasn't done much for you. I suggest another doctor who might lead you and your husband to joint counseling. Many couples enjoy sex even though one (or both) are on medication for high blood pressure.

Dear Ann Landers: The letter signed "Clutched" brought back memories. Her boy friend had given her an expensive bracelet which she later learned belonged to his mother. How I wish I had seen that letter 12 years ago—and been mature enough to understand what it meant.

I thought it rather odd that the young man I was "spaced out over" (we called it "love" in those days) bought me a ring about four sizes too large. I also thought it strange that the ring didn't look new and he didn't bring it in a box, but carried it in his pocket.

Some months later when his older sister commented that she used to have a ring very similar to mine, I knew in my heart that he had taken that ring from her. But my mind refused to accept the fact.

After six miserable years I finally divorced him. I hope Clutched sees this letter and takes the hint. It would be easier now than if she marries him and has to put up with him in court, work two jobs, pay bills for things she never saw or heard of, and then finds out he's a hopeless liar and a crook.—Mrs. O.

Dear O.: I received at least a dozen letters from women who wrote along similar lines. (None is so blind as she who will not see.)

Dear Ann Landers: Thank you for telling the woman who couldn't tolerate "that spoiled, wild, uncontrollable brat" that his mother should have him tested because the child might be hyperkinetic.

We have such a child and I thank my lucky stars that a neighbor recognized the symptoms and urged me to take him to a doctor. I was worn to a frazzle by that boy. I spanked him, punished him and deprived him of things he loved best. But nothing worked. He was running a mile a minute, always into something, driving me crazy.

He is now on medication and behaves like a normal child. His grades have improved 100 per cent and I feel like a new person.—W. Va.

Smithsonian starts search

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Smithsonian Institution is looking for some second-hand clothing, but don't send just anything you find stashed away in the attic.

The sprawling national museum is seeking donations of such things as women's 1920s beach pajamas, men's Bermuda shorts outfits from the 50s, and men's golf suits from the '20s.

Already rich in such articles as old military uniforms and first ladies' gowns, the Smithsonian's division of costume and furnishings is trying to build up its collection of contemporary men's and women's fashions, dating from 1930 to 1970.

Items that are appropriate will be used in a new exhibition, "Suits for Everyone," scheduled to open next spring in the National Museum of History and Technology. Other articles will be assigned to the Smithsonian's study collections for use by scholars and others.

Curators have prepared a list of specific garments they would need, all of which must meet three general criteria.

They must be in good condition, must not have been altered after having been first purchased or worn, and must fall into a specific size range.

Smithsonian officials ask persons having clothing to donate to write. A list of garments needed will be sent on request by the Division of Costume and Furnishings, Room 4202 History and Technology Building, Smithsonian Institution, Washington, D.C., 20560.

Because the garments will be treated as historic documents, curators also would like as much background information as possible on each item.

This includes information on when and where an article was purchased, the price, the kinds of occasions for which it was worn and personal background on the owner.

Mayor James Sutherland has appointed Evelyn R. Ecker as United Nations Day chairman. The national observance is slated Wednesday and the mayor has issued a proclamation in conjunction with one issued by Gov. Patrick J. Lucey.

U.N. Day is an international observance marking the official birthday of the United Nations, Oct. 24, 1945.

A U.S. sponsored resolution was adopted by the U.N. General Assembly in 1947 stating that this date "shall henceforth be officially called 'United Nations Day' and shall be devoted to making known to the peoples of the world the aims and achievement of the U.N. and to gain support for the work of the organization.

In 1971, the General Assembly declared U.N. Day an international holiday and recommended that it be observed as a public holiday by all member states.

The event has been proclaimed every year since 1947 by the President of the United States under the leadership of a national chairman.

"One day out of 365 is hardly enough to work for public support of the U.N.," Miss Ecker said, "but U.N. Day does provide a rallying point to focus attention on the U.N. and its work. Lack of information and understanding of the U.N. and its far-reaching activities have caused an erosion of support by the public and its elected officials.

"The observance of this day can help reverse this trend," she continued, "and turn public apathy into public awareness and commitment. In turn, evidence of solid grass roots support if communicated to the policy and decision makers in Washington, D.C., will encourage more effective participation by the U.S. in the U.N."

War, poverty, pollution, crime, drug addiction, racism and skyjacking are all problems which cross national boundaries and call for international solutions. The U.N. is still working on these problems, but it will take more leadership from the President, Congress and the people to make its work more effective, she said.

More information about the U.N. as well as names of persons who will speak at U.N. Day programs may be obtained by calling Miss Ecker at her home or at Universal Travel. Fact sheets are available at the U.N. booth at Pierce Park through Sunday during Applefest celebration. This booth is being manned by members of Appleton's Business and Professional Women's Club.

Chairman Ecker will attend an official state observance slated Tuesday at Wingspread in Racine. Speakers will include an ambassador and four students who took part in the U.N. summer seminar at the organization's New York headquarters.

Run long suit only with ample discards

BY ALRED SHEINWOLD

Should you run your sure tricks first and then worry about other tricks or should you develop the extra tricks first? As a rule, run a long suit first — provided that you won't have any discarding problems. Perhaps one of the opponents will get into hot water.

West opens the six of hearts, and you play low from the dummy. East wins with the ace of hearts and returns the three of hearts to dummy's king.

You are now in position to run eight tricks: five diamonds, one heart and two spades. Should you take them or should you try to develop a club trick first?

is that the opponents may be shrewd enough to take the ace of clubs and four hearts.

TAKE THE DIAMONDS

The best plan is to run the diamonds at once. You can well afford to discard a club and a spade on the fourth and fifth diamonds.

As it happens, West runs into trouble. He must discard three times on the long diamonds. He can well afford to throw a spade and a club, but what does he discard on the last diamond?

If West discards a second spade, declarer can take three spade tricks. If West discards the ace of clubs, South gets three club tricks. If West discards a heart, he parts with the setting trick. South can afford to give up the ace of clubs and just three heart tricks.

Incidentally, West should see this coming when South begins to run the diamonds. If West calmly throws two spades and then the jack of clubs without any agony, South may go wrong. One of the rules in Poor Alfred's Almanac is: Calmness and tranquillity improve your bridge ability.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one diamond, and the next player passes. You hold: S-A-S 5 H-J 10 7 D-Q J 5 C-K Q 10 8. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two clubs, not 2 NT. Beware of a jump response in notrump when you lack a stopper in an unbid suit. ('A POCKET GUIDE TO BRIDGE' written by Alfred Sheinwold is available. Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Don't put it off; have those 'ugly' feet fixed

Dear Dr. Thosteson: This is in reply to Mrs. M.W.K. who wrote, "My feet are ugly and hurt."

Only recently I had surgery in a podiatry hospital and I wish she could see the patients who come in with "ugly feet" and painful bunions. And the look on their faces afterward when they look at their feet — they can't believe it! And they ask, "Why did I wait so long?"

Most of the patients are over 60 — my roommate's feet were ugly and deformed, but it was pain that forced her to see a podiatrist. After surgery she could hardly wait to buy a pair of sandals. Before, she was embarrassed to buy any kind of shoes.

Don't put it off. Your doctor will refer you to a good podiatrist. I suffered for 17 months and I'm doing very well now, thank you. Go do it! —Mrs. L.M.D.

It's human nature, I guess. Folks develop bunions (distortion of the joint of the big toe) and keep hoping that it won't just go away — which, of course, it won't.

They are forced into buying bigger shoes, and they lament the way their feet look. But they'll keep going on their painful feet until they can hardly hobble and have to have surgery.

And as Mrs. L.M.D. observes, the reaction after it's over is, "Why did I wait so long!"

Human nature!

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am beginning to have arthritis in my arms and it pops up other places. I don't want to be crippled when I am 55 or 60, but I know of some who are. Do you have any booklet on arthritis? —Mrs. J.P.

Indeed, yes. It is called, "How You Can Control Arthritis." Send me, in care of The Post-Crescent, 35 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for a copy.

In most cases arthritis can be prevented from crippling a person and there are certain things the patient himself can do — but he can't necessarily do it all.

If, for example, it's rheumatoid arthritis, which is the type that does the notorious crippling, you need your physician's help. The first step is getting a diagnosis of the type of arthritis involved and I most vigorously urge you not to neglect that first important step. Remember, all joint aches are not arthritis. Some joint disorders are crippling, others not.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have donated blood 10 times so far, and several times my arm was sore but nothing like this last time. My arm swelled up and got very sore and it left a dark blue bruise as big around as a teacup.

When the needle was first put in my arm it hurt and it took longer than usual to fill the blood bag. My arm is still blue and I donated a week ago. What caused this? Some nurses seem to be better with a needle than others. —C.S.O.

Well, I guess some nurses are better with a needle than others, but some little irregularity in the structure of a vein at some point can make a difference, too.

Your symptoms — pain, bluish discoloration and swelling — are most likely due to leaking of blood around the needle and into the other tissues. The symptoms should subside within two or three weeks leaving no harmful aftereffects. It is not dangerous and may not ever happen again. If symptoms persist longer than that, see your doctor.

A remote possibility is that the vein wall is irritated (a mild phlebitis). That also should subside. But to play safe, I would not use that same vein for quite some time.

What about constipation? Many can be relieved of it, both mentally and physically, by reading the booklet, "The Way to Stop Constipation." For a copy, write to Thosteson in care of The Post-Crescent, enclosing a long, self-addressed (use ZIP code), stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

tries issued a communique announcing that they would immediately cut production not less than 5 per cent of the September production.

"The same percentage will be applied in each month compared with the previous one until the Israeli withdrawal is completed from the whole Arab territories occupied in June 1967 and the legal rights of the Palestinian people are restored," the communique said.

Energy Minister Belaid Abdelsalah of Algeria, who presided over the meeting, emphasized later that the Arab governments would be free to make reductions of more than 5 per cent.

The more radical countries led by Algeria and Libya reportedly wanted tougher measures such as an oil boycott or nationalization of American interests in the Arab world.

The comparatively moderate measure of cutting production was favored by such conservative governments as Saudi Arabia and Bahrain. The other Arab oil nations are Abu Dhabi, Qatar, Iraq and Egypt. Syria also attended the meeting.

Last month the 10 countries produced a total of about 18 million barrels a day. The United States currently processes about 13 million barrels of crude oil a day, of which about one million comes from Arab countries.

The latest U.S. government figures for American monthly petroleum imports lists Saudi Arabia 19,794,000 barrels; Libya 6,125,000; Algeria 5,036,000; Kuwait 2,689,000; Tunisia 993,000; United Arab Emirates 3,102,000; Qatar 163,000; and Egypt 1,142,000.

Among non-Arab suppliers, Canada ships about 71 million barrels a month, Latin America 42 million, Iran 7.1 million and Nigeria 18.8 million.

Economist wins prize

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Harvard economist Wassily Leontief won the 1973 Nobel Prize for Economic Science today for invention of a technique used in the economic planning of numerous countries. The literature prize went to Australian Patrick White for his novels on pioneer life.

The Royal Academy of Science honored the 67-year-old Leontief for the development of the "input-output method and for its application to important economic problems."

Told of the award, Leontief said in Cambridge, Mass., "It's very nice. I'm in good company because already at Harvard there are many professors that have won the Nobel Prize. That's quite an accumulation."

Leontief, professor of economics at Harvard, is director of the school's economic research project, which he organized.

White, 60, was cited "for an epic and psychological narrative art which has introduced a new continent into literature."

White first became known outside Australia with his novel "The Tree of Man," a lengthy saga about pioneers in the Australian bush.

The novelist, who came from Australian sheep-farming pioneer stock, was born in England but spent the first 13 years of his life in Australia. He went to England for his education and service in the Royal Air Force and didn't return to Australia until after World War II.

Leontief has written four books on economics, including the 1966 "Input-Output Economics" which outlined the theories that won the award, and numerous articles in professional journals.

The "input-output" method is a technique of production analysis in practical use in some 50 countries around the world.

Leontief was born in Leningrad, Russia, and studied and worked in Germany and China. He came to the United States and Harvard in 1931. He is married and has a daughter, Svetlana.

During World War II, he was chief of the Russian economic subdivision for the Office of Strategic Services (OSS), the U.S. intelligence-gathering service.

territories occupied in June 1967 and the legal rights of the Palestinian people are restored," the communique said.

Energy Minister Belaid Abdelsalah of Algeria, who presided over the meeting, emphasized later that the Arab governments would be free to make reductions of more than 5 per cent.

The more radical countries led by Algeria and Libya reportedly wanted tougher measures such as an oil boycott or nationalization of American interests in the Arab world.

Gilda is no threat to American mainland

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Tropical Storm Gilda gained strength today as she moved toward the eastern tip of Cuba with winds up to 50 miles per hour, the National Hurricane Center here said.

Forecaster Joseph Pelissier said the storm was expected to pass over Cuba tonight but posed no threat to the United States on its northeastward course.

Gilda's rains have already drenched Cuba and caused flash flooding along southern mountain slopes in Jamaica.

Gilda is the seventh tropical storm of the season. Four have attained hurricane velocity of 75 m.p.h.

Monitor cuts Saturday

BOSTON (AP) — The Christian Science Monitor has suspended publication of its Saturday editions temporarily because of the newsprint shortage, the newspaper's editor says.

John Huse said Wednesday the paper would begin publishing Monday through Friday on Oct. 29 as long as the shortage continues.

A spokesman for the paper said the news content had already been reduced somewhat to offset the paper shortage. He said two pages were dropped from the international edition.

Strong earthquake in Pacific Ocean off Mexican coast today

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — The National Earthquake Information Service reported a strong earthquake today off the western coast of Mexico in the Pacific Ocean.

Jerry Dunphy, a spokesman for the earthquake service, said the quake was strong enough to cause damage in Manzanillo, 35 miles east of the quake's epicenter. No injuries were reported.

Dunphy said the quake measured 6.3 on the Richter scale.

The Richter scale is a measure of ground motion as recorded on seismographs. An earthquake of 6.3 on the Richter scale is considered severe and a 7 reading is considered a "major" quake, capable of widespread damage.

Slowdown in economy is predicted

WASHINGTON (AP) — A slowdown in the nation's economy next year has been predicted by three prominent economists.

"Both inflation and a stagnation in job opportunities," were predicted by Nobel Prize winner Paul A. Samuelson before Congress.

Paul W. McCracken, former chairman of President Nixon's Council of Economic Advisers, said a 1974 recession is a possibility, but that there are many buffers against it.

And Michael K. Evans of Chase Econometric Associates, Inc., said that "there is virtually no chance that the slowdown next year will not develop on schedule."

SAIGON (AP) — The United States advanced $5.6 million to the International Commission of Control and Supervision today to keep the Vietnam peacekeeping force from being grounded. Air America, the charter airline that ferries ICCS personnel around the country, has not been paid for months and gave the commission until Friday to pay its August bill of about $500,000. The four signers of the Vietnam peace agreement — the United States, North Vietnam, South Vietnam and the Viet Cong — have not agreed on a budget for the ICCS, and it is about $8 million in the red.

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Government troops today reopened Highway 4, Phnom Penh's road to the coast, only two days after Khmer Rouge insurgents cut it 40 miles northwest of Kompong Som, Cambodia's deepwater port.

MOSCOW (AP) — The commander of the Soviet Union's anti-aircraft rocket forces, Lt. Gen. Fyodor M. Bondarenko, "died tragically" on Saturday, the Defense Ministry newspaper Red Star reported today.

The term "died tragically" in Soviet announcements usually means an accidental death. The five-day delay in announcing Bondarenko's demise and the fact that he was a specialist in the anti-aircraft missiles that are a major part of the Soviet contribution to the Egyptian and Syrian arsenals aroused speculation that he was killed on one of the Middle East war fronts.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President-designate Gerald R. Ford says he knows of no potentially embarrassing incidents in his past uncovered by an FBI investigation. Ford said in an interview with The Associated Press that he expects an intensive investigation by Congress because his nomination is "a precedent-setting circumstance."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pentagon analysts say the 13-day-old Mideast war may be approaching a decisive point with the tank battle in the Sinai Desert. "In the next day or so, we should be able to tell if this is the decisive battle," said one official.

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — Eighteen persons in four cities fell ill after sampling orange juice offered by a woman who said she was doing a market survey. Police say the juice offered to shoppers in the central Florida area may have been spiked with hallucinogenic drugs. Many complained of hallucinations and all said they felt drunk with no sense of coordination. Two are in poor condition. Victims said an attractive woman in her late 20s asked them to sample two kinds of orange juice. "So far as we know everybody who drank the stuff has gotten sick," a Lakeland detective said.

DETROIT (AP) — A General Motors official has defended the auto maker's catalytic converters, a proposed antipollution system. Robert Sempel said Wednesday researchers critical of sulfate and sulfuric acid emissions from the devices have been using devices more primitive than the unit GM has developed. A government report says sulfate emissions from the devices may pose health problems in areas of traffic congestion. Converters resemble a muffler and use platinum to change carbon monoxides and hydrocarbons into harmless carbon dioxide and water vapor. "We don't have any reservations about our system," Sempel said.

Working couple is hurt by tax laws

If you and your boyfriend have been pooling your approximately equal paychecks to live together and have finally decided to be married, you surely won't permit tax considerations to discourage you from following through.

But you will find there is a "tax on marriage."

And whether or not you realize it now, the tax you will pay as husband and wife earning the same pay will be higher than the tax you have been paying as two single individuals living together without being married.

If you are a working wife filing a joint return with your husband who earns about the same amount of money as you do, you also won't, I'm sure, permit tax considerations to discourage you from continuing to hold that job.

But upon examination, you will find that the working-couple household is the target of flagrant discrimination in our tax laws.

Here's an illustration

And whether or not you realize it, just because you are holding a job, your type of household carries a heavier tax burden than your neighbor's, in which the wife stays home.

To illustrate, say you are two single taxpayers, each earning $15,000 for a total of $30,000. Each of you takes a $2,000 standard deduction and each of you, a $750 exemption.

Together, you pay a total tax of $5,405.

Now say you are a husband and wife, earning a total of $30,000 in any combination of paychecks. You, as a couple, get one $2,000 standard deduction and, as individuals, two $750 exemptions.

Your total tax on a joint return is $6,560.

The difference is a startling $1,155!

And this applies at all income levels, although the gap in tax liabilities "narrows" if you itemize your deductions," explains Leon Gold, chief tax expert of the Research Institute of America. "The discrepancies between the married couple's tax liabilities and the household of single persons also narrow in cases where the single taxpayer is a man earning considerably more than the woman."

Now let's go on and say you are the working wife in this $30,000 household—and it doesn't matter how much you contribute to the household's total income.

You do not need me to document how much bigger are your household expenses than those of the non-working wife in the $30,000 household next door.

You usually spend more for food because you eat out so much more and, when at home, rely more on expensive

Fish to blame

IZMIR, Turkey (AP) —The Izmir Zoo is undergoing a population implosion and officials blame pollution in the industrialized Gulf of Izmir, once one of Turkey's best-loved beauty spots.

Birds and animals fed on fish caught in the gulf are definitely producing less young than they should, veterinary officer Rahmi Tokoz said, "while it is a fact that birds and animals fed on meat are not affected."

economic-social problems of the woman in America's society today.

How it came about

The mathematical quirk which in effect penalizes couples for being legally married came about because Congress was trying to give the single taxpayer a much deserved break. To help soften the discrimination against the elderly spinster particularly, Congress voted a special rate for single taxpayers in the Tax Reform Act of 1969.

For entirely different reasons, it boosted the maximum standard deduction to make this deduction more worthwhile.

The two moves combined to favor two single taxpayers with two standard deductions over two married taxpayers with one standard deduction.

As for the bias against the working wife, that arises first from the inequities inherent in income-splitting and second from the fact that income-splitting doesn't distinguish between married couples with one spouse working and with two spouses working. Our tax laws were written at a time when it was normal for the husband to work and the wife to stay at home.

Today, the norm is the working couple—not the one-earner couple. Our tax laws in this regard are obsolete.

On no grounds can these injustices be defended. Moves to eliminate them are, as Pechman says, "long overdue."

Hortonville homecoming this weekend

July 4th at Pierce draws fire

Ald. Thomas Kamps (8th) claims his constituents are fed up with Fourth of July celebrations at Pierce Park. He wants to see the park and recreation commission schedule them somewhere else.

"There are two other parks where it could be held," he wrote the commission in a letter Wednesday. "Erb Park and Telulah Park. I believe that this can be done and alternate between them."

Kamps told a reporter that the number of complaints against the city's practice of holding the annual fete at the park in his ward has increased over the 17 months he's been an alderman from the 8th.

"It's not just the Fourth of July celebration that my constituents have to put up with," he wrote. "Their driveways are blocked by cars, trash over their lawns and some vandalism."

Kamps wants the commission to take immediate action on his request.

"I think the residents of the 8th Ward have been very patient considering this park has been used for almost all important functions for as long as I can remember," he noted.

Kamps said there have been repeated statements that thought was being given to moving the celebration to another site, but nothing has happened. Langedyke Park has been mentioned as a possible site, once it is developed.

"That could be ten years from now and I think some action should be taken now," Kamps wrote. "Why does your commission feel it always has to be held at Pierce Park?"

Park department records show that Fourth of July celebrations have been held at Pierce since 1946, but Recreation Supervisor Lloyd (Bud) Koehnke says they probably go back further than that.

The department's intent is to transfer the celebrations to Langedyke, once that park is completed. Koehnke said both Erb and Telulah parks would be unsuitable for the Fourth of July spectacles now put on annually by the Appleton Jaycees.

Koehnke acknowledges that there have been consistent neighborhood complaints against the celebration. He believes Pierce is not big enough for the celebration, but it is all the city has at this time.

Speener hearing set for Friday

A preliminary hearing for Eugene K. Speener, Outagamie County Health Center superintendent, will be at 8:30 a.m. Friday in County Court Branch 1 with Waupaca County Judge A. Don Zwickey presiding.

Speener is charged with three felony counts of misconduct in public office.

Zwickey was named to the case this morning by the state court administrator's office.

Dist. Atty. John Ensley said about seven witnesses, most of them health center and county officials, have been or will be subpoenaed for the hearing.

Among them will be Clerk of Courts Elizabeth Davis, who will be asked to turn over a transcript of the John Doe investigation dealing with the health center. Charges against Speener stemmed, in large part, from Doe testimony which began July 12.

If Zwickey rules that Ensley can use the transcript in prosecuting Speener, the secret proceedings as they relate to the health center could be made public.

Others being subpoenaed are County Executive Alvin E. Woehler, County Clerk Arthur Hoolihan, County Treasurer Peter Berg, health center accountant James Mulholland, Mary Lou Roberts of Green Bay, a former personal secretary to Speener, and Sylvester Esler, president of the health center board of trustees.

Speener is accused of accepting a television set from a New York firm in return for his order of chemicals for the center, billing personal, long distance telephone calls to the county and giving Mulholland an unauthorized $123.50 raise.

Speener, 48, is free on bond.

St. Thomas More has open house next week

St. Thomas More Catholic School will have an open house from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Monday through Friday, which is American Education Week.

The school is unique in that it is the only elementary school to be accredited by the Independent Schools Association of the Central States.

Another step toward a village hall

COMBINED LOCKS — A new village hall came a step closer to reality Tuesday when the committee of the whole of the village board met with the planning commission and approved the purchase of land for the project.

Selected was an 11-acre tract south of Wallace Street, slightly east of the post office, owned by Appleton Papers. After the village board approves the site, an effort will be made to negotiate the sale. The firm has indicated a willingness to sell, but also retained rights on a seven-acre tract next to the post office for possible future development as a shopping center.

Village officials said that solid inquiry into building a shopping center

City to study benefits of county health plan

BY FRANK CHURCH
Post-Crescent staff writer

The Appleton City Council unanimously approved a study of potential benefits for city residents under a countywide health department, but not before making sure that a county department setup, as well as the city county format favored by the city board of health, was included.

Before the Wednesday night vote, Mayor James Sutherland said proposals for countywide health administration could mean a "significant change" in the way health services are administered in both the county and city.

The initial study resolution, as drawn up by Sutherland and approved by the Board of Health Wednesday, calls for a finance and health department study of present and future health services on city and county levels and the ramifications of a loss of "complete city self-determination" if a city county health department were created.

Under an amendment sponsored by Ald. Judith Winzenz (12th) and passed with a 13-3 vote, the resolution eventually called for a study of the ramifications of both a county and city-county health department.

Sutherland told aldermen that the initial resolution carried with it "implicit" board of health favor for a city-county, rather than county, health department. The reasons, outlined by board of health chairman Donald Day (19th), were better representation and control for the city under a setup that would guarantee it membership on the health board that would administer the countywide program.

Ald. Winzenz said she didn't know which would be better for the city, but she wanted to see both types of departments studied. Those voting "no" to her amendment were Aldermen Ralph West (20th), Rayburn Kaufman, Jr., (4th) and Lois Mirtles-tadt (6th), who is also a member of the board of health.

The board of health wants to complete the study in time for a meeting Oct. 31, when it will formulate a policy stand before meeting with the county health committee on Nov. 2.

The board of health wants to take a stand before the county board votes on a resolution already drawn up by the county health committee that would call for creation of a county health department with no guaranteed city membership on a seven-person board of health.

Day said that proposal is "strictly county oriented" and would leave the city little voice in determining future health department activities.

Some aldermen fear a diminishing of present city health programs if the city merged with the county, which they feel has not shown a commitment to health program development in the past equal to the city's.

Day pointed out, however, that there is pending state legislation that will provide up to 75 per cent reimbursement of health program expenses for county programs if the city does not join with the county; it will have to continue to foot almost all of its own bill.

"We don't have too much to say if the county adopts this, do we?" said Ald. William Errington (15th).

Besides the financial benefits, Day said a countywide health department also would have the broader base it would need to move away from its "very conservative, very traditional" health program to something more progressive. If it is a county-controlled department, however, he admitted this might not happen.

"You bet it won't," said Ald. Walter Kalata (2nd). "Why not maintain the status quo?"

A concomitant problem that Day said would be investigated also is what will happen to city residents living in Calumet County if a health department covering only Outagamie County is created.

Kidnaping reported at St. Pius

Appleton police were continuing their search today for a man in his mid-20s in connection with a reported kidnaping Wednesday afternoon at St. Pius X School.

Police said an 11-year-old boy told them he was grabbed by the man in a washroom at the school about 1:30 p.m. and dropped off about 50 minutes later near the intersection of Oneida Street and Northland Avenue.

Police gave these details of the incident:

The boy went to the washroom and got scared when he saw the man in one of the stalls with a small box, which the boy apparently figured might have been a time bomb. When the boy started to leave, the man grabbed him, keeping him in the washroom for about 15 minutes.

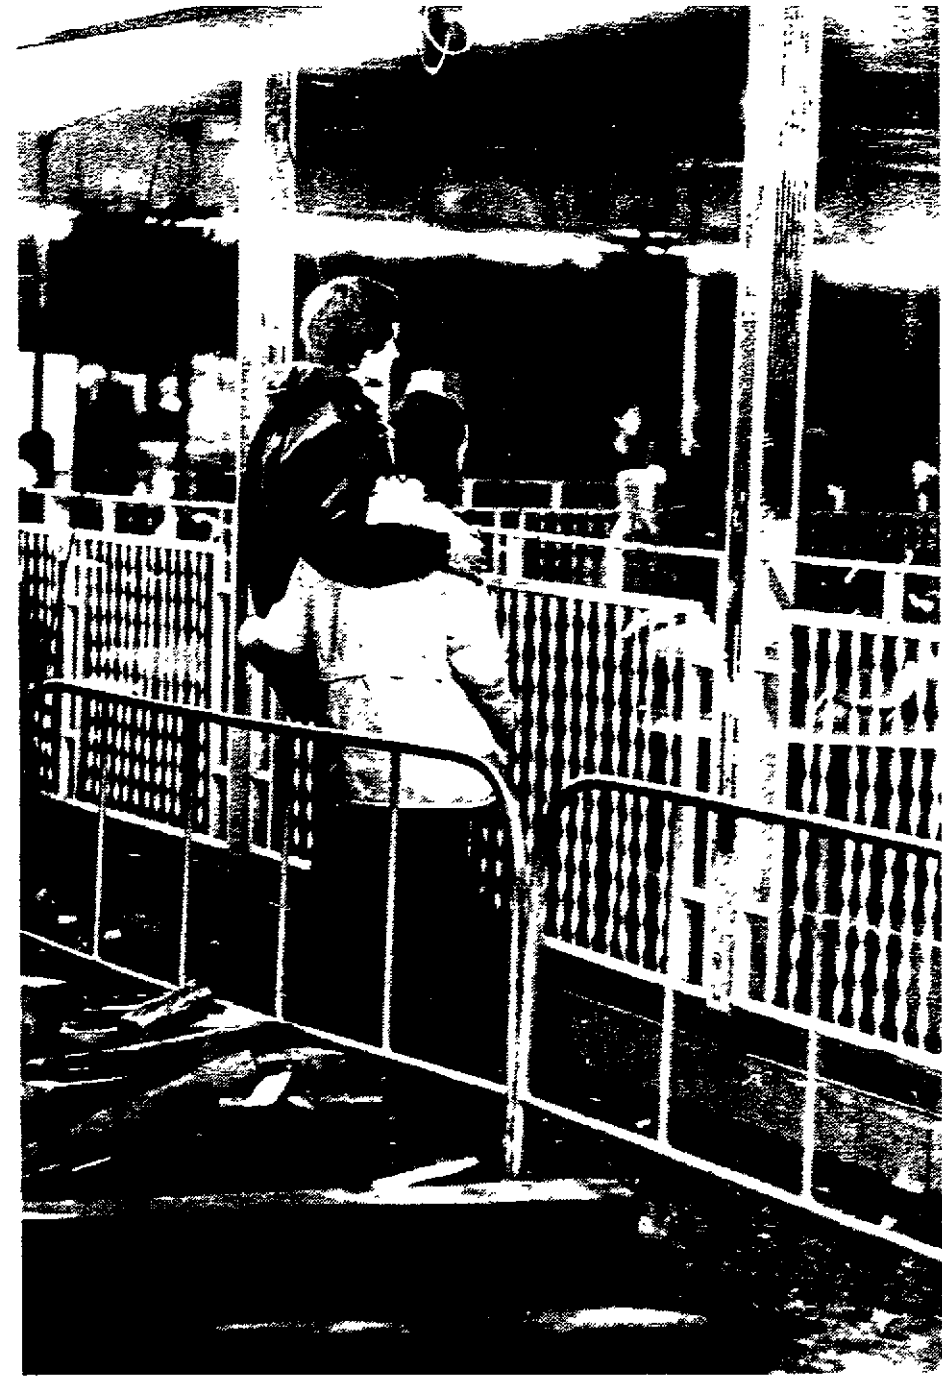

The two took several more minutes leaving the building unnoticed, where they got into the man's car and drove to the north side of the city. When the boy was dropped off, the man reportedly told him, "I'm going to call your principal tomorrow and she'd better watch out or something will happen."

The boy, who was not harmed, then ran home.

The man was described as 6 feet tall, with a mustache, thin build and thick black hair and wearing a red sport coat, red tie, blue trousers and hiking boots.

Committee defers highway budget for further review

A $2.6 million Outagamie County Highway Department budget for 1974 was reviewed by the finance committee Wednesday and then deferred for further review with the highway commissioner after highway committee representatives were unable to provide detailed explanations.

If the highway budget is approved without change, it would require a local tax levy of $941.850. However, town requests for county bridge and can be submitted up to the time of budget adoption and that could change the total slightly.

For 1973 the highway operations required a tax levy of $963.037. However, the county board, in an almost unprecedented move, had chopped $230,000 from requested construction projects to get down to the final figure.

Among the projects cut were grading and base work for the extension of County Trunk CE (E. College Avenue) from State 55 to County Trunk Q ($300,000), reconstruction of the intersection of Oneida Street and County Trunk OO to include traffic signals ($350,000), and traffic signals at the intersections of County Trunk OO with County trunks A, F and N at a cost of $15,000 each.

All of those projects are back in the budget for 1974 with an additional $19,000 added to the County Trunk CE cost.

Total anticipated expenditures for 1974 are $2,595,731. This is itemized as $89,430 for administration, $420,000 for county trunk highway construction, $22,000 for a county trunk bridge, $263,350 for county trunk paving, $296,900 for winter maintenance, $5,000 for capital outlay, $466,349 for county trunk maintenance, $429,154 for state highway work, $633,072 for work on town and village roads, and $90,475 for town bridge aid.

County trunk maintenance is paid entirely through state road aids and does not require a local levy. Work on state roads and on town and village roads is 100 per cent reimbursed and the town bridge aid cost is split between the local unit of government and the county.

The highway budget apparently reflects some of the pressure exerted last year by the county board on county trunk construction.

Last year the highway department requested $652,000 for county trunk construction, but was cut back to

Woehler predicts some unions will strike county

Outagamie County can expect to be struck by some of its employee unions next year.

This prediction was made this morning by County Executive Alvin Woehler during the finance committee review of anticipated contract settlements.

Committee members had questioned the need for a provision for salaries and wages fund of $375,000 as requested by Woehler in his executive budget. When contract settlements are reached the money is transferred from that fund to the various department accounts.

For 1973 the county had budgeted $250,000 in the provision for salaries and overran the account by $55,000. However, Woehler agreed that most of the overrun was the result of hiring additional people in the sheriff's department during the year and funding their salaries from that account. Most of last year's contract settlements averaged about 4.5 per cent.

Woehler said that based on the current payroll, a 4.5 per cent settlement would cost the county about $259,000, including add-ons for fringe benefits.

"They won't recognize that we have a budget limitation," Woehler said of the unions. "Everyone is begging for the maximum settlement of 6.2 per cent." His prediction of strikes indicated, however, that the county would not agree to the maximum settlement allowable under federal wage and price guidelines. But, Woehler did not indicate that any negotiations had broken down.

There are five unions representing most of the county's 700 employees.

Supv. Harold Miller finance committee chairman, said he agreed that past provision for wages funds "have been a little tight," but questioned whether the fund should be increased to a point beyond what the settlements will be. "The more you put in the fund the more they (the unions) will ask for," he said.

Woehler said they could probably pull $25,000 out of the fund without hurting anything, "but we have more than that to worry about."

The tax levy now stands, Woehler said, at $235,000 above the state limit.

Democrats to get look at proposed new rules

Outagamie County Democrats plan to introduce a major change in party rules to members Saturday during a day of social and fund-raising activities.

The party executive committee agreed after intense debate over procedures Wednesday night to submit a proposed new party constitution during a dinner Saturday featuring U.S. Rep. Les Aspin, Racine. Action on the document is scheduled for Nov. 28.

If adopted, it will provide for nomination and election of party officers at separate meetings and change terms of office to two years rather than one, which would coincide with long standing practice in the rival Republican Party.

Saturday's activities include a 2:30 p.m. reception featuring Aspin and Gov. Patrick Lucey at the apartment of the party chairman, Lawrence Longley, 35 Woodmere Court. Lucey is expected to attend the early part of the reception. Aspin also will address an anticipated 130 to 140 persons at the 7:30 p.m. at Colman Hall on the Lawrence University campus.

The county party expects to net more than $300 in profit from proceeds of the dinner and refreshment sales at the reception and a predinner cocktail party, Longley said.

Longley and his predecessor as chairman, James Dana, debated procedures for adopting the new constitution and its provision for elections.

Dana questioned the provision that officers could be nominated only at a nominating meeting at least 10 days before the biennial election meeting under the new constitution. The rules would ban nominations from the floor at the election meeting.

Longley explained that the proposal was aimed at making sure all members participating in the election had advance notice of the identities of candidates. Under present rules, he said, it is possible for a group of strangers recruited into membership for the purpose of "packing" an election meeting to elect a candidate unknown to the older membership.

Dana argued that under the new rules, the more important meeting is the nominating session. But he said the arrangement "works against human behavior" since most persons would expect the election meeting to be the one at which the important action and decisions occur.

He predicted trouble when members attending an election meeting find they are unable to nominate additional candidates. Dana said he will see how the new system works, if the constitution is adopted, and offer an amendment to allow nominations at election meetings if it appears necessary.

Dana also pointed out that the present constitution requires changes to be acted upon at two subsequent "regular" party meetings. He worried that the dinner Saturday might be challenged as a "regular" meeting by someone unhappy with the new rules or officers elected under them.

Longley assured Dana that the dinner will be considered a regular meeting.

Police & fire beat

Mrs. Kristy A. Hinkle, 18, 2516 E. Peter St., was taken to St. Elizabeth Hospital for treatment of first- and second-degree leg and foot burns plus minor back burns after she was burned by hot shortening at her home about 12:45 a.m. today.

Police said the woman had been heating the shortening when it caught fire. Her husband attempted to remove the container from the stove and in the process spilled the grease on his wife, who then slipped to the floor and received the additional burns.

The fire was out when firemen arrived.

KIMBERLY — Mrs. Donald Vissers, 1220 E. Third St., reported to police that she discovered a .22-caliber bullet lodged in an interior wall of her house. The bullet had passed through a screen and window and caused damage to the plaster.

She said the incident probably happened over the weekend when hunters were shooting in the Town of Buchanan. The matter was referred to county authorities since hunting is going on outside the village in a restricted area.

No damage estimate was given after a 28- by 24-inch front door window was broken Monday at Canada Dry of Appleton, 1131 E. Wisconsin Ave. Entry was not gained into the building.

Three persons were injured in a two car accident at the intersection of Bluemound Road and Lawrence Street, Town of Grand Chute, about 8:10 p.m. Wednesday.

One driver, Wayne H. Shattuck, 35, 744 Dartmouth Lane, Neenah, complained of a bruised leg, while the other driver, Daniel R. Gerrits, 20, 1217 E. Fremont St., Appleton, received a possible head injury. Gerrits' passenger, Patricia M. Weber, 19, 145 Arthur St., Kaukauna, sustained head and possible internal injuries.

Police said the Gerrits auto pulled away from a stop sign in the eastbound lane of Lawrence and struck the side of the Shattuck vehicle, headed south on Bluemound.

Banta plans $2.5 million in expansion

MENASHA — George Banta Co. has scheduled $2.5 million in capital improvements for its Midway plant in 1974.

A new web offset press and a binding machine head the list of equipment additions. The four-color press will be the 18th web offset at the plant. It will be delivered in December, with start-up slated for February. The Banta Division's fifth perfect binder will trail the press installation, but should be in service in May.

Vice President Stanley Severson said the new equipment, when it becomes fully operational on a 24-hour basis, will increase employment by 30 or 40 workers. However, it may be several years before the machines are producing at full capacity.

The Menasha-based Banta Division enjoyed record sales throughout 1973, with particularly heavy demand from its traditional educational clients. A spokesman said the capital expenditures are being made ahead of the original plans, in response to future customer needs.

Little Chute board backs continuation of Riverview

LITTLE CHUTE — The village board Tuesday night approved a resolution sponsoring and supporting the continued operation of Riverview Sanatorium and General Hospital and will forward it to County Executive Alvin Woehler and the Outagamie County Board.

The resolution notes that during its existence, the institution has provided efficient medical and old-age programs for citizens of the county and predominantly the immediate area; that families of patients can visit at the convenience of patients; that the location has aesthetic value; that there is no commingling of mental and medical patients; and that it not only paid water and sewer tax to the village but provided employment for area people.

The resolution also points out that the present county hospital cannot absorb the patients from Riverview without a substantial sum spent on renovation; that cost per capita for Riverview is $5 to $9 below that of the Outagamie County Health Center; that fire service to the institution is adequate; that Riverview is approved by the Department of Health and Social Services and meets standards.

The resolution not only asks for continued operation of the facility, but that an independent and nonpolitical study committee be formed to prepare long range projections as to adequacy of existing facilities for health and old-age requirements for the county and make findings known to the county board.

A second resolution adopted supports a proposal which calls for Amtrack train service to be established between Green Bay and Milwaukee.

The board also adopted an ordinance which will require building contract to assume responsibility for clearing all debris and waste building materials from building sites. Formerly these materials could be set out for collection by village crews.

The ordinance also makes builders responsible for mud and other debris which may accumulate on sidewalks or roadways as a result of construction. Mud from truck tires or other equipment left on city streets will be cleaned up at the expense of the contractor.

A certified survey map of a 150- by 150-foot parcel of land to be sold by Retail Development Corp. was accepted. The parcel of land is part of a larger tract owned by the corporation. Village ordinance requires approval of the board before any parcels may be sold. The land is located south of E. Main Street. A commercial firm is interested in developing a new business in the area.

Recycling plan to be presented at Oshkosh

OSHKOSH — Legislation that would combine Outagamie, Winnebago and Fond du Lac counties in a recycling region will be presented at 8:30 p.m. today at the Winnebago County Courthouse ground floor meeting room.

The program is being conducted with the University of Wisconsin Educational Telephone Network, a conference system permitting listeners throughout the state to ask questions about proposals.

Hearing set on closing of account

A Circuit Court hearing on a writ of mandamus from two Outagamie County Board supervisors seeking the closing of what they allege is an illegal county account today was set for 9 a.m. Nov. 19.

Circuit Court Judge Gordon Myse granted the continuance at the request of Corp. Counsel William Schuh who also asked that the action be dismissed as it applies to the county board.

Schuh argued that legal service should have been made on individual members of the board and not on the board as a unit. Only then could the county board be a proper party to the suit, Schuh indicated.

Attorney Paul Horvath said it was necessary to serve only the board and not the individuals.

Myse asked for briefs on the issue, to be submitted within two weeks.

Supvs. John R. Schreiter, vice chairman of the county board, and Fred Rehfeldt initiated the suit in an attempt to have the court order discontinuance of a special provisions for structural improvements account.

They want the $190,000 balance in the account transferred to the general fund.

Named as defendants in the action were Outagamie County, the county board, Executive Alvin E. Woehler, Clerk Arthur Hoolihan and Treasurer Peter Berg.

Schreiter and Rehfeldt hired Horvath.

Myse continued proceedings until after the November county board meeting because he did not want to compel the county to foot the expense of having to call a special board meeting that would be needed to provide directives to Schuh, who will represent the defendants.

Second look at staffing insisted

A finance committee recommendation that new manpower positions placed in the annual city budget be waived from second-time council approval Wednesday was defeated by the Appleton City Council 13-5.

Several aldermen who disapproved the recommendation cited the need to give aldermen a second look at positions they might not have adequately considered when they originally placed them in the budget.

"One single item could be missed very easily at budget time," said Ald. Roylance Pointer (14th), suggesting that the attrition freeze committee, committee of jurisdiction and council deserve a second look.

Several other aldermen agreed, and Ald. Glenn Thompson (13th) pointed out that he still hasn't read two pages of the 1973 budget document because of the press of budget deliberations and the complexity of the issues that confront aldermen at budget time.

The finance committee's recommendation was an effort to eliminate a step it thought unnecessary. New posts are okayed by the council at budget time. Why, committee members argued, should they have to be approved again when department heads ask permission to hire?

The move would have also left the attrition freeze committee authority only to review replacements sought for vacancies in existing positions. It no longer would have jurisdiction over new positions.

Members of the finance committee pointed out that even with the elimination of the re-approval step, objecting aldermen could ask for reconsideration of the new position if they wished.

Ald. Walter Kalata (2nd) said the attrition freeze committee was established to scrutinize all new positions, as well as replacements. That has changed recently, he said. "Boy, we haven't eliminated very many jobs," he said.

Four members of the finance committee, plus one, stood against the rest of the council in voting for the committee recommendation. They were committee members Ralph West (20th), Beverly Wieckert (11th), Donald Day (19th) and Rayburn Kaufman (4th). Ald. Judith Winzenz (12th) joined them. Aldermen Robert Safford (7th) and Finance Chairman Delmar Schwaller (16th) were absent.

In other action, the City Council:

— Referred a recommendation for a $50 per month salary increase for aldermen, and an end to almost all fringe benefits, back to a special committee on aldermen salary and fringe benefits for further study.

The council's original order was for the committee to return a recommendation by Wednesday, if possible.

Ald. Edward Maloney (9th) asked for the referral, saying he did not have a chance to appear before the committee when it formulated a recommendation.

— Defeated a motion to reconsider council action taken earlier this month prohibiting grocery stores from selling beer between 9 p.m. and 8 a.m. The vote was 13-5, compared with a 19-1 vote approving the original action.

The move to reconsider was made by Kalata after complaints that the new restriction will force beer drinkers to pay a higher tavern price after 9 p.m., that it discriminates and that the issue should be put up for a public referendum, if nothing else.

The district manager of two local Stop-N-Go stores wrote the city objecting to the change, and a Green Bay television station was also investigating the move after receiving a letter from a disgruntled resident.

"I'm sure this is not the last we're going to hear of these," said Kalata, as the welfare and ordinance committee reviewed the objections.

Kalata said he wanted council reconsideration to give those who hadn't been heard a chance to speak. He voted for the ban on grocery store sale of beer after 9 p.m. at the last council session.

Aldermen Peter Beckley (10th), Kalata, Fred Rehfeldt (18th), Winzenz and James Schreiter (5th) voted for reconsideration.

Parents complain about Plamann

A special Outagamie County Board committee investigating Plamann School heard parental opinion considerably different from that voiced at the first investigative session.

The Wednesday meeting of the committee, appointed by Board Chairman Russell DeLaHunt in September to look into the Plamann program for the mentally handicapped child, had apparently been set up in haste, for it had not been posted.

According to George Schroeder, chairman, the committee of three wanted to give every parent the opportunity to voice his opinion "so that we get the overall picture."

The initial meeting, also unposted, was in September and nearly all of the parents present expressed satisfaction with Plamann.

Wednesday the situation was reversed. Groups of parents showed up at the meeting to voice their complaints of the school which is partly funded by the Outagamie County Board.

Schroeder, Emmett Root and Joseph Kasperek make up the special committee. The committee is to work with the board of handicapped children, composed of three other county board members, but acting as a separate unit in administering the funds and programs at Plamann. The handicapped board consists of H.H. Helble, Mrs. Barbara Steger and Edward Spiering.

There was a barrage of complaints about the school made by the parents present, but the conclusion that could be drawn from the two hour session was that the parents felt there is a lack of communication between the home and the school.

The complaints included a wide variety of communications. A lack of parent-teacher conferences, which most felt was more than necessary for this type of a child was one problem. A lack of news and literature about the educational programs and a lack of information on health aspects, which all felt was an important part of a school for retarded, since many have physical handicaps along with mental ones, was also brought up.

The latter was disputed by the county nurse who told the parents that a nurse goes out to the school twice a week to check the children and if anything was wrong, it would be reported.

That, too, was disputed by some parents, who said they had not even been notified when their child was hurt during school hours. There were those parents, however, who said they had always been notified of any problems and were in contact with the nurses. It was obviously an area the committee expects to look into.

The parents felt that this area is serious enough to warrant a full-time nurse at the school, which may be considered for recommendation by the committee.

Other areas of complaint included the programs themselves. The teacher pupil ratio, which most felt was too large; age groupings, which the parents thought was not necessarily a good idea, and the instruction itself were included.

"My child is no longer in the school because I took her out. If I needed a babysitter, I would have hired one or I can do it at home," one father said. He added that his child goes to a private institution where the ratio is 1 to 1 or 1 to 2 and the child is "very happy and is learning."

He was seconded by others who had taken their child out of Plamann to send him or her to either a private or a local school. One of the mothers said that she had hired a tutor to work with her child twice a week.

"I can see the difference, but should this be necessary?" she asked.

The feeling that "it is about time our children get something out of life" will be tested in the courts, a few of the parents promised Wednesday, saying that a case will be coming up in the county. It will be the first in the state to test the new law.

There were other complaints aired about the school by many individuals.

"I don't think anyone who has not had a retarded child can possibly understand what we go through," one mother said. "I know I didn't. And for years we had to live and accept what was provided. But the new law is changing that."

"Why do we have to fight and fight to get an education for these types of children?" another mother asked. "Why is everything provided for the normal children, who don't need it as

Highway budget . . .

$422,000. For 1974 the request is $2,000 less.

Supv. George Kroes, highway committee chairman, said that most of the county roads were "in pretty good shape" in terms of construction and that future emphasis probably would be on the paving and maintenance programs.

This is somewhat reflected in the budget request of $263,350 for paving for 1974. This is $73,000 more than requested for 1973.

Delays due to the wet spring and summer is reflected in the figures for work done for local units of government. The $633,072 in the budget reflects work already done and paid for. This is nearly $200,000 less than done the previous year.

Kroes, in answer to a question, said he was sure that there were projects started by the highway department that will have to carry over into 1974, but he did not know which ones. "You will have to get that from Brownson (Highway Commissioner Clarence Brownson)," he said.

One of the complaints leveled last year was that the highway department had at least a full year's work carried over in uncompleted projects and that there was enough construction work to finish to keep the highway crews busy without scheduling new construction.

This was what had prompted the $230,000 cut from the construction program.

In addition to the projects which had been totally eliminated, the board had cut $60,000 from reconstruction of County Trunk W. Supv. Eugene Kloes, a member of the highway committee, told a reporter that the work had been completed without the need of the extra money.

The only new construction project requested for 1974 is County Trunk TT from Hortonville to U.S. 10, a distance of 4.35 miles. The estimated cost is $240,000.

Waupaca man killed in crash

Dwight L. Potter, route 5, Waupaca, was killed in a one-car accident early today on State 22 about two miles south of Waupaca.

Potter was believed to have been alone. His car reportedly veered off the highway, smashed into abutments and flipped over three times. The car apparently was southbound. Further details of the accident were unavailable.

Potter's death was the fifth traffic fatality of the year for Waupaca County and the second in 48 hours.

Along with two other traffic deaths Wednesday, it brought the state's toll to 902, compared with 931 a year ago. The other victims were:

Arthur Armstrong, 55, of Munster, Ind., killed Wednesday afternoon when his car left U.S. 41 two miles south of Oshkosh and turned over in a ditch.

Joseph Michel Jr., 31, of Franksville, died Wednesday at a Milwaukee hospital of injuries he suffered Monday in a car-truck crash on U.S. 45 in Milwaukee.

College tests slated Saturday at Xavier

The first of five American College tests to assist students planning to go on to secondary schools, will be offered Saturday at Xavier.

The other four will be Dec. 8 (sign-up date is through Nov. 12); Feb. 23, 1974 (Nov. 5-Jan. 28); April 27 (Jan. 21-April 1), and June 15 (March 25-May 20).

The fee is $6.50. It will take 3½ hours to complete. The information is of value to students and counselors in planning educational programs.

Chamber trio at LU Oct. 29

The Lincoln Center Chamber Society Trio will make its Midwest premiere at Lawrence University Monday, Oct. 29. Tickets for the concert by the world famous trio of the Chamber Music Society of Lincoln Center in New York City are on sale now at the Lawrence University box office. The concert will be at 8 p.m. in Harper Hall of the Music-Drama Center. It is being sponsored at Lawrence by Lawrence's Special Events Committee, Sigma Alpha Iota music sorority and Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia music fraternity. Members of the trio are Gervase DePeyer, clarinet, Paula Robison, flute, and Richard Goode, piano. DePeyer has been principal clarinetist of the London Symphony Orchestra since 1955 and has made several world tours with the orchestra, often appearing as a clarinet soloist. Paula Robison is featured in New York appearances with the Chamber Music Society each season, and is a frequent participant in the Spoleto and Marlboro festivals. In 1964, she won top prize in the Munich competition and in 1966 she became the only American flutist to win first prize in the Geneva International competition. Richard Goode, in addition to being pianist for the Lincoln Chamber Society, has also served as musical director for the successful "music and poetry" concert series at Finch College in New York City. In addition to readings by well-known poets, Goode frequently appears as soloist on the Finch College programs.

TV Scout It's Blue vs. Koosman

7-10 Channel 5 — The fifth game of the 70th World Series will be telecast from Shea Stadium, New York, where the Mets, National League champions, host the Oakland A's, American titlists, in the fifth game of the best-of-seven competition. With the series even at two games each, the two teams will use lefthanders in hopes of gaining an important one-game advantage. Vida Blue will be on the mound for Oakland and Jerry Koosman will pitch for New York.

6-7 channel 38 — Advocates debate the issue of RUSSIA FRIENDLY TRADE OR COLD WAR? offering well argued, opposing reasons on whether to grant Most-Favored-Nation status to the Soviet Union. The pro side, considering the present energy crisis, looks to Russia's North Siberian gas supply to ease our problem. Opposing forces argue that Soviet harassment and suppression of leading intellectuals and interference with the emigration of Soviet Jews cannot be condoned by conducting relations with the guilty nation.

7-8 Channels 2-7 — The Waltons asks the Question: when is a thief not a thief? Answer: when he's a friend of the Waltons. Yancy (Robert Donner) steals chickens — or does he? — and then

In true Perry Mason style, defense lawyer names real murderer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The witness could have been reading from an old Perry Mason script. And defense attorney James Epstein could have been the lawyer who made Erle Stanley Gardner's mystery stories famous. Epstein dropped a Perry Mason style courtroom bombshell Thursday when the surprise witness was called to stand and confessed to a murder for which another man was on trial. Epstein fired his first question to the witness, Manuel Gonzales. "Did you shoot Hager Garrison at the Lakewood Club in Bellflower?" "Yes," was the calm reply of Gonzales, already convicted of murder-robbery at a Culver City bar. William Dale Miller, on trial for murder in the death of a bar manager in suburban Bellflower during a 1969 hold-up, showed no emotion as the question was answered. Gonzales testified in Superior Court that he decided to admit his part in the slaying because he "didn't want another man going to prison for something he didn't do."

Tiny gorilla rejected by parents rescued

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — An infant gorilla is living apart from his parents after being rejected by its mother, San Diego Zoo officials say. Curator Clyde Hill said he wanted to leave the baby alone with its parents for a few days after it was born Monday. But the mother, a 9-year-old gorilla named Dolly, began ragging the 6 pound infant around like a rag doll and then ignored it altogether, forcing zoo officials to break up the family. It was only the second gorilla born at the zoo and the 35th born in captivity, Hill said.

'Miracle drugs' no longer work

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Several "miracle drugs" that have reduced disease in the past may not be able to cope with new strains of gonorrhea, typhoid, malaria, tuberculosis and shigellosis, the Center for Disease Control says.

The diseases have grown immune to antibiotics such as penicillin, ampicillin, streptomycin, tetracycline and other drugs, recent studies by the CDC show.

"Thank goodness we have not seen any resistance developed in cholera or bubonic plague," says Dr. Eugene Gangarosa, head of the CDC's epidemiology branch.

Doctors at the Atlanta-based center already have noted that a new typhoid strain in Mexico does not respond to any kind of drug treatment.

Medical personnel in Mexico have been fighting a raging typhoid epidemic for more than two years and their problems have been compounded by the drug-resistant typhoid.

And the bacteria that causes gonorrhea has shown the ability to develop resistance to penicillin to the point where the new dosage level is about eight times the amount originally required to combat the malady.

Although Gangarosa says plague and cholera have not developed resistance, the possibility of their doing so in the future cannot be ruled out.

The CDC has had to change its drug treatment recommendations several times in the past 20 years or so to keep ahead of insensitive diseases.

CDC experts do not rule out the possibility that drug-resistant diseases could become major problems in this country.

Gangarosa points out that a typhoid epidemic that occurred last year in Dade County, Fla., emphasizes the need for disease fighters to keep a constant vigilance around the world.

Staub's bat upstages A's internal battles

NEW YORK (AP) —Something finally has taken the play away from the Oakland A's internal battles—Rusty Staub's bat.

The A's, who have grabbed most of the headlines lately with juicy stories of clubhouse unrest, at last took a back seat in the World Series to the New York Mets Wednesday night.

Providing some news of his own, Staub dismissed a painful right shoulder and knocked in five runs to help the Mets beat the A's 6-1 and square the best-of-seven series at two games apiece.

"I did a lot of work during batting practice and did several things to adjust for my sore shoulder," said Staub after hitting a three-run homer and two-run single.

He wouldn't say, but whatever it was that Staub did, it worked wonders.

"Under the circumstances, my performance was unbelievably satisfying," said Staub, who also had two hits and a walk in a 4-for-4 night. "When you've been playing in the big leagues for about 11 years and always wanted to play in a World Series, well, this is a great, great feeling."

Staub's shoulder has been a daily topic since last week, when he hurt it while making a stunning catch in the National League playoffs against the Cincinnati Reds.

He still can't throw well—but, obviously, he can hit. Even if it is to the opposite field.

"I hit a fastball," he said about the clout over the left-center field fence at Shea Stadium off Ken Holtzman in the first inning. "I hit the ball perfectly so that it could carry that way. I knew the wind was gusting out there."

"I thought, though, that it would fall between the fielders. I was kind of surprised when it went over the fence. I was running as hard as I could because I wasn't sure it was out. It was the first ball I've hit out since the shoulder injury—and obviously, the wind helped."

The blast was the beginning of the end for Holtzman, the A's winner in the opening game of the World Series last Saturday. After the 20-game-winning left-hander walked John Milner and gave up a single to Jerry Grote, he took a shower.

Staub's two-run single highlighted a three-run fourth inning that was mere icing for young Jon Matlack's first World Series victory.

The power-throwing left-hander limited the A's to merely one unearned run and three hits before leaving with a stiff shoulder after eight innings.

"I learned a little about the A's in the first game and used it to my advantage tonight," said Matlack, the losing pitcher in game No. 1.

Matlack considered Wednesday night's assignment more important than the opener last Saturday in Oakland "because we were down two games to one Wednesday night and would have been just about out of it with a loss."

He encountered rough going in only one inning—the fourth, when the A's scored their only run with the help of a New York error.

After Joe Rudi struck out, Sal Bando reached first on Wayne Garrett's boot and went to third on a single by Reggie Jackson. Then Bando came home as Gene Tenace bounced out to short.

Matlack, last year's Rookie of the Year in the National League, couldn't finish, though. His arm stiffened and he had to watch the ninth inning from the bench.

"My shoulder was really tight out there," said Matlack. "It impaired my throwing. It took something off my fastball because I couldn't come around over the top — I had to throw three-quarter arm."

Ray Sadecki pitched the ninth, but gave New York Manager Yogi Berra some anxious moments before nailing it down. He loaded the bases with two out before striking out Bert Campaneris as most of the paid $4,817 fans roared their approval.

One of the few who wasn't roaring was sitting near the Oakland dugout—A's owner Charles O. Finley. For a change, he wasn't the center of attention.

Finley had started a cause celebre earlier in this Series by "firing" Mike Andrews for making two costly errors in Sunday's 10-7 loss to the Mets in Oakland.

Although Andrews was back in uniform Wednesday night after Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn ordered him reinstated, the A's were still smoldering with unrest. Oakland Manager Dick Williams was so fed up with the situation that he reportedly decided to quit his job after this World Series.

Andrews made his first appearance since Sunday, in a pinch-hitting role, and grounded out in the eighth inning. He received a standing ovation from the sympathetic fans when he stepped to the plate and a hefty reaction after he went out.

"It was great—just great," Andrews said about the crowd's hurrahs. "I don't think I've ever had cheers like that before. I should have acknowledged it, I guess, but I had only thought when I went up to bat and that was to get a hit."

The series continues tonight in football-like weather as New York's Jerry Koosman faces Oakland's Vida Blue in another duel of left-handers.

'Satisfaction' is hard to describe for Rusty Staub

NEW YORK (AP) — Rusty Staub is man who lives with pain—"there is only a small fraction of time there is not a hurt somewhere"—but today he found it all worthwhile.

"This is the greatest thing that ever happened to me—I can't explain the thrill I have experienced," said the 200-pound right fielder of the New York Mets, hero of a 6-1 victory over the Oakland Athletics Wednesday night that tied the World Series at two games apiece.

"People were getting down on me. I could just feel it. They wondered whether I could throw off all those injuries. They wondered if I was breaking apart."

"Now to have a night like this—to prove something which I never doubted—gives me a satisfaction that is hard to describe."

A stab of pain shot through his shoulder every time he swung the bat and prickles of pain jabbed his once shattered hands but Rusty came through for the Mets.

He slashed a home run over the 371-foot mark in deep left-center field in the first inning, scoring three runs. He walked the next time up, then rifled consecutive singles into right, field, center field and left-center field.

The final accounting gave him credit for driving in five of the Mets' six runs and a perfect 4-for-4 evening at bat. A left-handed batter renowned as a pull hitter, he sprayed his shots to the opposite field.

"It was the result of a lot of work, a lot of concentration, a lot of batting practice," he said. "I just adjusted to the conditions."

The conditions were a badly bruised shoulder, suffered in the fourth National League playoff game against Cincinnati at Shea Stadium when a shot by the Reds' Dan Driessen sent him banging against the right field wall.

Last season Staub's hands—his livelihood—were so damaged through pitched balls and operations that many wondered if the end of his career might close at hand.

After playing the second game in pain at Oakland, Staub flew back to New York on the press plane—overnight, some 12 hours ahead of his teammates—and staged a solo workout at Shea Stadium.

"I can't explain what I did, but I adjusted," he said. "I studied what I would have to do to compensate for my shoulder. Pain? I'd prefer not to talk about it."

He hit three home runs in the playoff series with Cincinnati, like Wednesday night's blow, all off left-handers.

"I never knew whether I could put one out of the park or not," he said. "Not since I ran into the wall have I been able to put one out of the park—not even in batting practice."

Staub said he was "shocked and disappointed" when he was traded to the Mets by Montreal in 1972. He thought his world had collapsed. Now he realizes his fears were unfounded.

"This is bigger than I thought it could ever be," he said. "I have never played on a team that played .500 ball before. Now it is wonderful to be a part of this Mets' team, everybody working as a unit, everybody so eager and confident."

Will Packer runners be irresistible or will Ram line be immovable?

GREEN BAY — The late Vince Lombardi had a basic if slightly unusual theory on how to win football games.

Paraphrased, it went like this: Attack the enemy at his strongest point immediately rather than the weakest. If successful — and Lombardi never considered the alternative — it presumably would shatter the enemy's confidence. The rest, he logically concluded, it would then be easy.

The present Packers, fighting for survival in the NFC Central race, will find themselves in a poetic position of test this premise against the unbeaten Rams in Los Angeles Sunday afternoon.

For some time, it has been evident that the running game, constructed around John Brockington and MacArthur Lane, is the Packers' most potent offensive weapon.

Ability to contain the run, on the other hand, is the long suit of the Ram defense, currently No. 1 against rushing in the National Football Conference.

This combination of circumstances clearly will be sending the irresistible force against the immovable object in Memorial Coliseum, a happy place these days with the Rams off to a glittering 5-0 start.

Needless to say, the Packers would prefer to be at optimum strength for the classic confrontation, but Brockington is still favoring a knee hurt acquired in last Sunday's 10-10 tie with the Kansas City Chiefs. He is confident, however, that he will be able to answer the bell.

There can be little question that Brockington's healthy presence will be required if the green and gold are to establish ball control against the Rams, who have held opponents to an average of just 79 yards rushing over the first five games.

That opposition, incidentally, includes the Dallas Cowboys, who also have a stout running game.

The secret of the Rams' success against the rush?

Melcolm Snider, who is likely to be stepping in for the injured Bill Hayhoe at offensive left tackle Sunday, can offer a cogent explanation.

"After looking at film of their games against Atlanta and Dallas today," he said, "what seems to be the case is that the people they play wind up with second-and-long against them."

"They shut you off on first down, so people are winding up with second and-10, second-and-16, second-and 17, that type of situation."

"It's been very effective for them. If you don't come back strong on second down, it puts you in a tough position on third down. Then they just tee off, like every good defense. They've got you where they want you — over a barrel."

Drawing a mental bead on Sunday's showdown up front, Snider pointed out, "That's our game, too. If we're going to run the ball as much as we'd like to, we've got to do something on first down. You can't be second-and-10. It gives you only two downs to make 10 yards."

Savvy rather than size, as represented by Kansas City's Chiefs in the Packers' most recent venture, is the key to the Rams' dominance against the run, the former Stanford star said.

"They're a smart defensive team," he reported, "and they play well together. The front seven, the front four and the linebackers, are very well coordinated."

"Plus they hustle. Any mistakes they make they more than make up for by scrambling around. Merlin Olsen always has been known for that and now he has three guys in the front four (Jack Youngblood, Larry Brooks and Fred Dryer), who are doing the same thing."

"It's not like facing Buch Buchanan and Wilbur Young of the Chiefs, who are really huge. These guys don't impress you that way. They impress with their hustle and scrap. The ends are quick — they have a good matched pair of ends and tackles — and the inside people put a lot of pressure on."

"And they have good steady linebackers. Isiah Robertson is the best known but the other ones — Ken Geddes and Jack Reynolds — are solid people, too."

"It's a big test — and a big game — for us," he said. "They've all been big games, really. These guys are good — no doubt about it. But I can't see that we've played any slouches in the last few weeks. But that's the way it's going to be every week."

"We'll just have to wait and see on John Brockington," Coach Dan Devine announced following the workout, a session attended by bone-chilling cold for the second day in a row. "We may not know until Saturday."

Brockington who has moved into second place in the NFC rushing statistics, was withheld from practice along with wide receiver Jon Staggers, who was expected to return to his post today.

Devine also indicated Scott Hunter will be his starting quarterback. "If Scott shows continued improvement physically, he'll start Sunday, the Packer coach said. Hunter suffered a bruised cartilage in the sternum against Kansas City.

Bucks triumph

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Visitor Jim Barnett was the most spectacular figure on the court Wednesday as the Milwaukee Bucks opened their National Basketball Association home season with a 109-95 victory over Golden State.

"Barnett is so darned quick he goes right through us," Milwaukee coach Larry Costello said. "It seems he always does that against us."

The 6-foot-4 guard led game scoring with 28 points, including an 18-point outburst in the third quarter that fired the Warriors from a 52-39 deficit to within six points of the host club.

But the Bucks held usually hot-scoring Rick Barry scoreless in the third frame, regained command in the final period and led 103-86 with three minutes to play.

Guard Lucius Allen, one of the Bucks assigned to pursue Barnett, described his opponent's evening of speed as "inspired ball."

"He had the hot hand and the green light," Allen said. "We didn't have guys back quickly enough because he was releasing as soon as a shot was made."

Barnett responded: "You have got to play inspired against them because they have great personnel. Otherwise you get buried."

"I try to pick my moments, fill the lane and go one-on-one if I can," he said. "I try to create offensive situations."

Barry, who finished with 18 points, was asked about his third-quarter shut out.

"Shutout? When a man is scoring 13 points, what do I have to shoot for?" Barry said. "We were doing all right but we kept it up seven or eight minutes then let up."

During one stretch of the third period Golden State outscored Milwaukee 13-4. Milwaukee, now 3-1, drew less than 9,200 for the home opener, about 1,000 below Milwaukee Arena capacity.

Star center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar led Buck scoring with 22 points, but was outscored by Golden State's Nate Thurmond 19-11.

Bob Dandridge, Barry's court counterpart, added 21 for Milwaukee and Allen had 18.

Terry Driscoll, a promising young star, contributed 14 points, including six-point spurge that padded the Bucks' fourth-quarter recovery.

Terror-Spartan duel part of area 'decision weekend'

BY JOHN L. PAUSTIAN and DAN VANDERPAAS Post-Crescent staff writers

Appleton West's football Terrors have already destroyed the "Oshkosh complex" once this season. (They beat West's Indians). Can they do it a second time?

Terror success or failure Friday night against Oshkosh North in Titan Stadium will be a major determinant in the disposition of Fox Valley Association championship laurels. This is one of a series of critical games as six Fox Cities area conferences head into the most decisive weekend of the season. Among the other "biggies" for area teams are these:

—State rated Little Chute and Manawa shoot for unbeaten seasons and at least shares of the Central Wisconsin Conference title, as the Mustangs play host to Weyauwega (Saturday) and the Wolves entertain Bonduel (Friday).

—Omro and Ripon, also state rated, meet head-on Friday, with the winner annexing at least half of the East Central crown.

—In one of three Olympian headlines, Brillion welcomes Freedom (Friday), with the Lions seeking to gain either a clear title or a co-title.

—Fox Valley Lutheran, carrying hopes for a share of the Fox Valley Christian crown, visits St. Mary Central (Saturday) for the week's top Fox Valley Christian clash.

—Clintonville, still mathematically in the Bay Conference race, takes on front-running West De Pere Friday.

—Kaukauna and Neenah, the only remaining FVA title aspirants besides North and AHS-W, risk their chances Saturday. The Ghosts entertain Menasha, while the Rockets visit Appleton East.

If North's Spartans win the confrontation in Oshkosh, they will be assured of at least a share of their second straight title. If the Terrors win, they'll take a half-game lead over North, and possibly Kaukauna, but no titular decision would be possible until the final weekend.

"It's a psychological thing," says Terror Coach Paul Engen of playing an Oshkosh school. He explained that Oshkosh has a tradition as a "football town" and this at times has worked to the advantage of North or West. When AHS-W stopped OHS-W, 7-0, a few weeks ago, it marked the first time in six years the Terrors had beaten any Oshkosh team in football. In its inaugural league season (1972), North whipped AHS-W, 19-0, as Steve Schmid gained 130 yards rushing.

Besides the psychological aspect, Engen is concerned about North's size. "They're a big team," noted Engen. "They'll keep driving on the ground, with their two running backs, then all of a sudden, they'll pop a few short, play-action passes." North has averaged about 52 running plays per game (for a league high of 960 yards) while throwing only about seven times a game. Schmidt is the FVA rushing leader, with 545 yards.

AHS-W quarterback Kevin Donahue is the league's fourth most productive rusher (261 yards). He has passed only 31 times in all but has completed 15. Engen praised the total effort of the West offense in last week's tie with Neenah. "The whole group came of age," said the coach. Ends Andy Kangas and Jim Markwardt were cited for outstanding defensive play. The closest Engen came to divulging plans for the game was when he said, "We have to go out and hit people. We don't have a whole lot of finesse."

North has scored the most points in the FVA ($7), while AHS-W has yielded the fewest (34). North ranks first in overall team defense and second in offense, while AHS-W is second defensively and third on offense.

Kaukauna puts its No. 1 offensive rating (an average of 246.8 yards a

Gary Nielson jolts 702

Gary Nielson got off to a slow start, but once he got his strike ball working there was no stopping as he rolled a 702 national honor count in the Industrial League at the Super Bowl Wednesday night.

It hardly looked like "national honor time" when Gary opened with a 167 game, but he vaulted to a 279 in his second effort and socked a 256 in the third line.

In the 279 count, Gary started with a spare and then strung nine strikes in a row before finishing with another spare. He then started his third game with five strikes in succession.

Gene Dannecker also had a hot night in the Industrial League as he pounded a 680 series with games of 234 and 233.

In the Fraternal League at Hahn's

Lanes, Norm Joecks had a 238 game and Randy Hanson fired a 646 series. Joecks finished with a 634 and Randy had games of 231 and 225. Norm Ellefson fired a 235 line.

Hank Beyersdorf jolted a 244 game and Larry Koeller had a 641 series to highlight action in the Merchants League at the 41 Bowl last night. Larry had a 238 game with the leading series and Hank finished with a 587 series. Jack Stingle had a 237 game and 621 series.

The Tri-City Men's League at Sabre Lanes was sparked by Keith Gehring with a 638 series while Karl Maertz had a 242 singleton and 626 total. Ken Martin had 232-630 and Vince Bressers fired 232-621 while Fred Weber had 617.

Bill Roeck's 637 series topped the Veterans League at the 41 Bowl and Elroy Kalies shared the honors with a 237 game and 593 series.

Industrial League, Super Bowl: Hank Mader 613, Bala, Egger 225-609, Royo, Unienbrock 599, Dick Mulroy 586, Dave Brooks 584, Pete Clausen 226-581, Lou Moss 581, Fred Plomann 578, Alott Hoffersperger 576, Leroy, Cnr. Stollerson 576, John Naabefeld 241, Earl Bauer 235.

Tri-City Men's, Sabre: Bob Grimmer 603, Norm

Steve Ziemer rolled a 601 series on games of 204, 193 and 204 to lead the Appleton High School-East bowling league at Sabre Lanes.

Top game was the 224 fired by Gary Grassl and he finished with a 526 series.

For the girls, Lori Hannemann had a 191 game and Debbie Kolosso rolled 187-460.

Other leading scores included Sue Gerhardt 171-422, Cindi Deeg 160, Gary Mainz 194-540, Dan Williams 198-549, Paul Hannemann 222-545, Jim Radcliffe 195-504, Kevin Helling 203-508 and Randy Kielbasa 193.

Johnson to rejoin Giants

NEW YORK (AP) — Quarterback Randy Johnson, who quit the New York Giants last week because he was unhappy about not playing, was scheduled to return to the fold today.

Johnson conferred with Wellington Mara, president of the National Football League club, and Coach Alex Webster by telephone Wednesday and then call Webster late Wednesday night to say he would return, a Giants spokesman said.

The spokesman said Johnson would not return in time for practice but was expected to appear at the daily team meeting.

"I told him I couldn't make any promises," said Mara of his calling requesting Johnson to rejoin the team. "I told him Webster had said if Randy had been there Sunday he would have played."

Norm Snead, who won the starting quarterback job after a hot rivalry with Johnson in exhibition games, had a poor game Sunday in the Giants' 21-3 loss to Washington.

Snead has been play quarterback all the way in each of the Giants regular-season games in which they have won one, lost three and tied one.

Maple Leafs, Black Hawks win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Eddie Johnston once was in the Montreal Canadiens' organization, and although he now is playing for their major Canadian rival, the Toronto Maple Leafs, hs still has the utmost respect for this former club.

He also takes the utmost pleasure in beating them.

"The Canadiens are considered the New York Yankees of hockey," the veteran goalie said Wednesday night after kicking out 27 shots as Toronto won its first game in Montreal since Jan. 30, 1971, beating the defending National Hockey League champions 5-3.

"You have to play well against them," said the 37-year-old Johnston, a Montreal native. "You really have to be 'up' against them to win."

Black Hawks 5, Canucks 0

Goalie Tony Esposito registered his second shutout in four games and Cliff Koroll and Dennis Hull each scored twice, leading Chicago to its 5-0 romp over Vancouver.

The Black Hawks' tight defense limited the Canucks to 23 shots, but Esposito needed to make standout saves on Andre Boudrias in the first period and Bobby Schumatz in the final minute to preserve his shutout.

Rangers 4, Blues 0

Ed Giacomin stopped 21 St. Louis shots for his 44th career shutout and Rod Gilbert collected his 271st career goal, helping the New York Rangers beat the Blues 4-0.

Gilbert was back on the ice after a one-game benching for being one hour late for a team meeting.

The victory was the third against one tie for the unbeaten Rangers and lifted them into first place in the East Division.

If your tire fails during the guarantee period, return it to us and we will, at our option, repair your tire, or make an allowance based on the original purchase price, excluding applicable Federal Excise Tax, toward the purchase of a new tire. We will allow 100% of the original purchase price, excluding applicable Federal Excise Tax, during the 100% allowance period. Thereafter, we will allow 50% or 25% of the original purchase price, excluding applicable Federal Excise Tax, toward the purchase of a new tire. Federal Excise adjustment allowance will be made on the basis of the percent of the original tread remaining. This guarantee is not transferable. It is only for private passenger cars or passenger station wagons.

Board acts to meet student needs

LITTLE CHUTE—Board of education members Tuesday night approved programs designed to better meet the needs of the public high school since enrollment there has increased with the closing of St. John High School. A plan presented by Principal Monte Hottmann where departmental staffs were created and a department chairman was named was approved. A new student council charter also was okayed.

Formerly the student council was a loosely run organization, but with more students it is expected to have more of an impact on school operation. After approving the charter, a new constitution will be developed. This is expected to be presented to the board in November.

A request from the industrial arts department to construct a garage, suitable for use by the school system, on property adjacent to the school was approved. The building will be the major class project for the year. The board also approved procedures to be followed for the renting of school facilities and rules governing use of such facilities as recommended by school Superintendent Mark Stone.

Board members toured kindergarten rooms and discussed programs and aims with teachers of these pupils. Approval was given to holding parent conferences on the high school level this year. The first will be in mid-November. Previously the district held conferences on lower levels, but this will be the first try on the high school level.

The board approved participation in a Cooperative Educational Service Agency No. 8 Title 6 special education grant at a cost of $250 per year. This will permit the district to have help in determining students in need of special assistance under the new state program which requires districts to help handicapped students from ages 3 to 21. An agreement was entered into with Fox River Boiler Works, Appleton, for repair of the boiler in the elementary school at a cost not to exceed $1,900. Members were informed by Stone that John Lawrence, a representative of the state Department of Public Instruction, would serve as liaison officer between the district and state department.

Reassessment done; review board to meet

LITTLE CHUTE—Reassessment work in the community has been finished and a meeting of the board of review has been scheduled from 7 to 9 p.m. Oct. 25 in the village hall. Persons desiring to file objections to their assessments may file objection forms and make an appointment for an appearance before the board of review with the village clerk.

Weather forecast

Cooler weather is forecast Thursday for the Northeast and northern Plains and warmer weather is expected for the Southwest and south-central areas. Showers are forecast for most of the Pacific coast, New England and southern Florida. (AP Wirephoto map)

Slight warming expected

Fox Cities residents turned up the heat last night as temperatures hovered in the 30s and 40s in the area, but the chill shouldn't be as bad in the near future as a high pressure system brings daytime temperatures in the 50s and 60s.

The U.S. Weather Service has predicted fair and warmer temperatures with lows in the upper 30s. It will be partly cloudy and warmer Friday, with a high in the low 60s.

Winds will be out of the Southwest at 5 to 10 miles per hour tonight.

Saturday's outlook is for variable cloudiness with a low in the low 40s and highs in the lower 60s.

The Appleton area only reached a high of 48 while the low hit 35. No precipitation was recorded.

At midmorning, the Wisconsin Michigan Power Co., reported winds out of the north-northwest at 8, relative humidity at 69 per cent and the dew point at 33 degrees.

Sunset today at 6:05 p.m. Sunrise tomorrow at 7:14 a.m. The moon is at Last Quarter today and rises tonight at 11:53 p.m.

The planet Saturn has now begun a slow westward movement among the stars that will continue until late in February.

Saturn rises tonight at 10:09 p.m.

Kimberly debaters take first place in tourney at St. Norbert College

KIMBERLY — High school debaters opened competition over the weekend by capturing first place in the St. Norbert College Invitational tournament at De Pere. They finished with a 13-5 record.

Coach A. L. Peckham said 12 persons from each team were required to compete for one trophy rather than compete on various levels with a trophy for each level.

Members of the Kimberly team debating the affirmative were Sue Davies, Debby Van Nuland, Bill Wipich, Jeff Huth, Robin Malsavage and Claudia Tourville. Debating for the negative side were Mary Cotnoir, Sue Jansen, Juli Binsfield, Tim Handrich and Mike Reeves.

The debate topic this season is: "Resolved: That the federal government should provide a program to employ all employable United States citizens living in poverty."

1995 date for fusion power use

WASHINGTON (AP) — Recent research developments give the United States an excellent chance of harnessing the H-bomb fusion reaction — and producing commercial nuclear power from it by 1995, at least five years earlier than projected.

This was disclosed Wednesday by Dr Robert L. Hirsch, chief of the Atomic Energy Commission's controlled thermonuclear research program, in a report to the AEC's White House-appointed general advisory committee.

Harnessing the reaction that gives the hydrogen bomb its bang would mean that virtually limitless and pollution-free electricity could be produced from the hydrogen in the waters of the world's oceans.

But Hirsch told the top-level scientific group the nation would have to invest up to $10 billion by 1995 to achieve the goal he said now appears achievable.

Hirsch told the committee, "we expect that fusion could be commercial around the year 1995," instead of sometime "after the year 2000" as projected only a year ago.

Big tank battle could settle all

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Cairo newspapers reported today the biggest tank battle of the war was still raging in the Sinai Desert as Israelis and Syrians probed one another's defenses in tank and artillery skirmishes on the Golan Heights front.

Unconfirmed reports circulated in Washington and other world capitals that Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin was heading a Soviet mission now in Cairo. The New York Times reported in a dispatch quoting diplomats in the

Gunmen storm building in Lebanon, seize 60

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Gunmen stormed a building housing several American and foreign banks today, seized up to 60 hostages, and threatened to kill them after a two-hour gunbattle in the heart of Beirut's financial district, police said.

The hostages, including foreigners, were trapped in the six story building, which houses the Bank of America, Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co. of New York, the Chemical Bank of New York, the Deutschebank of West Germany and the Lebanese Banque de l'Industrie et du Travail.

None of the hostages were identified. The gunmen called themselves members of the "Lebanese Socialist Revolutionary Movement" and gave authorities a 6 p.m. local deadline — noon EDT — to meet three demands:

—The release of all Palestinian guerrillas imprisoned in Lebanon.

—A $10 million ransom from one or more of the besieged banks "to support the guerrilla movement and the Arab war effort against Israel."

—An airliner to fly them to Algeria or South Yemen.

A note thrown out of one of the bank's windows said, "We shall kill all the hostages if our demands are not met by this deadline."

A second note said, "We have wired the bank with enough explosives to blow it up completely, killing all the hostages as well as us. We shall set off the explosives at 1800 local time unless our demands are met."

The building was surrounded by police and Lebanese army troops.

The gunmen set a 6 p.m. local deadline for their demands to be met. This would be noon EDT.

"We shall kill all the hostages if our demands are not met by this deadline," they said in a note pushed out of a window of the bank building, which was encircled by police and Lebanese army troops.

UFOs just lot of hot air

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Weather research balloons have prompted a new rash of reports of unidentified flying objects throughout the South and UFO-bugged authorities are bracing for more reports.

At least two offices of the National Weather Service reported separate launchings of weather balloons Wednesday.

A huge balloon, 150 feet in diameter, was launched at Palestine, Tex., and authorities say it drifted over Mississippi at a constant 30,000-foot altitude. The weather service at Montgomery, Ala., also reported launching a balloon to an altitude of about 85,000 feet.

Many of the sightings occurred after the sun had gone down but a spokesman at the National Weather Service in Macon, Ga., explained the sun's light would reflect off the balloon long after dusk because of the high altitude of the object.

Meanwhile, officials at Eglin Air Force Base in Florida have announced high atmospheric rocket tests today and

Oil cutback may have impact elsewhere

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The proclaimed cutback in Arab oil production should have little immediate effect on U.S. supplies, an American energy expert says. But Western Europe and Japan, the Arabs' biggest customers, are expected to put pressure on the United States before long to reduce its support of Israel.

Arab oil ministers at a meeting in Kuwait Wednesday announced they would cut production at least 5 per cent a month until Israel gives up all territory it seized in the 1967 war and restores the rights of the Palestinian refugees.

Because the United States gets only about 6 per cent of the oil it uses from the Arab countries, the Arabs strategy was to squeeze the Europeans and Japanese in the hope that they in turn would put the screws on Washington, Israel's chief source of arms.

A 5 per cent cut in U. S. imports from the Arab countries would reduce the total supply in the United States only three-tenths of one per cent, the U.S. expert said in Washington. But he estimated the action would reduce Western Europe's supplies by 3 per cent and Japan's by 2 per cent.

The Nixon Administration is counting on imports of refined heating oil from Europe to meet the shortage expected this winter, and a reduced supply of crude to Europe would make refined products harder to get.

Since production is being cut back rather than exports, the effects of the decision may not be felt for several weeks. And the volume of production will decline very slowly if the reductions continue, since each month's cut will be 5 per cent of the previous month's production. But oil experts in Beirut predicted a major world oil crisis if the cuts continued for as long as four months.

One London oil analyst called the cutback "an extremely astute scheme . . . It will make everyone suffer a little and put considerable pressure on Western countries to force Israel to come to an agreement with the Arabs."

Japan, dependent on the Middle East for 80.7 per cent of its petroleum imports, hoped its neutral policy in the Arab-Israeli conflict might exempt it from the cutback. But the Japanese Ministry of International Trade and Industry acknowledged today that the Arab producers may hit it, too, in hopes that Tokyo will put pressure on the United States.

A question both in Japan and in Europe was whether Iran would follow the lead of its Arab neighbors. Iran, not an Arab nation, is the second largest Middle East producer.

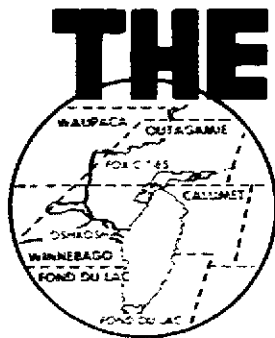

One American petroleum industry observer noted that a reduction in Arab output would have serious effects on such major international oil companies such as Texaco, Exxon, Mobil, Royal Dutch Shell, Gulf and Standard Oil of California.

An Exxon spokesman, for example, said that half his company's crude oil last year came from the Middle East.

The decision to cut oil production as a tactic against U.S. support of Israel was taken at a meeting of the 10 members of the Organization of Arab Petroleum Exporting Countries, or OAPEC.

After a seven-hour session, the coun-

Nixon backed on tapes

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon had his first favorable decision today in his legal battle to withhold the White House tapes from the Senate Watergate committee and the special Watergate prosecutor.

U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica threw out Wednesday the Senate committee's request for a civil judgment affirming its right to demand the tapes from the President.

In his ruling, Sirica said the committee had failed to obtain authorization for suing the President. He said he was not making any judgment on the legal merits of the committee's case.

A committee spokesman said the decision probably would be appealed.

But Nixon still faces the formidable challenge of special prosecutor Archibald Cox's effort to obtain nine presidential tapes for the federal grand jury investigation of the Watergate break-in and cover-up.

In that case, Sirica ordered the President to give him the nine tapes Cox had subpoenaed. The judge said that only if he listened to the tapes could he determine if the President had a valid claim for keeping them secret.

Last Friday, the U.S. Court of Appeals upheld Sirica's ruling.

The President has until Friday to take his appeal to the Supreme Court, a move he is regarded as virtually certain to make.

The committee subpoenaed five tapes last July 23, the same day Cox subpoenaed nine. Three days later the President notified both parties that he would not comply with their subpoenas.

The President has contended that because the three branches of government are coequal and independent under the Constitution, neither a congressional committee nor a judge could force him to obey an order.

Cox had argued that in the case of evidence of criminal activity, no man, not even a president, has a right to withhold it from a grand jury.

Both Sirica and the appeals court supported that position.

But in opposing the committee's suit, Nixon lawyers attacked the panel's authority to bring such an action in federal court. Sirica agreed.

"No jurisdictional statute known to the court, including the four which plaintiffs name, warrants an assumption of jurisdiction, and the court is therefore left with no alternative here but to dismiss the action," Sirica wrote.

He added that Congress could have authorized the suit, but didn't.

Diplomats searching for way to end war

WASHINGTON (AP) —The diplomatic search for an end to the Arab-Israeli war has narrowed with the United States and the Soviet Union engaged in extensive discussions over specific ideas.

These are said to center on linking a cease-fire to an overall settlement of the 25-year-old Middle East dispute.

However, while the talks have progressed from a general examination of options, U.S. officials do not believe Washington and Moscow are ready to make a proposal public.

The change in the situation was acknowledged Wednesday by State Department spokesman Robert J. McGloskey.

Although any agreement made through these talks will be sent to the United Nations Security Council for ratification, the negotiations are being conducted primarily by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Anatoly F. Dobrynin, Soviet ambassador to the United States.

While working for an end to the fighting, the United States is facing increased pressure from the Arab nations to pull back from its support of Israel.

The Organization of Arab Petroleum Exporting Countries announced in Kuwait Wednesday they will cut production at least 5 per cent a month until Israel pulls back from territory taken in the 1967 war and restores the rights of Palestinian refugees.

State Department officials were unclear Tuesday night about what this action meant, when it would take place and exactly what was being demanded.

The announcement from Kuwait did not specifically mention the United States, but Arab diplomats indicated the oil action was aimed at forcing the United States to pressure Israel into a compromise.

The official American position as outlined by Kissinger last week is that the Nixon administration will not relent in its support of Israel, in the face of a threat and will take the consequences.

Reiterating this position, Kissinger said in a speech Wednesday night: "It must be clear that while the United States is trying to make our nation safe from war, we will not do so at the price of making the rest of the world safe for war."

He told the Association of the U.S. Army that the Middle East crisis "is a test of the possibilities of diplomacy and of the real meaning of détente."

Just before the oil production cutback was announced, President Nixon and Kissinger held a series of meetings with the foreign ministers of four Arab states — Saudi Arabia, Algeria, Kuwait and Morocco.

Spokesmen said the talks covered the Middle East situation generally and did not dwell particularly on oil.

Cuban killed

MEXICO CITY (AP) —Cuban security forces rushed the French Embassy in Havana Wednesday and killed an armed Cuban holding the Belgian and French ambassadors and another Frenchman hostage, the Cuban Foreign Ministry announced.

The armed man, who had kidnaped the Belgian diplomat from his embassy, had demanded safe passage out of Cuba.

A communique from the foreign ministry was telephoned to Mexico City by Prensa Latina, the Cuban government news agency. It described the kidnaper as a "counter-revolutionary," meaning a foe of the Castro regime.

The communique said the man was wounded when the security men broke into the embassy and "died later at the Cardiovascular Hospital where he was being operated on."

"There were no other casualties," the communique said.

The Cuban gunman took Belgian Ambassador Jean Somershausen, French Ambassador Pierre Anthonioz and a French Embassy employe hostage Tuesday in an attempt to escape from Cuba.

Gripes of smelly salt are heeded

NEW LONDON — After 4th Ward residents charged that some streets made their area smell like a “bar-nyard,” aldermen voted 8-2 Tuesday to stop using a salt brine solution donated by a local industry to control dust on undeveloped streets.

But since the solution, which is given to the city and spread by Borden's Foods, has been used here for “many years” without any citizen complaints, the salt will still be used in other sections of the city.

The council's vote called for not using the salt anymore in a new subdivision south of Pearl Street, near Wyman Street.

Or, as Ald. Isabel Schoenrock (2nd) said, “If they don't want it (the salt solution), give them the dust.”

Officials explained to four complaining residents that drain oil is hard to obtain, and the salt, which is first used at Borden's to float 50-pound blocks of cheese, helps control dust on gravel roads.

One resident presented the city with a bill for the repair of a 6 by 12-foot section of his lawn that he says was burned out by the salt.

The problem had been raised two weeks ago by first-term Ald. James Mullarkey (4th) but was cast off by other aldermen. The residents explained Tuesday that “according to the paper, it didn't get very far. That's why we're here.”

Mullarkey, kicking off a heated, 40 minute discussion, said that “We're tired of being second-rate citizens. We want to be treated just like the rest of the citizens — we don't want anymore or any less.”

Mullarkey has often charged that the 4th Ward is neglected by the council even though most new residential development is there.

The residents said they'd rather have dust than the odor, so Ald. Al Weeden (3rd) said, “Then as far as I'm concerned, you won't have it.”

Director of Public Works Robert Martin said that “The only real solution is curb and gutter — the streets get paved after the curb and gutter is in.” He added that the council decides when curb and gutter will go into certain areas.

Mullarkey, saying that the residents came on their own because he didn't get any council action last time the problem was discussed, told aldermen, “You probably think this is a put-up thing. They (council) think that I'm making things up. We're not second class citizens because we live on Dexter Street,” he shouted. “We can't even get a street light on the corner, and we don't have street signs up there. We don't get oil on the roads, we get salt.”

Ald. Robert Flease (1st) pointed out that the council didn't take any action at last meeting because Ald. Wayne Tolztman said that the salt solution could be used in the 3th Ward.

One resident, who said he felt his car was being damaged by the salt, said that he moved here in August, and two loads of brine have been dumped on his street since then — and they both smelled badly.

Fleaze said that since other areas of the city could use the solution, he felt the city should just stop using it in the 4th Ward.

But one of the residents said, “If we have to come down here and argue with you people and you can't at least look into the problem, you're not worth your salt.”

Other solutions, such as having Borden's check each load, and dump only “good” brine on the streets, or having all salt brine taken to the landfill, were also discussed and dropped.

After aldermen voted on the motion, with Weeden and Ald. Dona Genske voting against the proposal, Weeden

Recreation head traded for sewers

NEW LONDON — The City Council voted Tuesday to transfer $19,200 from two budget accounts to finance a sanitary sewer extension to a new industry, but in doing so apparently ended all immediate hopes for a city recreation director.

Acting on a recommendation from the finance committee, aldermen voted unanimously to transfer $10,000 from the recreation director reserve account and $9,200 from a special contingency fund, to finance the sewer project from the corner of North Water and Pearl streets east to the DeGroff Building, where a new industry soon will locate.

The recreation funds are from the city budget two years ago, when aldermen were considering the initiation of a full-time recreation program jointly with the school district.

About $370, donated by a high school class three years ago for recreation equipment, is all that remains in the recreation reserve.

Ald. Al Weeden (3rd) pointed out that “if the council approves this transfer of funds, I assume we are not interested in any type of recreation program, being that we set aside that money for recreation and we are going to use it for sewers.”

He added that he favored the sewer project, but said, “If you take the money from this reserve you are killing any hope for a recreation director.”

In other business, City Atty. James Lindgren reported that applications for liquor licenses for Sommer's Place and Gerald's, two establishments which presently have beer licenses, will be brought up Nov. 6.

Aldermen also voted unanimously not to buy the Green Bay and Western Railroad depot on Shawano Street since they had no apparent use for the 100-year-old building.

DeVleeshower Construction Co. was given permission to construct a fiberglass lift station in place of the planned cement structure for the Montgomery Street sanitary sewer. There will be no additional cost to the city, and the station reportedly meets or exceeds all specifications.

Frequently damaged mailboxes behind the post office caused the city to remark parking stalls near the drive-up depositories, changing parking from angle to parallel.

Two zoning changes, requested by O'Brien Builders, also were approved after public hearings.

A change from highway business to multi-family residential was approved for a lot on the corner of Mill and Douglas streets, where a two-story convent will be built. A change from single family residential to multi-family was also approved for land on East Pine Street, where another apartment house will be constructed.

The council supported a police and fire commission recommendation to deny an employment extension to Rueben Voss, the police department's radio operator and maintenance man at the fire department. Voss is under an extension that expires Jan. 1.

City Clerk Melva Rickaby reported that the state Department of Administration has listed the city's population at 5,864, a drop of 24 from last year.

Aldermen also voted to change Lincoln Street from North Water to Waupaca, to a two-way street, to help improve the downtown traffic pattern.

Harold Klinger, the city inspector, was appointed to the reassessment committee, a special committee which is studying the feasibility of having a total reassessment of the city.

Director of Public Works Robert Martin reported that Waupaca County would do a highway sign survey this winter in the city. The survey is needed to get federal aids for a total re-signing project that must be completed by 1976, Martin said.

The city is nearing $1 million in new construction this year, Klinger reported. Eleven building permits were issued in September, bringing the total for the year to 69, with a permit income of $3,344. Two plumbing permits, six trench permits, and three sanitary sewer lateral connection permits also were issued.

Permit income for the month was $454. A total of 46 more clear water inspections were completed, making 34 per cent of that project complete.

Steps taken to combine posts in New London

By FERN SMITH
Post-Crescent staff writer

WAUPACA — The City Council unanimously passed a charter ordinance Tuesday which will make the office of city clerk-treasurer appointive.

The appointment would be made by the mayor and be subject to confirmation by the council.

The term of office would be for an indefinite period and would begin on May 1, 1974.

Within 60 days of publication of the new ordinance, a petition signed by at least 2 per cent of the voters in the last gubernatorial election could bring the change to referendum.

The council suspended its rules to act promptly on the ordinance and provide the necessary 60 days for an opposing petition calling for the referendum. According to Mayor Ray Roe, this time allowance was prudent as it would eliminate any interference with the filing of nomination papers for the post.

If there is no opposition by petition to the ordinance, there would be no candidates for the office of city clerk treasurer on next year's April ballot.

In a full discussion before voting on the ordinance, Roe pointed out that the change had been talked about for months. New London and other cities have made a similar change. “The appointment for an indefinite period would give more security to the office,” he said. “On the other hand, an appointee who was not doing the job could be dismissed.”

Another possibility would be that the mayor could appoint present city clerk-treasurer Harriet Ward to fill in for a period until a new appointment is made. Mrs. Ward retires on April 30.

The new charter ordinance does not change the mandatory retirement age for other city employees, it was noted.

The City of Waupaca introduced a similar ordinance in 1955, to combine the offices of city clerk and city treasurer and making the office appointive. The proposal was soundly defeated in a 1956 referendum, 758 to 256. A charter ordinance to combine the two offices, retaining the post as elective, was passed in 1958.

Throughout the discussion about possible change, the office was talked about as being filled by “he.” Ald. Ivan Huffcutt raised the question of whether this removed the possibility of a woman being appointed to the post.

Ald. Edward Spanbauer immediately leaped into the fray. “I do that all the time,” he said, denying any chauvinistic intent. “I do this only because the only woman I am concerned about is my wife.” Amid the laughter, it was suggested that any candidate be referred to as “it.”

Dwight L. Potter, route 5, Waupaca, was killed in a one-car accident early today on State 22 about two miles south of Waupaca.

Potter was believed to have been alone. His car reportedly veered off the highway, smashed into abutments and flipped over three times. The car apparently was southbound. Further details of the accident were unavailable.

Potter's death was the fifth traffic fatality of the year for Waupaca County and the second in 48 hours.

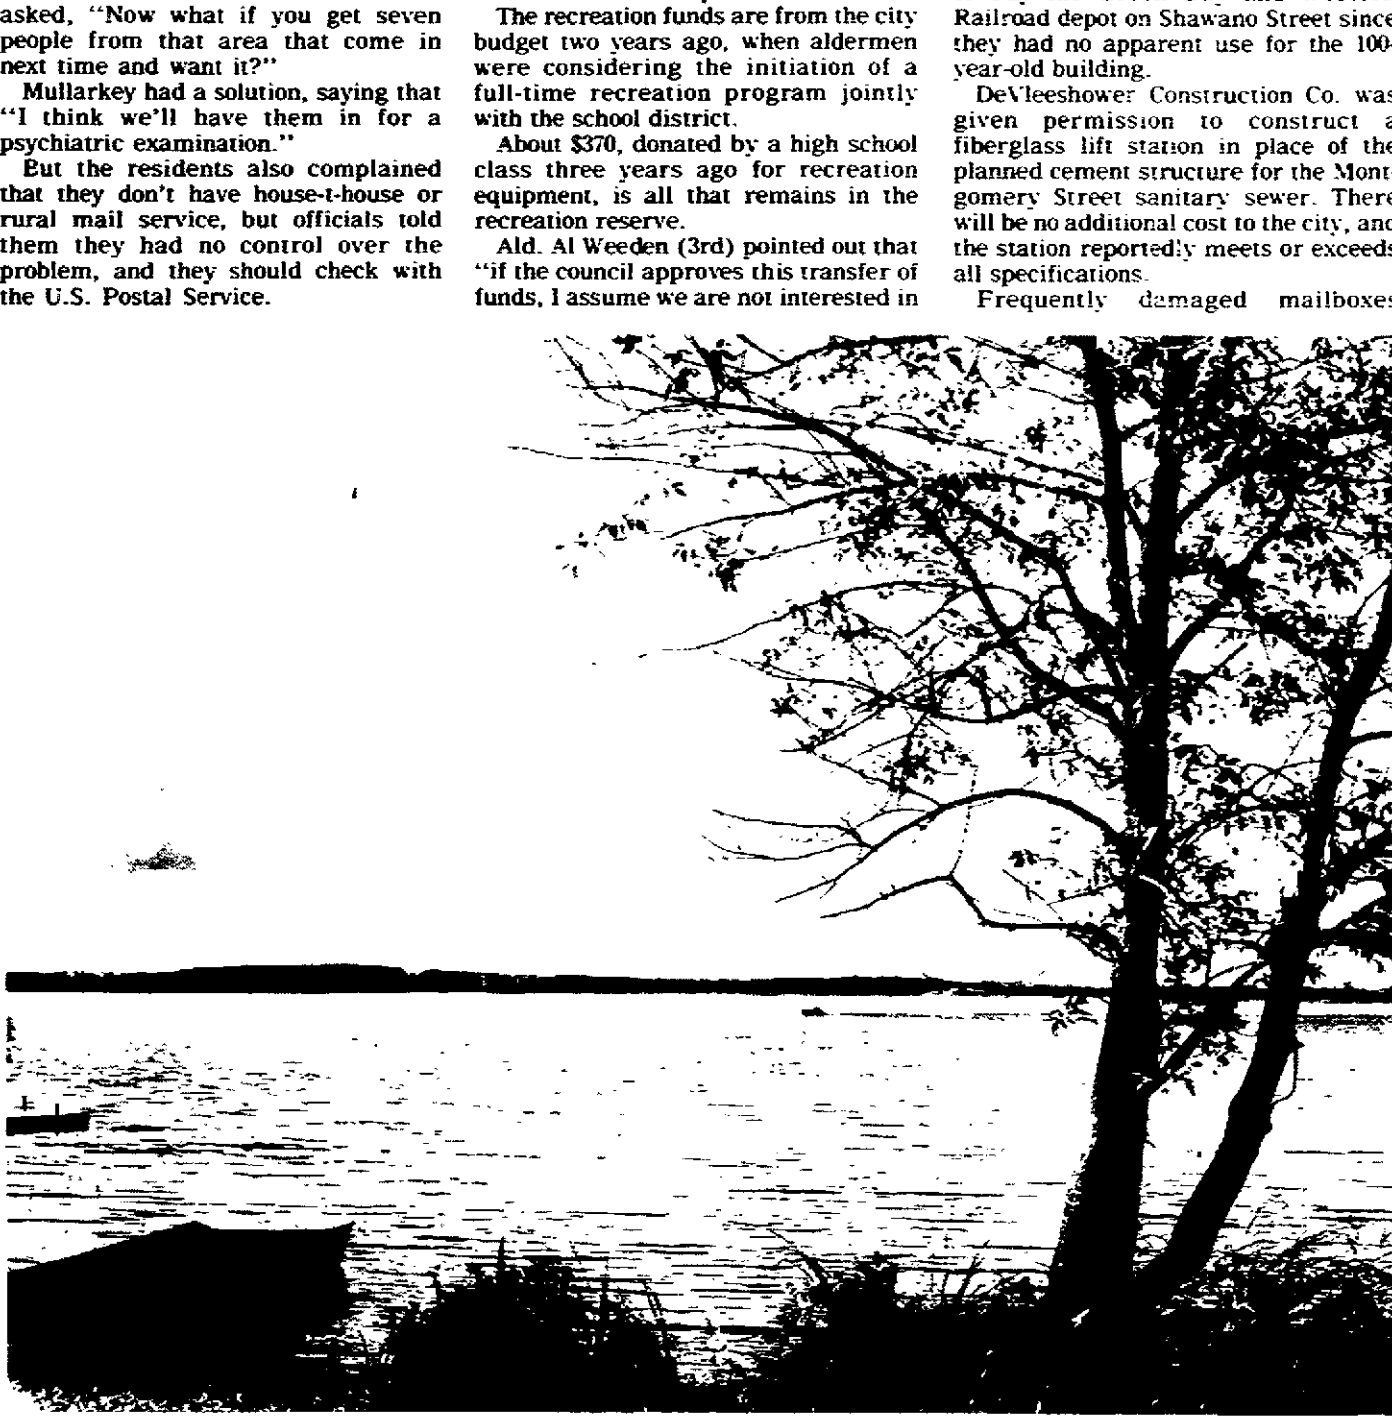

Along with two other traffic deaths Wednesday, it brought the state's toll to 902, compared with 931 a year ago. The other victims were:

Arthur Armstrong, 55, of Munster, Ind., killed Wednesday afternoon when his car left U.S. 41 two miles south of Oshkosh and turned over in a ditch.

Joseph Michel Jr., 51, of Franksville, died Wednesday at a Milwaukee hospital of injuries he suffered Monday in a car-truck crash on U.S. 45 in Milwaukee.

Preschoolers taught to discover new things, group play, think CLINTONVILLE — The Play and Learn Center opened its doors in September with a near capacity enrollment of 15 three-year-olds and 19 four-year-olds, according to Mrs. Randolph Herod, publicity chairman.

The center's program is based on encouraging children to discover new things, play in a group setting and encourage them to think for themselves. Mrs. Lewis Popelka holds a bachelor of science degree in early childhood development and education, and is the mother of four children. She has refuted the concept of the school acting as a day care center or babysitting service, nor does she employ the conventional type of educational or teaching program. Her curriculum includes science programs and field trips. The center's equipment, purchased through the support of the community, was selected to encourage children in building, climbing, exploring and to teach the use of muscle control.

The center is subject to once-a-year inspections of facilities and personnel to insure that the children are happy in the center's environment, receiving proper supervision and benefiting from the program.

Mrs. Virginia Evans, day care supervisor from the Division of Family Services for the state Department of Health and Social Services, recently inspected the center and, in a followup letter to Mrs. Ralph Williams, president of the board of directors for the center, Mrs. Evans complimented the center on its high quality preschool program which she felt was not only due to a good teacher but a well-organized board.

The center's incorporation was in April of this year after a year-long effort by the Clintonville Junior Woman's Club to establish a nursery school through the club's civic improvement project (CIP). With the incorporation, the center became a parent cooperative organization with the parents of enrolled children owning a share in the corporation.

Designed to accommodate 40 children, the center is intended to be a self-supporting, nonprofit organization. Each parent, most often the mothers, is required to function as an assistant to the teacher once-a-month. State law requires all teacher assistants to receive four-hour training sessions, which were conducted by Mrs. Popelka in August. Further training sessions will be scheduled as the need arises with new enrollments.

Children who were three, four or five years old before Oct. 1 are eligible for enrollment.

Mrs. Lee Halverson is membership chairman. The board of directors is headed by Mrs. Williams, president; Mrs. Robert Ellis, vice president; Mrs. Robert Danielson, secretary, and Mrs. Rolynn Scholl, treasurer. Serving on the board are O. Reed Newton, Mrs. Clifford Raftero and Mrs. Halverson.

The health and safety coordinator for the center is Mrs. Gene Ashbrenner, who is a licensed practical nurse.

The center is in operation four mornings a week at the Christus Parish Hall.

Rev. Gildseth director of Homme Boys' Home

WITTENBERG — The Rev. Richard S. Gildseth has been named director of Homme Home For Boys.

Homme Home, a residential treatment center for 25 boys, is a division of the Lutheran Social Services of Wisconsin and Upper Michigan.

Gildseth succeeds Reginald Hansen, who resigned to become executive director of Lutheran Social Services of South Dakota.

Gildseth brings a wide background of educational, church work and social services to his new position. Since 1971, he has been associated with the Kiwanis Children's Center of Curative Workshop in Milwaukee, where he was also consultant to other agencies, including LSS, with which he worked to develop family counseling services at Hepatha Lutheran Church in the inner city.

After graduating from Augustana College in 1952 and Luther Theological Seminary in 1956, Gildseth served at four Lutheran congregations in Wisconsin.

He was pastor of Sugar Creek Lutheran Church, Eikhorn and Williams Bay, from 1956 to 1960; of Hole Lutheran Church, Wautoma, 1960 to 1967, and of Lincoln Park Lutheran Church, Milwaukee, 1967 to 1970.

He received a master of social work degree from the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee in 1970, and formerly was coordinator of Congregational Ministries in Los Angeles for Lutheran Social Services of Southern California. In that position he promoted social ministry projects for American Lutheran Church in America and Missouri Synod congregations.

Gildseth is a native of South Dakota, married and has four children.

Negative response to county health department

The Appleton Board of Health is opposed to plans for a county health department as presented in a preliminary resolution ready for county board action in November.

Health board members, meeting at city hall Wednesday, decided they want to see the city get better representation on the county health board than the preliminary resolution would guarantee them.

And Mayor James Sutherland, in a resolution that was adopted unanimously by the board, indicated that he supports a city-county health department (with representation from both on the board), but also wants data assembled to show the city would gain no matter what type of administrative setup was created for a countywide health department.

The Appleton board hopes to meet again on Oct. 31, to formulate its position on how, and if, to merge with the county in public health administration. It will present its views to the county health committee at a meeting now set for Nov. 2.

That will be just in time to get the city's stand before the county before the November county board meeting when action could be taken to set up a county health department.

“If we're silent and this one goes through, then it's our own fault,” said Board Chairman Donald Day, an alderman from the 19th Ward who, after seeing how the city and county of Eau Claire have operated a city-county health department, favors the same approach here.

Sutherland, however, noting how much more the city does in the area of public health care than the county now does, said future level of services should be considered before the city decides to merge with the county for the administration of public health.

The resolution passed by the board directs City Health Officer Peter LeMere to analyze the advantages the city residents would get under a city-county health department; to compare city and county health services now and future services planned by both the county and city; and study the “ramifications of the loss of complete city self-determination in the level of health services should a city-county health department be created.”

The resolution also asks for Finance Director Reynold Running to analyze the cost ramifications for the city.

Board members agreed they could not go for a provision of the present county board resolution which calls for all seven members of the proposed county health board to be appointed by the county executive. Four of them would be county board supervisors.

Increased state aids will reduce tax rate at Hilbert

HILBERT — School district taxpayers will receive a $5.27 per $1,000 equalized valuation tax reduction because of increased state aids.

The rate of $23.96 per $1,000 adopted at the annual meeting has been reduced, according to law, to $18.69 under the new formula.

Under the new law, tax is to be levied on the current year's equalized valuation, rather than on the valuation for the prior year.

The total equalized valuation, received Oct. 10, is $25,633,100, an increase of $3,484,500. Under the new legislation, if on the third Monday in October the school board determines that a tax greater than that needed to operate the school district was voted in, the board may lower the tax voted at the annual meeting.

Primary aid, guaranteed valuation behind each student, increased from $42,500 to $71,200. Secondary aid of $42,400, for the amount of shared cost in excess of the limit of 110 per cent of the 1972-73 shared cost, bring state aids to $105,000.

Because of the new state law, the budget adopted at the annual meeting was adjusted. This increased anticipated expenditures by $33,326 because the district now is responsible for $17,342 in teacher retirement and $15,984 for social security, totaling $33,326. In addition, the $350 county elementary aid per elementary teacher, amounting to $3,150, has been discontinued under the new bill and reduced the anticipated receipts by this amount.

Total effect on the property tax amounts to $68,524 less than anticipated at the annual meeting.

The new equalized valuation produces a tax levy of $339,008. Individualized by communities, this means the Town of Woodville, with an equalized valuation of $8,025,500, will pay $150,029 for 27.83 per cent of the total levy.

The Village of Hilbert, with $7,126,900 equalized valuation, $133,230 a total of 24.72 per cent; Town of Rantoul, $4,853,500 equalized valuation, $90,731, 16.83 per cent; Town of Harrison $4,431,000 equalized valuation, $82,833, 15.31 per cent; Town of Chilton, $3,869,600 equalized valuation, $72,337, 13.42 per cent.

The Town of Brillion, with $364,600 equalized valuation, will pay $6,815, 1.27 per cent; Village of Sherwood, $83,600 equalized valuation, $1,562, .29 per cent and Town of Stockbridge will pay $1,465, for .27 per cent of the total levy.

The board of education this week certified the tax levy in accordance with the new deadline which is the last working day of October. The previous deadline was Aug. 31.

Veterans Day program set at Brillion High

BRILLION — Veterans Day will be observed at 10:30 a.m. Monday at the high school. The program is open to the public.

Officers of the Bloedorn-Becker-Jensen Post of the American Legion and Auxiliary and representative officers of the county, regional and district Legion commanders will be guests.

Addressees will be presented by Michael Ariens, president of the Ariens Co., and Colleen Krahn, recent winner of a 4-H speaking contest.

Presentation and posting of the colors and the gun salute will be conducted by the Legion Color and Honor Guards. Also featured will be selections by the high school band and combined choirs.

Plan commission will ask Calumet concerns

CHILTON — Calumet County residents interested in the future of the area are urged to attend a public meeting of the East-Central Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission scheduled for 7 p.m. Tuesday at the high school.

The meeting will be conducted to inform the commission and its staff of citizen concerns.

County representatives to the commission are G. J. Hipke, Clarence Pagel and Clarence Wolf.

The planning commission is an agency to advise local governments and their officials. Its primary duties and

Clintonville drive at $4,000

CLINTONVILLE — The United Fund of Clintonville reports that the '73 campaign drive has received nearly $4,000 which reflects a partial return of the retailers' contributions. The campaign goal is $19,950.

This week the residential community will be contacted by area workers. Residents who have contributed to this year's fund are asked to place their United Fund stockers in their home windows to advise the house-to-house canvassers that they have already contributed.

The city chairman for the '73 campaign is Mrs. Roy Elandt. Ward chairmen are Mrs. Dennis Kubitz, Mrs. Don Johnson, Mrs. Howard Beggs, Mrs. Elandt and Mrs. David Fuge for first through fifth wards, respectively.

The Clintonville United Fund has allocated $200 of the 1973 budget to the American Social Health Association which is participating for the first time in this year's campaign. This organization is the prime national voluntary agency dealing with the related problems of drug abuse, venereal disease, organized prostitution and family failure.

It works with and through federal, state and local agencies having responsibility for direct service to people. It is involved in research, dissemination of information and consultation services.

The Salvation Army will receive $1,200 — the same allocation it received in 1972. This organization provides emergency relief food, clothing, shelter and fuel for families. It is also involved in social welfare activities, state emergency disaster services and maternity homes for unwed mothers. The organization advised the admissions and budget committee that 469 people were served in Waupaca County in the past year.

Parents Night Friday at Brillion High School

BRILLION — Parents of football and cross-country athletes will be honored at 8 p.m. Friday when the Brillion Lions meet the Freedom football team here.

Parents will be introduced during half-time activities and will be served refreshments in the school cafeteria after the game.

The annual event is sponsored by the Pep Club.

BY JOHN LEE

Post-Crescent staff writer

NEW LONDON — Replies from the city's recent letter writing campaign to Gov. Patrick Lucey and state legislators condemning the state budget that limited property tax hikes to 6 per cent have, as expected, brought opposite views from Republican and Democratic lawmakers and a "non answer" from Lucey.

Part of the state budget passed last summer included a clause that limits municipalities to increasing their tax levies 6 per cent or less.

Lucey, in a letter to City Clerk Mrs. Melva Rickaby, said that "I believe the citizens of Wisconsin will greatly benefit from the more than $530 million in property tax relief."

But two area assemblymen, Rep. Francis Byers, R-Marion, and Rep. Herbert Grover, D-Shawano, defended their positions in extensive letters.

Donors pass blood quota at Clintonville

CLINTONVILLE — The Red Cross Bloodmobile visit Monday produced 123 pints of blood, eight over the established quota.

Of the 133 donors turning out, 10 were rejected.

Special designation of blood were made for Orlin Peeters, Greenville; Patricia Cross, Clintonville; Harry Kahl, Gresham; Lorenz Balke, route 3, Shawano, and Rueben Bruggink, Sheboygan.

The appeal for special blood for open heart surgery was met with seven pints of O negative, seven pints of A negative and three pints of AB positive.

Special awards were presented to Dan McCarthy, Bob Dailey and Alice Roehl, four gallon pints; Orville Roehl, three gallon pint; Hazel Schultz, Edward Wanta and Marvin Goddard, two gallon pints, and Bonita Soufal and Ruby Rindt, one gallon pint.

Land use permits total $234,922 in Calumet Co.

CHILTON—Twenty-six land use permits were issued in rural Calumet County during September by Code Administrator DuWayne Klessig. Total value of this construction was $234,922.

Receiving permits in the Town of Charlestown were Robert Bonlander, pole shed; Francis Schmitz, and Diane Moschel, garages; Warren Jodar, addition to office. Paul Schomisch, house. Alois Heiman, silo; and Gary Burgess, horse barn.

Permits in the Town of Brillion went to Kenneth Micke, house; Gary Stebanc, Delton Tamm and Joe Micke, silos; and Willard Boettcher, grain storage structure.

New Holstein permits were issued to Leander Ramming, addition to home; Bremer Manufacturing Co., Inc., loading dock, Earl Klein and George Engel, silos, and Associated Fur Farm, Inc., storage building.

In the Town of Harrison, Paul Dietzen received a permit for a house; Associated Milk Producers Inc., milk receiving addition; Elizabeth Obermeyer, mobile home and Kurt Ostermeyer, addition to home.

In the Town of Rantoul, Carlton Haese received a permit for a corn storage structure and Roland Dallmann for an addition to dairy barn.

Town of Stockbridge residents received permits were ClarenceL. Gurne and Karl Gabler for boat houses.

During September, four sanitary permits were issued, three for installation of conventional septic tank-soil absorption systems and one for placement of a holding tank.

Francis Buechel and Harold Maltby, Town of Brothertown, and Tom Hemauer, Town of Harrison, received certified survey maps.

Choosing a vice president

There was one statement former vice president Spiro Agnew made in his farewell address Monday night with which there can be little argument.

"The American people deserve to have a vice president in whom they can have unimpaired confidence and trust." While Agnew used the assumption to try to explain away his own resignation and no contest plea to a felony, it has been obviously true for some time that our way of picking a vice president needs repair.

A couple of decades ago the vice president became a nondescript figure of fun, Actor Victor Moore's The Forgotten Man. In recent years he has been picked for the plain unvarnished reason of improving a political party's presidential ticket. While the choice of a capable man might be considered advantageous, such largely irrelevant matters of religion, section of the country and employment backgrounds were weighed to find a balance with the generally more accidental ones the presidential candidate possessed. Little if any consideration was given to how the vice presidential choice would fulfill the real reason for his being at all — becoming President of the United States in case of the death, disability or removal from office of the President.

The result has been scary. We have had such men as Henry Wallace, Alben Barkely, John Garner as next in line for the White House. At least on the surface they did not appear to be of presidential timber. But the job sometimes makes the man as in the case of Harry Truman. While Lyndon Johnson was chosen to balance the ticket and take away some of the bitterness which the nomination of John Kennedy created, Johnson's own qualifications for the presidency were high. But this was almost accidental.

The system appeared to have reached the height of the ridiculous last year in the Tom Eagleton affair in the Democratic party. The lack of investigation of a candidate was nakedly exposed. Of course the Agnew revelations tend to make the selection process used by the Democrats a model in comparison.

More care apparently has been taken in the selection of Gerald Ford to replace Agnew. At this particular stage in history and in Mr. Nixon's faltering second term, the relations with Congress also merit the choice of an individual who can repair those fences. Nevertheless Gerald Ford was not chosen as the best possible president from either experience or ambition. Probably, in case of accident or impeachment, the latter a definite possibility right now, Ford would govern adequately. But adequate is not good enough in the future choices of vice presidential candidates.

Even the system first approved for the infant United States in which the man who received the second highest number of votes for president became the vice president and next in line for the presidency seems at this point in time to be preferable.

Public pension policy

One of the twilight zones of Wisconsin public affairs, with respect to public information and understanding, is the increasingly more costly guarantee of retirement benefits for the officers and employees of local and state governments who are becoming more numerous each year.

This year as in most recent years in Madison, there is heavy pressure on the legislature for a liberalization of retirement benefits in all directions. Thus the outlook is for another increase in the already generous slice of public payrolls in Wisconsin financed with tax levies that is represented in fringes rather than wages and salaries.

There are several elements in the situation that deserve attention from thoughtful citizens. One is the perhaps unavoidable fact that such matters are esoteric. The formula calculations of benefits, the scale of benefits according to length of service, level of compensation, respective contributions of the taxpayer as employer and the public employee as beneficiary, and many others, tend to produce legislation which is very difficult to read and to analyze. Thus there may be a legitimate worry that these bills do not get the kind of scrutiny that most other propositions at Madison must survive as a matter of course.

There are numerous categories of public service retirement plans. The rules on contributions, on benefits, on time of benefit eligibility, tend to vary according to the system, thus rendering the matter as a whole even more inscrutable for the private citizens, and in reasonable probability, for the state senator and representative elected to act for him in the legislature.

These observations are not intended to be hostile to the idea of fair pensions for faithful services rendered. Moreover, we are aware that on the whole the Wisconsin retirement funds are reasonably secure, in contrast to the notorious uncertainties about the liquidity and the adequacy of the reserves of some other political jurisdictions in the country.

What is disturbing is the management of these affairs in a kind of legislative twilight, in contrast to the celebrated "openness" of our Madison law-making process otherwise. Advisory councils tend to be dominated by beneficiary groups. As we have observed legislative proceedings, the counsel of the statutory review agency on the merits of new bills and amendments is too often ignored.

Why should there be discrimination in the size of retirement benefit in relation to public salary earnings according to categories, as between teachers and judges, legislators and other elected officers and professional civil servants chosen on merit rather than vote attraction capacity, to name a few? Gov. Lucey has shown great fertility in contriving task forces and citizens commissions to review important and serious problems and potential problems. We commend the twilight zone of state-local government retirement programs in Wisconsin for thoughtful and thorough review.

Potomac fever

Agnew aides reported receiving 664 letters and telegrams urging the V.P. not to quit. It's not known how many came from the White House.

The rumor that Martha Mitchell wants to be reunited with her husband is not just talk.

According to a Gallup Poll, 55 per cent disapprove of Nixon's performance in office. Not bad, considering how seldom he's there.

Samuel Dash expects the Senate committee will concentrate on political sabotage and spending. After that they'll get to Watergate.

Attorney General Richardson is investigating leaked information on Agnew in the Justice Department. That's like Archie Bunker telling Edith to "stifle herself."

Report on election financing hits home

MADISON — The partisan skeptics of the Republican opposition are not likely to be persuaded and some of the ideas in the Adamany report on Wisconsin political campaign financing reform are so novel that even the more objective readers concerned about the political money mess undoubtedly will be cautious.

But any person who has observed the perils of uncontrolled, often secretive, sometimes blatantly unfair use of money power in the influencing of the electorate will concede that the "working paper," as Prof. David Adamany modestly describes his first report, is a thoughtful and creative document. If it has no other immediate or visible result, it will be a solid contribution to the anxious debate on what is surely the most worrisome political issue in the country today.

Close to Democrats

One of the problems of the young teacher and researcher who has examined at length and thought deeply about the conflict between the ideals of democratic processes and the unpleasant realities of contemporary politics is the fact of his own close association with Gov. Patrick Lucey and other leading Democrats. Thus some Republicans whose misadventures lately have perhaps made them more than ordinarily suspicious were firing skeptical blasts in his direction before the general propositions of his report had been made public.

Yet the scandals of uncontrolled election campaign expenditures with respect to volume, the lack of effort to police such expenditures, the reluctant beggary of many good men who detest the things they must do as the price of competing for public place, the virtual elimination from public life in elective places of those men (and no doubt women) who refuse to compromise themselves, and the vulgarly cynical involvement of many organized special interests in campaign financing with no relation to ideological principles, these and other unpleasant realities require that a serious plan for reform be given fair consideration.

The Adamany paper does not say so — perhaps because it is so obvious — that laws now purporting to control the use of money to influence elections are worse than useless. They are dangerous to the extent that they have persuaded some of the naive and the literal-minded that there are effective controls when in fact they were eroded away many years ago.

Chairman David Sullivan of the state Republican party, among others, says he is skeptical about Adamany because he has had a Democratic party affiliation before and since he began his work as teacher and researcher. At the distance from which Sullivan watches, that is probably an inevitable rejoinder.

Yet it is perhaps permissible to say here that it is precisely because the author of the report has had political experience, because he knows politicians, has worked in campaign headquarters, and no doubt has had the direct knowledge of the earthy business of raising substantial sums from sources guided by reality rather than preference, he is likely to make a more adequate assessment than the monastic colleague who relies on the library catalog.

It is also somewhat absurd to impugn the motives of a young academician who has made a brilliant career start and is surely aware that on an issue so sensitive only resolute objectivity can prevent serious injury to his reputation.

Bound to do some good

All of which is not to say that his preliminary report is likely to do more than generate debate about one of the dangerously gray areas of American political society. It is trite, but nevertheless true, that such discussion and reflection will make his effort worthwhile without regard to later consequences.

Tax funding of politicians' ambitions will be difficult to accept. Yet it is used elsewhere in the democratic world. The report realistically offers it as bait, in effect, to encourage politicians to consider reliance on small contributors, and to free themselves from the quid pro quo donors. It acknowledges the difficult constitutional issues involved.

It is a worthy contribution, however tentative, to gain the confrontation with ugly realities that is so urgently needed.

Goal for children: they're interesting

What would you consider a fine compliment paid to you about your child? That she always looks neat and clean? That he has good manners? I wouldn't mind hearing any of this—but what really pleases me most is when some adult happens to mention that a child of mine is "interesting."

And this seems to be a trait that many parents overlook altogether. They feel responsible for giving the child wholesome food and warm clothing and setting a good moral example—but pay little, if any, attention to turning out a human being who is an interesting personality.

Thus, the world is filled with dullards who have been given wholesome food and warm clothing and sent to Sunday school and instructed to say "Please" and "Thank you"—and have been bitterly neglected and underprivileged in the area of true personality development.

This is a tremendous disservice to the child, for every baby born without deficiency is a merry, curious, humorous bundle of interest. But within a half-dozen years, by the time the child begins first grade, much of the curiosity has been knocked out, the humor repressed, and thereby the learning process has been severely inhibited. (And, of course, the wrong kind of teacher, who is in the majority, compounds this growing stultification.)

parents—beyond the bare subsistence needs—is to turn out children who are interesting, to themselves and to others. This means children who are interested in the world, who are confident of their abilities, who are unafraid to question, who are willing to experiment and be wrong and accept their knocks.

Instead, most parents want children who are quiet and neat and well behaved and dutiful—and then who rebel in their teenhood, when they discover that society is a far larger, more exciting, more colorful and more complicated structure than they had been led to believe. Indeed, it is usually the least sophisticated who get into the most trouble at that age, not the ones who have been exposed to the world.

The only way to be interesting is to be interested; and when you are interested in external reality, then you are not bored or disaffected, and you have a focus for your activities. It is this lack of focus that makes so many teen-agers restless and ready for rebellion. If you can't raise yourself, all you can do is raise the roof.

Dull, flat, constricted and uncreative personalities clog this Earth of ours, through no fault of their own, for God has breathed into each soul the spirit of wonder, of exploration, of humor, of charm. What parents do for their children is not nearly as important as what they fail to do in fanning that tiny spark of expressiveness.

Arab bargaining power is stronger

Concerning the war in the Mideast, a few observations:

1) Israeli military invincibility appears to have proved mythical. This is in part owing to the fearfully efficient new Soviet ground-to-air missiles which have cut up Israel's air force and seriously interfered with the strategy that, in the past, has paid off so handsomely. At the other end, the Arabs are fighting well and effectively, and one report from the field says that their morale is extraordinarily high as they note that the Israelis are mortal.

2) On the assumption that the Israeli juggernaut of yore is reconstituted, what exactly is it expected to do? In 1956, there was an incarnate objective, his name was Nasser, and if in 1956 the Israelis had marched on into Cairo as they might well have done, they'd have known what to do: hang Nasser. But Nasser is now endemic. And even assuming that the Israelis were capable of a Carthaginian solution, it is questionable that they would resort to it, or that they would be permitted to resort to it.

Proves their point

Short of that — again, assuming Israeli superiority — there is the physical occupation of Damascus. But that, once again, would need to be temporary. To occupy and hold Damascus in the situation would be on the order of what Napoleon sought to do in Moscow. Moreover Damascus's loss, as a holy city, would unite the Arab world as nothing else has done, and this the Israelis are unquestionably aware of. To approach Damascus, to illustrate that it could have been taken without further effort — and then to withdraw, would surely be sufficient to prove the Israelis' point.

3) As we have so frequently heard during the past few days, the Mideast crisis will test the new diplomacy of the Nixon Administration. Suffice to say that so far the Soviet Union is satisfied. It has after all armed the Arabs, and supplied those dazzling weapons so effective against the Israeli air force. It remains to ask: what happens when the Israelis turn to the United States for replacement of lost tanks and airplanes. What happens when the United States delivers those planes and tanks? Will the Soviet Union, pari passu, deliver their own planes and tanks, keeping a gingerly balance? Thus the schematic of the situation, but of course things tend not to work that way, and this is the weakness of the Kissinger strategy: when certain kinds of people play chess, they end by overturning the table and hitting the opponent in the face.

How can the Soviet Union do otherwise? If the Israelis begin to make true headway, and this is likely particularly since Israel cannot survive a war of attrition, then the Soviet Union will almost surely threaten drastic intervention. What then are we supposed to do?

4) We are supposed to hope that the Arabs will suggest peace terms that are reasonable, at which point presumably we will pressure Israel into accepting them, which pressure will work or not depending on the acuteness of Israel's need of our aid at the moment. The Arabs' terms would almost certainly call for a return to the pre-1967 frontiers, and for huge indemnities for the Palestinians. It is perhaps paradoxical to think of the Arabs making demands at a moment of looming Israeli supremacy on the field. But they most likely feel a special strength they did not feel during the dark days after 1967. At that time the Egyptians were confident that their hold over the Suez Canal was critical to the good health of the West. This proved wrong, and meanwhile, American-Soviet detente apart, there were two crucial developments. The first was the energy crisis and the dawning recognition that whereas Israel's hold over the Canal was a paper tiger, the Arabs' hold of oil is, in a way, the ultimate weapon. The other development was,

Israeli diplomacy suffers

5) Israeli diplomacy. Israel's hard line has paid off in the past. But a single deed, done not long ago, was arrantly opportunistic. That was the decision (deplored within the Knesset) to develop the conquered territories in such a way that they could not easily be mistaken as the temporary shelters of an army that intends one day, when the peace is settled, to relinquish those territories.

Well, the Israelis are now diplomatically battered, and are worse off, from a bargaining point, than they were a month ago, and that is a pity. On the other hand it may get the diplomatic juices finally to running, and that is overdue.

Deer's horn a curiosity on display

100 YEARS AGO
Appleton Crescent, Oct. 18, 1873.

Quite a curiosity may be seen in the front window of Mr. W. J. Butler's Hardware Store. It is part of a deer's horn encased in the growth of a beech sapling.

It was found in the town of Seymour, in this county, and is a handsome specimen of this frequent singularity. There are some superb specimens of Elkhorns embedded in wood in the State Historical Society collection at Madison, but this specimen of Mr. Butler's is the first of its kind ever under observation so near at home.

It ought to be added to the Lawrence University collection of curiosities.

25 YEARS AGO
Thursday, Oct. 14, 1948.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower was installed as president of Columbia University that day in New York City.

Appleton High School Radio Players were to give their first broadcast of the season over WHBY with Karl Matz, senior, narrating. The Skit was "The City with a Soul."

Taking part as members of the cast were Dick Stillman, Eugene Stecker, Jim Hoel, Jim Wilson, Sherry Ohman, Jeanne Schloss, Pat Smith, Barbara Stewart, and Lois Meisle.

10 YEARS AGO
Thursday, Oct. 17, 1963.

A new county airport for Outagamie was approved for the Town of Greenville by a roll call vote of 14 to 11 that week at the County Board meeting.

Kenneth Fries was elected president of the new Student Council at John R. Gerrits Junior High School at Kimberly. Judy Vande Zanden was elected vice president and Sandy Blajeski secretary-treasurer.

Dexter Wolfe and Donald W. Brown were cited for outstanding service to Scouting and received Silver Beaver awards in recognition of their work.

$17,500 UF drive under way

NEW LONDON — Advance gifts and house-to-house drives are in progress for the 1973-74 New London United Fund. The goal is $17,500.

Richard Stephenson and Ronald Steinhorst, co-chairmen of the advanced gifts drive, said that eight local industries contribute nearly 25 per cent of the total funds. The industries include Curtis Corp.; Curwood, Inc.; Simmons Co.; Hillshire Farms and New London Engineering, Hamilton and Sons Canning, Borden Foods and United Counties Distributing.

Mrs. James Sodolski, general drive chairman, has named Mrs. David Weisgerber and Mrs. Lee Kettner as co-chairmen for the house-to-house drive.

Area drive chairmen are Mrs. Lester Lehman, Mrs. King Pharr, Mrs. David Hufschmid, Mrs. Everett Nelson, Mrs. Larry Brasch, Mrs. Jack Meshke and Mrs. Lee Shaw.

Town chairmen include Mrs. Ken Egan in Lebanon, Mrs. Merrill Upp in Hortonia, Mrs. Ken Zeimer at Maple Creek and Mrs. Paul Roloff and Mrs. Ken Renning, Mukwa.

The drive funds will be divided among 15 organizations: Boy Scouts $3,000; Girl Scouts, $2,600; $200 to the USO; $500 for cancer research; $500 for children services; $500 to the Appleton Memorial Hospital heart unit; $1,500 for new equipment at New London Community Hospital, and $200 to the State School for the Blind.

Other expenditures include $2,500 for the blood mobile and disaster aid of the Red Cross, $1,400 to the Salvation Army, $1,000 for retarded children and adults, $200 for mental health, $1,500 to the New London Boys League baseball program, $700 for the International Fellowship Service exchange student program and $1,200 for counseling for alcoholism and drug abuse.

Banta plans $2.5 million in expansion

MENASHA — George Banta Co. has scheduled $2.5 million in capital improvements for its Midway plant in 1974.

A new web offset press and a binding machine head the list of equipment additions. The four-color press will be the 18th web offset at the plant. It will be delivered in December, with start-up slated for February. The Banta Division's fifth perfect binder will trail the press installation, but should be in service in May.

Vice President Stanley Severson said the new equipment, when it becomes fully operational on a 24-hour basis, will increase employment by 30 or 40 workers. However, it may be several years before the machines are producing at full capacity.

The Menasha-based Banta Division enjoyed record sales throughout 1973, with particularly heavy demand from its traditional educational clients. A spokesman said the capital expenditures are being made ahead of the original plans, in response to future customer needs.

Social Security covers some ambulance trips

Medicare's medical insurance will help pay for transportation of a Medicare patient by an approved ambulance service if transportation by other means would endanger the patient's health, according to Frank Donnack, manager of the Appleton Social Security office.

Generally, only local ambulance trips are covered.

"An ambulance trip to or from a hospital or skilled nursing home is considered local if it begins within the area generally served by the institution. Medicare may also pay for ambulance trips between institutions when a patient is transferred from a hospital to a skilled nursing facility," Donnack said.

Medicare sometimes can pay for the ambulance used to transfer a patient from one hospital to another hospital. This would occur if the patient is taken to the closest hospital and discovers the hospital does not have the facilities to treat the injuries or illness. This would generally necessitate a transfer to a larger hospital.

Since ambulance service is covered under Medicare's medical insurance, the $60 deductible must be met. Medicare will then pay 80 per cent of the reasonable charges.

The Medicare claim may either be filed by the patient, or if the patient consents, by the ambulance company. If the ambulance company will accept an assignment, the Medicare payment can be paid directly to the company.

The bill for ambulance service must show the origin and destination of the trip, the name and address of the doctor who prescribed the trip, the name of the patient and the amount of the charge. Medicare needs this information to determine whether the ambulance service is covered.

Lakes' report ready for open presentation

WAUPACA — The report on the two year research project to determine the condition of Mirror and Shadow lakes will be presented at a public meeting at 8 p.m., Oct. 30, at the Waupaca Community Center.

A panel of specialists will present their findings and alternatives for solving many of the lakes' problems.

"Mirror Lake is rapidly dying," according to the facts gathered in the Inland Lake Demonstration Project, which included the gathering of data on run-off, seasonal oxygen content of the waters, nutrients and the study of plant and animal life.

"Excessive nutrient input into Mirror Lake from surface and storm sewer run-off has created a situation similar, in many respects, to the deterioration of Lake Erie," said James A. Van Matre, Waupaca County University Extension Resource Agent. "Oxygen, which is vital to sustain plant and animal life, is absent in the bottom one-fourth of Mirror Lake during the the summer and almost the entire lake during the winter."

Doug Knauer, limnologist with the Department of Natural Resources, and James Peterson, water chemist with the University of Wisconsin Environmental Resources Unit, will lead the panel.

Burner eyed to rid landfill site of wood

NEW LONDON — The board of health, safety and welfare will investigate the possibility of buying a burner with an air cushion so wood can be burned at the city's sanitary landfill site.

The possibility was referred to the board after Public Works Director Robert Martin reported that over half the city's landfill space is taken up by "good, clean, burnable wood."

Martin said that in one month, a wood pile 87 by 10 by 77 feet had accumulated there.

"This is very serious," he said, noting that the city can no longer burn wood at the Montgomery Street dump because of state Department of Natural Resources (DNR) orders.

While the board of health investigates buying a burner, Martin will ask the DNR for a permit to dig a burning pit near the present landfill.

He added that residents who want wood, most of it coming from Simmons Co. or Curtis Corp., are welcome to take it from the landfill.

The air cushion burner's estimated cost is $15,000.

Martin said the landfill site, on the Luther Krake farm in the Town of Liberty, is supposed to last the city at least 10 years. But, he said, if wood can't be burned, the site would last less than six years.

VFW Auxiliary project promotes bike safety

MARION — Approximately 150 bicycles belonging to elementary and high school students here were outfitted Wednesday with reflectorized tape as part of a safety program sponsored by the Big Falls Veterans of Foreign Wars Auxiliary.

The tape was attached to the rear fender and handle bars of each bike to make the two-wheelers more readily visible as the youngsters ride to and from school.

The project is directed through the efforts of the National VFW in conjunction with its youth affairs program.

Mrs. John Knitt arranged for the program here. She was assisted by Mrs. Jake Van Nuland, president of the Big Falls Auxiliary, and Mrs. Emma Boswell of Marion.

W-BEA informed about UNISERV organization

WITTENBERG — Unified Service to Assist Teachers (UNISERV) was explained to the Wittenberg-Burnamwood Education Association by Thomas Coffey, director for the district.

Coffey is a paid staff member of the organization, which works closely with national and state education associations. His job is to coordinate teacher activities between the systems involved. UNISERV also provides assistance with public relations, arbitration, rights and grievances of teachers.

Others to give reports at the meeting were Gordon Cowles, on UNISERV ideas relating to negotiation; Wilmarth Thayerspole, on educational legislation; Mary Brinkman on public relations; Alan Anderson, on teacher evaluation, and Laurel Sheppel, on a recent meeting on UNISERV which she attended in Wausau.

Ruth Anderson, president of the W BEA, assigned people to committees:

Steering committee composed of the building representatives: Betty Anderson, junior high; Bernice Schumitch, Wittenberg Elementary; Margaret Bahr, Galloway; Robert Adamski, Elderon; Eileen Janigo, Eland; Joyce Zaverousky, Burnamwood; Ed Sheppel and Thomas Stanek, the high school.

Toastmistress Club explained at New London

NEW LONDON — An explanation of the Toastmistress Club was given to the Catholic Woman's Study Club at its first meeting of the season this week.

The club helps develop the art of communication, self-confidence, the ability to speak in public and leadership in women, according to Mrs. Virginia Siebers, program narrator.

Attitude, preparation and performance for speaking, learning to listen and increasing the power of concentration are major accomplishments in the program, she added.

Mrs. Florence Brewster spoke on the women's liberation movement and Mrs. Nancy Peterson spoke on "Gratitude" and "Thanks for the Memories." Mrs. Bernice Schoenfeld discussed Thanksgiving.

HEW spokesman urges easing sterilization laws

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal expert on population will recommend easing proposed sterilization rules to avoid "closing an option to the poor that the rich have."

Tighter restrictions proposed by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare last month "may prove to be cumbersome" and infringe upon state laws, said Dr. Louis Hellman, HEW deputy assistant secretary.

"They would make it harder to sterilize youngsters and people who can't understand what is happening to them," he said.

The rule would require written informed consent of every patient, and establish a rigid system of committee and judicial review of sterilization involving minors and the mentally incompetent.

The use of federal funds to sterilize minors and the mentally incompetent was frozen last summer after allegations that two young Montgomery County, Ala., girls were sterilized without their parents' understanding of the procedure and that an Aiken, S.C., physician refused obstetrical care for welfare mothers unless they consented to permanent sterilization.

Hellman said the moratorium will end when final regulations are issued, probably in mid-November. He said he will recommend to HEW Secretary Casper W. Weinberger that the proposed rules be amended to:

—Either lower the age of consent for sterilization from the proposed 21 years to 18 years, or allow state age limits to apply.

—Permit HEW to waive requirements for committees and courts to review sterilization of minors and the mentally incompetent if a state law accomplishes the same patient protection.

—Allow sterilization projects to develop their own operating rules for review committees, with only broad general direction from Washington.

Hellman said HEW's Center for Disease Control in Atlanta is developing a system of spot checks to assure that federal rules will be observed in future sterilizations.

That proposal, along with his recommendations, will be presented at an advisory committee meeting Wednesday, he said.

The federal government finances about 100,000 of the estimated 1 million sterilizations performed each year. Hellman said no more than 1,000 cases involve minors under 18 and the mentally incompetent.

Disagreeing with a Planned Parenthood-World Population statement that the proposed rules appear to depart from previously established policy, Hellman said the government has never required any program or project to offer sterilization as a method of birth control.

"Our objective is not to make this easy," he said. "We want to provide every protection of the patient that we can."

Hellman said he thought that a minimum age of 21 for consent without judicial review would aggravate the backlog in courts, and force some younger married women to have to wait until a judge determined whether sterilization was appropriate for them.

Arab oil not needed for awhile

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government today released figures showing that the United States could get along without Arab oil, at least for the time being, in the event of a cutoff because of the Arab-Israeli war.

The figures showed that the United States imports about 1.1 million barrels a day of oil direct from the Arab countries. This is only about 6 per cent of the total daily average U.S. consumption of 17 million barrels a day.

William E. Simon, chairman of the President's Oil Policy Committee, said this country could reduce consumption by as much as three million barrels a day if it is willing to make an all-out conservation effort.

A source close to Simon's office, which released today's statement, said it was intended in part to show Americans that the United States is not totally dependent on oil imports from the Arab countries.

Even before the Arab-Israeli war broke out earlier this month, President Nixon had warned the Arab countries they should not take the U.S. need for their oil for granted.

In addition to imports of oil from the Arab countries, the United States also imports about 2.7 million barrels a day from the Caribbean and Latin America and 1.4 million barrels a day from Canada.

But although the United States now imports only about 6 per cent of its daily needs from the Middle East, government forecasts call for a much greater reliance on Mideast imports later this decade, and today's statement from Simon's office did not address that problem.

The list of conservation measures recommended by Simon has been released before. Uppermost on the list is a recommendation to reduce home heating by three degrees in winter, and reduce air-conditioning by three degrees in the summer.

Others include reducing auto speed limits to 50 miles an hour and stopping use of hot water for laundering.

Kenosha, Racine agree to halt lake pollution

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Two Wisconsin cities have agreed to stop polluting Lake Michigan as part of a settlement of a suit filed against them by the states of Michigan and Illinois, says Michigan Atty. Gen. Frank J. Kelley.

Kelley's office announced the settlement Tuesday.

It said Kelley and Illinois Atty. Gen. William J. Scott met with Wisconsin officials at Kenosha to finalize the court settlement.

Kenosha and Racine, Wis., agreed to stop discharging raw and improperly treated sewage into the lake, Kelley said.

However, two other Wisconsin cities — Milwaukee and South Milwaukee — also were named in the pollution suit filed in federal court in Illinois, and there has been no settlement reached with them, Kelley said.

He said Michigan and Illinois would continue to press their suit against Milwaukee and South Milwaukee.

"The terms of the settlement (with Kenosha and Racine) are very significant," Kelley said. "The sewage treatment standards imposed on Racine and Kenosha are beyond any standards presently imposed on either the state or federal level."

"The key to this settlement is that local and state interests realize that Lake Michigan is an invaluable natural resource which must be protected by the strictest of standards to insure its survival."

EPA finds itself with 'unreasonable' smog cure

By STAN BENJAMIN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Trapped between the law and common sense, the Environmental Protection Agency finds itself prescribing an admittedly "unreasonable" cure for smog.

EPA Administrator Russell E. Train Monday issued state plans scheduling a variety of transportation controls to meet national clean-air standards by 1977 at the latest.

In five California areas and Denver, Colo. and the Houston-Galveston area of Texas, the final "last-resort" step of each plan would be to reduce sharply the driving of motor vehicles — by rationing gasoline.

Denver and Houston-Galveston were not expected to face that last resort, but it loomed a real threat for California, as probably the only way to meet the clean air standards by their legal deadline.

To make that mid-1977 deadline, EPA officials say, the San Joaquin Valley would have to reduce vehicle traffic 39 per cent, San Diego would have to cut vehicle operation 53 per cent and Sacramento 59 per cent.

Los Angeles and San Francisco would have to get along without motor vehicles entirely to meet the 1977 deadline.

In a news conference Monday, Train repeatedly termed those requirements "unreasonable." Yet he formally promulgated them with the full legal force of the Clean Air Amendments of 1970.

Then, Train said he would ask Congress to give him the authority to give California a break and ease the deadline.

The flaw, as Train saw it, was simply that the 1977 deadline was just too close to be achieved in the five California areas without the most drastic and disruptive reductions of motor vehicle movements.

Train did not try to estimate how much delay would solve the problem, but said he would ask Congress for some flexibility allowing EPA to push back the deadline as needed.

The 1970 amendments, Train said, "embodied a philosophy that any delay should be permitted only by the Congress in new legislation and only after all feasible measures have been adopted and the unreasonable measures needed to meet the deadline have been clearly shown by being included in state implementation plans.

"This sort of approach is certainly unusual," Train commented, "but it has the undeniable advantage of ensuring that we do not shrink from doing what is possible nor defer our important goal of protecting public health from air pollution without specific, compelling reasons."

Train added that the other features included in the transportation control plans — parking surcharges, parking bans, priority treatment of bus and car-pool service, and so on — must be put into action and should not be delayed because of EPA's "recognition of the need for legislative relief for certain unreasonable conditions."

$9.9 billion increase in September income

WASHINGTON (AP) — The personal income of Americans increased $9.9 billion in September, the Commerce Department reported.

The department said a major factor in the gain was a $2.4 billion increase in manufacturing payrolls, which the department said was largely due to a longer work week and higher hourly earnings.

The overall gain in personal income in September was nineteenth of one per cent above August.

Commerce also reported that housing construction declined sharply during September, primarily due to high interest rates and the dwindling supply of money for home buyers.

The reported decline was nearly 15 per cent from August and 28 per cent below a year earlier.

Officials said some decline had been expected, the housing industry having enjoyed a boom over the last two years.

AFL-CIO convenes in Miami

MIAMI BEACH (AP) — The AFL-CIO's biennial convention opens today with union chief George Meany indicating an organized labor campaign will be mounted to elect a veto-proof Congress in 1974.

Meany said labor would use "everything we have got in the political field next year to see if we can't get enough votes in the House of Representatives to override presidential vetoes."

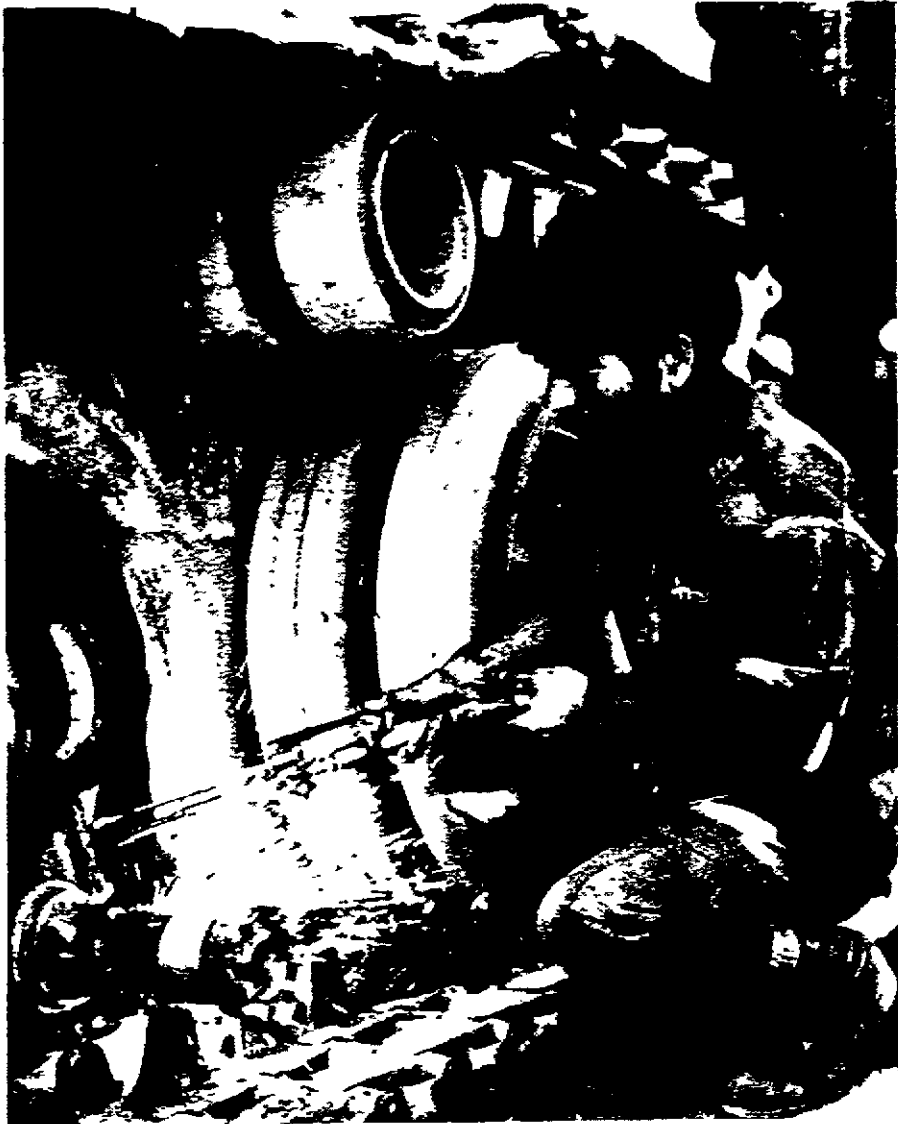

President Nixon has recently vetoed several labor-backed measures, including the minimum wage bill and emergency medical services legislation.

Meany set the tone for what is expected to be a year-long campaign in preliminary meetings in a beachfront hotel in which he hammered away at Nixon's economic policies and "corruption at the highest level of government."

A resolution accompanying a 70-page report on the Watergate scandal from the labor federation's Executive Council will be put before the 2,000 delegates Saturday. It reportedly calls for Nixon's impeachment if the President refuses any Supreme Court order to release the White House tapes on the Watergate.

Meany has all but severed relations with the White House after steering the 13.4-million member federation to a neutral position in the 1972 presidential campaign, a stance which indirectly aided Nixon.

This year the AFL-CIO president has refused to invite Nixon to the convention, breaking a tradition that had seen every president asked to attend since the AFL-CIO merger in 1955.

Kohoutek's Comet should be 'wow'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The most spectacular stellar sight in more than a century will "materialize like the star of Bethlehem around Christmas," the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said today.

Known as Comet Kohoutek for the Czechoslovakian astronomer who discovered it nine months ago, the object could be as bright as the full moon. Its head will stretch across 60 million miles of space. Its tail will extend across one sixth of the night-time sky.

The coming of the comet has stirred interest among astronomers and space scientists around the world. NASA plans to send a special ultraviolet camera to Skylab when the third space lab crew blasts off for their orbiting laboratory next month. It also is considering extending the Skylab mission from 56 to 70 days in order to get more facts on the visitor.

In addition, the space agency says it will observe and measure the comet with instruments in Mariner 10, scheduled for launch Nov. 3 on a trip to Venus and Mercury. Other measurements will be taken by instruments carried aloft by rockets, balloons and airplanes and with ground-based probes.

NASA at one time considered sending a rocket into space to intercept the comet, but decided it did not have the time to prepare the mission.

Kohoutek is expected to come within 13.2 million miles of the sun and within 75 million miles of the earth. The space agency says the comet will be more spectacular than Haley's Comet, which last appeared in 1910. The great comet of 1843, however, had a tail three times as long as Kohoutek.

Comets have been recorded by men for 24 centuries but little is known of them. Early astronomers believed comets were guest stars or atmospheric phenomena. Medieval astronomers thought the heavenly travelers foretold plagues.

No one is sure if Comet Kohoutek has visited the solar system before. If it has, the visit was more than 10,000 years ago and perhaps about 80,000 years in the past, NASA says.

The comet will reach its peak of brightness on Dec. 28, when it can be seen during the day. At that time, it will have reached its closest point to the sun.

NASA says the best occasion for viewing the comet probably will be early evening on New Year's Day, when the comet's tail will be at its brightest.

The comet's tail will be behind the head as it approaches the sun but will swing around in front of the head as the comet starts out of the solar system. This effect is caused by the solar wind — the sun's outpouring of particles — and by solar rays, which push matter away from the comet's head.

Sixty teams entered in trivia contest

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Who were Daddy Warbucks' two sidekicks?

The correct answer to that and other trivia questions in the first Grand Trivia Tournament could lead to a week's vacation in Mexico.

Ron Meyer, organizer of the tournament, says 60 teams have signed up for the competition which begins Nov. 12.

"Trivia has been around for a while. I decided we had to tap this energy," this knowledge," said Meyer, president of the San Francisco Trivia Society, in an interview Wednesday. "Everyone enjoys remembering the past."

Questions for the tournament will be drawn up by a secret committee of three persons. Each team will include an expert on sports, on entertainment, on the arts, sciences and music, and on news events and history, he said.

"The true triviaist needs a certain haughty manner to carry it all off because after all, the whole thing is a put on," he said.

Why? Because the triviaist has to answer questions like these:

Q: Who was the first baseball player to wear shin guards?

A: J. Breshanan

Q: What is the name of the warehouse where the Green Hornet kept his car?

A: A seeming abandoned warehouse owned by Daddy Warbucks kept company with Punjab and Asp.

Nixon is confident Rebozo did no wrong

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon is confident that his friend Charles G. Bebe Rebozo acted properly in handling a $100,000 campaign contribution to a White House spokesman said Wednesday.

The expression of confidence by Nixon need not be spoken, said Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren.

Rebozo is said to have kept the money in a safe deposit box for several years and then to have returned it last spring to a lawyer for bill onaire Howard Hughes.

Warren said Rebozo has discussed the money with the staff of the Senate Watergate committee and had told Nixon about it earlier this year.

Warren said "we are confident that it was a campaign contribution."

A reporter asked whether, in view of the many times Rebozo and the President have been together, Nixon really expected the American people to believe he had not been told about the money earlier.

"Yes," said Warren, "because it happens to be the truth."

Police & fire beat

A battery cable and voltage regulator were damaged after the cable shorted out in a van truck near Appleton fire station No. 3, 107 S. Badger Ave., about 7 a.m. Tuesday.
The truck is owned by Gilbert Heating Co. Inc., 107 N. Douglas St.

Firemen used brooms and water from a booster line to extinguish leaves burning along a curb at the intersection of Spencer Street and Badger Avenue about 6.15 p.m. Tuesday. The cause of the fire was not known.

Eleanor W. Thomason, 21, 1206 E. 10th River St., was taken to St. Elizabeth Hospital for treatment of leg injuries she sustained when her bicycle skidded into the side of a car near the intersection of College Avenue and Appleton Street about noon Tuesday.
Police said the woman was heading west on College and swerved to avoid the opening door of a parked vehicle when her bike struck the side of a westbound auto driven by Linda K. Kersten, 23, 232 S. Elm St., Kimberly.

Donald K. Enneper, 21, 405 Ryan St., Brillion, received a minor head injury in a car-pickup truck accident near the intersection of College Avenue and Division Street about 8:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Police said Enneper's truck was stopped in the eastbound lane of College when it was struck from the rear by the car, driven by Steven J. Hofman, 18, 1137 W. Roberts Ave., Appleton.

David S. Braeger, 34, 407 N. Bennett St., sustained a minor arm injury when he was struck by a car driven by Frank J. Krizesky, 68, 228 Sunset Drive, Menasha, at the parking lot entrance of Kohl's Food Store, 820 W. College Ave., about 3 p.m. Tuesday.

Police said Braeger was walking west on the sidewalk when the car made a left turn into the lot from College. Braeger fell to the sidewalk after being struck.

Theodore Dietzen, 500 W. College Ave., reported the theft of his 1971 Cadillac from the 500 block of W. Johnston Street late Tuesday.

Police said Dietzen had parked the car in a lot and went to play pool at a nearby tavern, discovering the vehicle missing when he returned.

Dietzen told police the keys were not in the car, but that a tool box, tape player and speaker were.

Robert W. Mack, 1126 W. Spencer St., reported the theft of his son's minibike, valued at $175, from Mack's garage within the past three days. Police said there was no indication of forced entry into the garage.

Treasury has record surplus

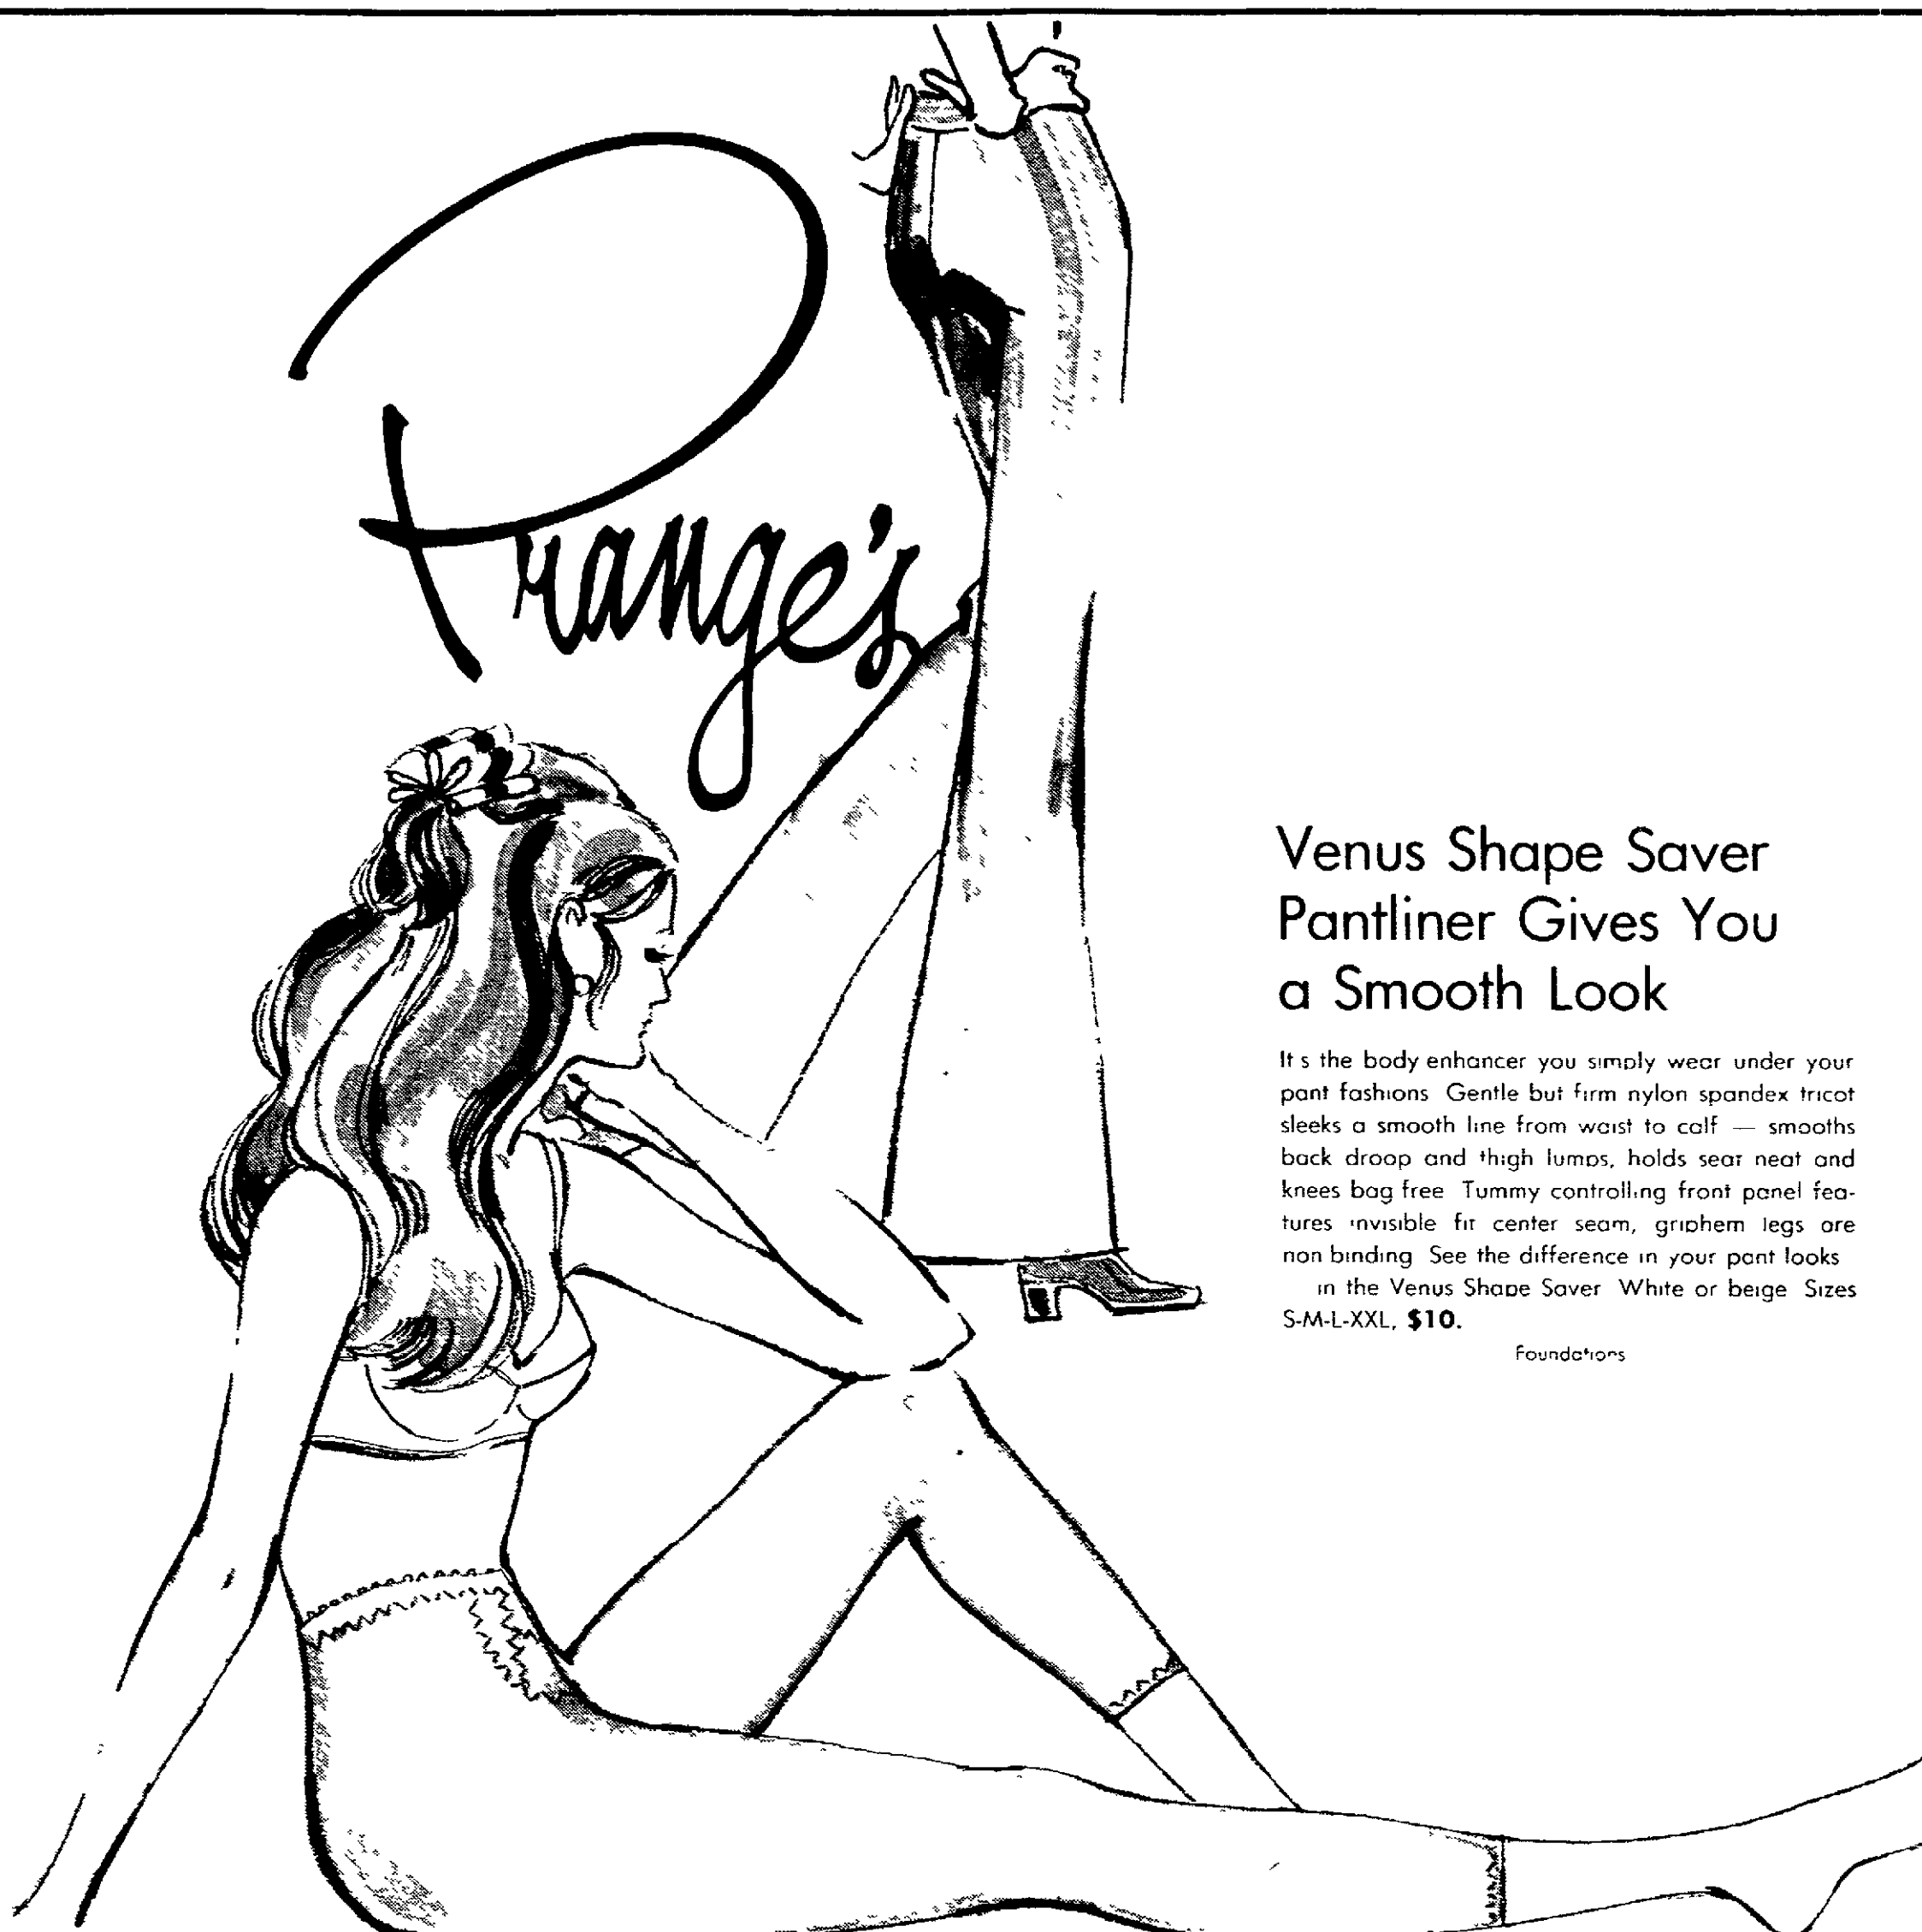

MADISON, Wis. (AP)—Wisconsin had a record surplus of $217.4 million in its treasury at the end of the last fiscal year June 30, Department of Administration Secretary Joe E. Nusbaum reported Monday.

In letters to Gov. Patrick J. Lucey and members of the legislature, Nusbaum said the total was almost double the $116.9 million surplus of the previous fiscal year.

The factor most responsible for Wisconsin's healthy financial position was "the unexpected level of economic activity in the state, both in real growth and inflationary expansion," he said.

Nusbaum said it was too early to ascertain what the financial status of the state would be in January when the legislature undertakes a budget review.

All revenues and expenditures will be re-estimated in December.

Legislature seeks more Lake Michigan diversion

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — This state, which figured in earlier controversies about low water in Lake Michigan that led to controls over water diversion through Chicago, may ask relief of currently high and damaging Michigan levels through a court order to permit more diversion of the lake's waters.

A legislative joint resolution, signed by most of the members of the Senate and Assembly whose districts bound Lake Michigan, proposes that the state Department of Justice petition the U. S. Supreme Court to authorize a temporary increase of water from the lake through the so-called Chicago drainage canal.

Such relief is needed to avoid additional damage to the lake shore and thousands of private properties there, according to the legislative appeal.

The resolution is directed to Atty. Gen. Robert Warren, whose predecessors were involved in long and bitter litigation about drawing down the lake level through the canal in earlier decades.

The higher levels of Lake Michigan and Lake Superior are a major cause of shoreline diversion and sedimentation, and the damage to public and private properties on the shores of both lakes has reached "devastating proportions," the resolution sponsoring the plan asserted.

Most of the pressure for relief so far has been from owners of private properties on Lake Michigan.

The legislators recalled that the present diversion limits result from an order of the U. S. Supreme Court and that the Wisconsin was a party to the litigation that brought about the court order.
